INSISTS ON TEN-YEAR TERM

Harding's Letter Causes Deadlock in Senate Committee and Delays Action on the Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—President Harding would prefer no ship subsidy legislation at all rather than accept a bill carrying the Madden amendment, which makes the shipping aid fund subject to annual appropriation by Congress. The Administration insists that the fund must be one over which, for the period covered by the legislation, the Shipping Board shall have entire control.

The President holds that the amendment of Representative Madden, who is Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, would impede the financing of the proposed subsidized merchant marine and would make possible the wrecking of the entire subsidy structure by a subsequent Congress. The President's view, expressed in language as positive as any ever used by Mr. Harding, was conveyed in a letter to Senator Jones of Washington, Chairman of the Committee on Commerce, written Saturday and made public today by Mr. Jones. This reads as follows:

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2, 1922.

My Dear Senator Jones:

Referring to our conversation relating to the Merchant Marine bill as passed by the House, I am writing to urge with all the earnestness at my command that the Senate committee will eliminate from the bill the amendment which makes the shipping aid fund subject to annual appropriation by Congress. I understand that this amendment was added without any thought of emasculating the bill, mainly to harmonize it with an accepted practice of Congress in making annual appropriations in carrying out Government commitments relating to improvements, reclamation and other Government projects.

It is a very different proposition so far as the Shipping bill is concerned. Our chief object is to establish and promote the American merchant marine. The ten-year commitment is made for the purpose of giving the plan the necessary period of trial to prove its success or failure.

Shipping enterprise involves a very considerable investment of capital; sometimes millions must be invested in a single ship, and no shipping concern with ample ships to operate definite lines in sustained service could hope to begin without enlisting several millions of capital. Much of this capital will necessarily be acquired through the processes of direct subscription attended by bonding. It is not believed that any financial concern would support a bonding enterprise with an uncertainty in the continuity of Government aid throughout the ten-year period.

Of course, Government aid may cease in a much shorter time. It will only cease, however, in case the shipping concern is earning sufficiently on its capital to meet the obligations under the terms of the bill, which provides for automatic cessation of Government aid and the return of excess profits to the Government.

The outstanding objection to the amendment lies in the fact that it impedes the organization of the financing of the new and small shipping concerns which it is designed to build up under a favoring merchant marine policy. It would be quite possible for shipping concerns already organized and financed to avail themselves of Government aid without any more guarantee than the bill as passed by the House carries for them. But our greater interest lies in the organization and establishment and maintenance of new shipping lines, and it is inconceivable to me that any project which would be dependent on the Government for the first few years of the difficult work of establishing itself could attract any capital, either in stock subscription or bonds, unless the Government aid which inspires the enterprise is substantially assured for a definite period.

Says Undertaking Might be Wrecked.

Of course, it is a reasonable assumption that Congress, once pledged to a policy of Government aid, would carry on from year to year in accordance with its encated pledge. At the same time it must be recognized that a Congress unfavorable to the policy of Government aid might, for one reason or another, interrupt the appropriations and bring about a collapse of the entire undertaking. The mere possibility of such a fiasco would undoubtedly deter the successful financing of shipping projects and defeat the very object which the merchant marine act sets out to accomplish.

So long as we are undertaking this great experiment in fostering and upbuilding our merchant marine I think we ought to commit ourselves to it unequivocally and to the ten-year period.

It will be a vast saving to the Federal Treasury to embark upon this enterprise and liquidate our shipbuilding accounts through a policy which encourages the sale and operation of the ships which are now deteriorating in value in the hands of the Government, as a mere temporary expedient. The enactment of the bill is altogether desirable, and in seeking great constructive results we must keep in mind that a project worth venturing on is full worth a ten-year commitment.

There was no limitation on the rebates through discrimination and duties as provided in the existing law, and I fail to see any reason why we should jeopardize the program by the threat of conflict in securing an appropriation from year to year. The thing is worth doing right and with every possible effort toward a definite policy for an ample trial period, else it is scarcely worth doing at all. I cannot help but feel I would rather the measure should fail entirely than to have one enacted which will bring us to extreme disappointment because we have entered upon a program in a half-hearted and rather indifferent way.

Very truly yours,
WARREN G. HARDING.

Causes Deadlock in Committee.

The reading of the President's letter in committee is said to have been a surprise to the members and to have brought about a discussion that practically deadlocked the committee and made final action on the bill today impossible. Senators Lenroot, McNary and Willis, of the Republican membership, favor the Madden proposal, and as five Democrats are opposed to the bill, this made the committee stand eight to eight.

In an effort to meet the objections of the President, Republican members proposed a substitute for the Madden amendment which would direct the Shipping Board to make no increases over original allotments to any shipping concern without first obtaining the consent of Congress. This, they argued, would not tie the hands of the board in its handling of the original subsidies allotted any company or companies.

Backed by Senator Ransdell, of Louisiana, Senator Jones is reported to have talked in the plainest fashion to his colleagues, arguing that the Madden amendment practically would defeat the purposes of the legislation, in that it would make capital timid and investment uncertain. The Administration, he said, was "unalterably opposed to the proposed amendment. Under no conditions," it is stated, will the Administration consent to a proposition which will make the $30,000,000 annual fund for ten years, which the 10 per cent. customs withdrawal is expected to provide, subject to appropriation by Congress.

Late this afternoon the committee passed over until tomorrow the matters in dispute and proceeded to the consideration of the more than 700 sections in the bill which are not expected to meet with any determined opposition, so far as the committee membership is concerned.

MELLON URGES CUT IN SURTAX RATES

ing their yearly income," he says. "The alternative is to refuse to recognize either capital gains or capital losses for income purposes, and if the present situation were allowed to continue there is no doubt that it would save revenue to adopt this course. This is, in fact, the practice which has been followed in England for many years."

The most outstanding method of escape from the surtax exists in the form of tax-exempt securities, which may be issued without restriction by the States and their political subdivisions, according to the report, and the Secretary earnestly urges the prompt adoption of the proposed constitutional amendment against the further issuance of tax-exempt securities which now reach the market at about the rate of $1,000,000,000 annually.

"The exemption which gives value to these securities is, of course, that from the Federal income surtax, and as matters now stand, the Federal Government, while denying itself the advantage of the exemption from the surtaxes in selling its own securities," the report continues, "in effect provides a subsidy, at its own expense, to the State and municipal Governments, the Federal and joint stock land banks and other agencies issuing tax-exempt securities through the exemption from the Federal income surtaxes which these tax-exempt securities now enjoy.

A Perfect Means of Escape.

"For this exemption the Federal Government gets no compensating advantage, and the effect of the exemption is to provide a perfect means of escape from the Federal surtaxes, which is naturally the most valuable to the wealthiest investor and especially to one who is not engaged in business, and is, therefore, free to convert his investments into tax-exempt securities and thus avoid paying the income tax."

After remarking that the volume of such securities reaches the sum of $11,000,000,000, Secretary Mellon declares that "investors who would normally put their surplus funds into productive enterprises are automatically driven under the pressure of high surtax rates into investment in tax-exempt securities, with the result that the Federal Government loses the revenue, business and industry lose the capital, and funds badly needed for productive purposes are diverted into unproductive and frequently wasteful public expenditure."

"This is a situation which cannot be permitted to continue without grave danger to our economic structure, as well as to our system of taxation," he says.

Referring to the avenue of escape afforded in the section of the law dealing with exchanges of securities, Mr. Mellon urges that the statute be amended so as to limit the cases in which securities may be exchanged for other securities, without the realization of taxable income, to those cases where the exchange is in connection with the reorganization, in consolidation or merger of one or more corporations.

Illustrating the actual workings under this the provisions of the existing law for the exchange of property held for investment for other property of a like kind without the realization of taxable income, Mr. Mellon says that a taxpayer who bought a $1,000 bond which appreciated in value might exchange that bond for another of the same value, together with $100 in cash, without the realization of taxable income.

"This provision of the act is being widely abused," he added.

Substantial Trade Revival.

The report deals with the various divisions of the Treasury and with general business and economic conditions in the United States. The past twelve months, the Secretary says, have been marked by further liquidation and recovery from depression, and, more recently, by a substantial revival of business.

"The year is closing with bountiful crops and the severe depression in agriculture has been relieved," he continues. "Many of the sections which a year or so ago were in a precarious condition are today working out of their difficulties and gradually paying their debts. A few weak spots remain, but banking conditions generally are sound, money rates are reasonable and there is a sufficient credit available to meet all legitimate demands. The waste of war is being repaired and even abroad there are signs of progress in reconstruction.

"In the Treasury the year has seen a reduction in the gross debt amounting to about $1,000,000,000, a balanced budget for the fiscal year 1922, showing a surplus of over $300,000,000 above expenditure and substantial progress in the refunding of the short-dated debt, which has now been reduced to manageable proportions. These developments are all helpful and afford the basis for a revival of business and industry on sound lines."

Secretary Mellon injects one note of warning into the situation. He says that owing to the restrictions on immigration and the general resumption of industrial activity, the country already is suffering from a scarcity of labor, embarrassing to some lines of business and leading to higher wage scales where lower scales were expected a year or two ago. The railroads, he says, are suffering from under-maintenance and inadequate equipment and are finding it difficult to move commodities to meet the demands of business, with resulting congestion in manufacture and trade and dislocation of prices. As a consequence farm products are selling too low at the farm and too high at the distributing centres.

The increase of $1,000,000,000 in the gold holdings in this country since 1919-1920 has had a tendency to expand credit, the Secretary maintains, thus creating an unnatural ease of money for purposes of expansion and credit. He calls attention to the uncertain state of Europe and the disorder of foreign currencies and the foreign exchanges which "have impaired the corrective forces which used to operate in normal times, and have created such unsettlement in foreign trade and so reduced the buying power of foreign countries as to destroy or endanger the foreign markets for many of our products," a circumstance that "has tended to keep the prices of agricultural products below the general level, while rising costs of manufacture are tending still further to restrict foreign buying in our markets and threaten our ability to compete with foreign manufacturers abroad."

Need of Foreign Markets.

"Enough forces are operating to make us cautious in estimating the prospects for the future and take care lest we build a false basis. Business in this country cannot progress indefinitely without its foreign markets, and undue expansion now, with rising costs and artificial values, would inevitably sow the seeds of reaction and make more difficult the re-establishment of normal relationships abroad. To avoid these pitfalls we depend for the most part on the good sense and the foresight of American business."

The Secretary refers to the problem of refinancing the $7,000,000,000 debt maturing in 1923 as the major problem of the last year, and says that striking progress has been made. The work had to be undertaken without the support of the popular drives and the help of the 2,000,000 persons who floated the Liberty loans during the war. Nevertheless, appealing to the people on a straight investment basis, the Secretary reports that by Oct. 31, 1922, about $4,000,000,000 of the $7,000,000,000 outstanding on June 30, 1921, already had been retired or refunded, and there is every assurance that if no extraordinary expenditures are permitted to intervene, the remaining $3,000,000,000 can be refinanced during the balance of the current fiscal year without straining or the country's financial machinery and without disturbance to the market for outstanding securities."

In the face of unfavorable prospects, expenditures by the Government during the last year were cut $600,000,000 below the amount originally estimated, and the total was less than $3,800,000,000, as compared with over $5,500,000,000 during the previous fiscal year, or a reduction of over $1,700,000,000, he adds.

Internal revenue collections for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922, were 30 per cent. less than the previous year, due principally to a decrease in receipts from income and profits taxes. The actual decrease was $1,397,905,978. The revenue was $3,197,451,083, compared to $4,595,357,061 the previous year.

Secretary Mellon declares that the prohibition unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue has reorganized the method of handling permits, enacted further restrictions on the transportation of liquor and has reduced the withdrawal of liquor from bonded warehouses.

War Finance Corporation.

Describing the operations of the War Finance Corporation, the report says that a special feature of the corporation's work is the financing of co-operative marketing associations.

"The growth of the co-operative movement is one of the most encouraging developments in the marketing of agricultural products in recent years," the report continues, "for it promises to bring about definite and far-reaching improvements in our whole system of distributing farm commodities. Agricultural conditions have steadily improved since the collapse of the world market for farm products in 1920 and 1921, though there are still many evidences that the prices of farm products are out of line as compared with manufactured goods.

"The farmer's difficulty now is not so much lack of credits as it is lack of markets, and recovery of markets depends rather more on world conditions than on domestic credits. There can be no doubt that one of the first conditions of sound recovery in the country as a whole is the restoration of the purchasing power of the farmer, the impairment of which has had so much to do with the last depression in business."

On Nov. 16, 1922, the obligations of various foreign Governments held by the Treasury amounted to $10,045,252,026, classified as follows:

(1) $9,886,111,178.10, representing loans made by the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, under the Liberty bonds acts.

(2) $374,816,884.95 received from the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy on account of sales of surplus war material under the act of July 9, 1918.

(3) $84,023,963.55 received from the American Relief Administration on account of relief supplies furnished under the act of Feb. 25, 1919.

In addition to the above, the United States Grain Corporation, the entire stock of which is owned by this Government, holds obligations of various foreign Governments amounting to $56,868,692.49.

The Secretary summarizes the work of the Public Health Service and says that the research work of the service has made progress and could be extended with great advantage into other fields, notably cancer and tuberculosis.

"Unless the present disturbed economic and industrial conditions in Europe improve it is possible that there will be an increase in the prevalence of certain diseases and it is more than ever important that the Public Health Service have sufficient facilities to provide protection against the introduction of epidemic diseases into this country," the report states.

Discussing his plan for the gradual retirement of the war debt, Secretary Mellon says:

"Upon the completion of this year's refunding, there will arise a new class of short-dated debt, maturing within the next five or six years and aggregating perhaps $9,500,000,000, assuming that the rest of the refunding is on a short-term basis. These maturities, consisting chiefly of third Liberty loan bonds and of Treasury notes and certificates resulting from the refunding operations of the two years past, will be spread over each year until 1929, when the third Liberty loan matures, and will be so arranged as to give free play to the policy of orderly funding and gradual liquidation which the Treasury has been following. All outstanding issues of notes and certificates maturing within this period fall due on quarterly tax payment dates, and will thus absorb any surplus revenues which may be available. This gives the best assurance of the gradual retirement of the war debt, and is perhaps the greatest advantage of the short-term refunding which the Treasury has been carrying on, for by distributing the debt over early maturities in amounts not too large to be financed each year these refunding operations have given the Treasury control over the debt and its retirement and avoided the tendency to perpetuation of the debt which would have been inherent in long-term refunding upon a comprehensive scale. Given a balanced budget and a sound policy in respect to current expenditures, similar plans can be applied to the succeeding years, with each year's surplus used to retire maturing notes and certificates. This will keep the finances clean, assure the gradual liquidation of the debt, and put the nation in shape to meet future emergencies. It depends above all else, however, on the maintenance of strict economy in Government expenditure and a healthy surplus of receipts over expenditures each year."

The report describes the tremendous work being expended in disposing of unaudited income tax returns, and said that from 1918 to 1921 millions of complicated income tax returns were received in the bureau. It was impossible to audit all the returns. The result was a vast accumulation. The number of claims on hand has been materially reduced during the year. The 163,000 income and excess profits tax claims on hand in October, 1921, were reduced to 106,000 by June, 1922. The 165,405 claims adjusted during the year involved $332,479,050, of which 189,631, involving $182,371,597, were allowed and 37,774, involving $150,107,452, were rejected.

The report concludes with a series of detailed tables covering expenditures for the previous year and estimates of expenditures for 1924.

MELLON ANNOUNCES DECEMBER PROGRAM

HEAVY FISCAL OPERATIONS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. — Secretary Mellon announced tonight the December financing program of the Treasury Department in the following letter addressed to banking institutions:

"The Treasury is today announcing its December financing, which comprises, first, an offering of Treasury certificates of indebtedness in two series, both dated Dec. 15, 1922, one bearing 3¾ per cent. interest and maturing in three months and the other bearing 4 per cent. interest and maturing in one year, and, second, an offering of short-term Treasury notes, dated Dec. 15, 1922, bearing 4¾ per cent. interest and maturing in two and one-half years. Subscriptions are being received through the Federal Reserve banks, acting as fiscal agents of the United States.

"The combined offering of certificates is for $400,000,000, or thereabouts, while the offering of notes is for $300,000,000, or thereabouts, with the right reserved to the Secretary of the Treasury to allot additional notes to the extent that 4¾ per cent. Victory notes are tendered in payment. The terms of the offering are fully set forth in Treasury Department circulars 314 and 315, both dated Dec. 7, 1922, copies of which are enclosed for your ready reference.

"There will become payable on Dec. 15, 1922, about $700,000,000 of 4¾ per cent. Victory notes called for redemption on that date, and about $300,000,000 of Treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing on that date. At the same time about $100,000,000 will be payable as interest on the public debt. Against these payments, aggregating about $1,000,000,000 the Treasury already has available balances amounting to about $275,000,000, and it expects to receive during December about $275,000,000 in income and profits taxes. The notes and certificates now offered will provide for the remainder of the Dec. 15 maturities and leave a margin to cover the Treasury's immediate cash requirements and such balance of the 1918 War Savings Certificates as may have to be redeemed in cash at the first of the year.

"The Treasury has already announced special arrangements for the exchange of these maturing War Savings Certificates into the new Treasury Savings Certificates, and, through these exchanges and the proceeds of the current offering, expects to provide for the greater part of the War Savings maturity, leaving such further refunding as may be necessary for the purpose to be accomplished after the turn of the year, when market conditions are favorable. With the completion of the December financing, the Treasury will thus have provided for most of the short-dated debt maturing this fiscal year. Aside from the balance of War Savings Certificates that may remain to be refunded, there will only be the issues of Treasury certificates maturing March 15 and June 15, 1923, both covered by the estimated tax payments to be received in these months, and the remaining uncalled Victory notes, amounting to about $894,000,000, on Nov. 20, 1922. Exchanges of these notes for the new Treasury notes now offered and advance redemptions and retirements for the sinking fund and on other accounts may be expected to reduce the outstanding amount of uncalled Victory notes still further before their maturity.

"I think you will find it interesting in this connection to know about the improved prospects of the Treasury for this fiscal year and the next fiscal year. The budget, which was presented to Congress on Monday, shows that according to the latest revised estimates of receipts and expenditures, the deficit for the current fiscal year has already been reduced to about $274,000,000, as compared with an indicated deficit of about $697,000,000 at the beginning of the fiscal year, and at the same time holds a real hope that by the end of the year the deficit can be entirely overcome by still further reductions in expenditure and increases of receipts, arising partly from further realization on Government-owned securities and property and partly from increased collections of customs and internal taxes.

"The actual receipts and expenditures of the Government for the first five months of the current fiscal year, through Nov. 30, 1922, support these estimates. Total ordinary receipts to that date on the basis of daily Treasury statements amounted to $1,404,776,456.64 as compared with total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts amounting to $1,514,314,770.80, leaving a deficit for the first five months of only $109,538,314.16. By the end of December this deficit should be overcome by the quarterly payment of income and profits taxes, which falls due in that month, thus leaving a balanced budget, or perhaps even a small surplus, for the first six months of the fiscal year 1923.

"The prospects for the second half of the year are likewise favorable. The budget estimates for the next fiscal year, 1924, indicate a surplus of about $180,000,000, and though it is still too early to forecast the actual results, this indicated surplus gives some margin to take care of any deficit that may possibly remain at the close of the present year, or, if this year closes with a balanced budget or a small surplus, can be applied to the retirement of debt maturing within the fiscal year 1924. For both years 1923 and 1924 the budget provides for the regular sinking fund requirements and other public debt expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts, so that any surplus that can be realized in either year will mean additional retirements of debt.

"The Treasury is accordingly financing its December maturities on a short-term basis, believing that the prospects for the next year or two indicate the probability of substantial retirements of early maturing debt out of current receipts, and that by reason of the redemption on December 15 of $900,000,000, or thereabouts, of short-term Government obligations these new issues of short-term notes and certificates in a smaller aggregate amount and with maturities adapted to the varying needs of investors, will offer exceptionally attractive opportunities for reinvestment.

"With this in view the Treasury is offering in the official circulars to accept Treasury certificates maturing Dec. 15, 1922, and victory notes called for redemption on that date, in payment for the new three-month or one-year certificates and to accept certificates maturing Dec. 15, and 4¾ per cent. Victory notes, whether or not called for redemption, in payment for the new 2½-year Treasury notes.

"By subscribing liberally to the new offerings in the first instance, and extending every possible facility to your customers to invest in the notes and certificates through cash purchase or by exchange of Victory notes or maturing certificates, you will be rendering an important service to the Treasury as well as to your customers, and at the same time will be helping to accomplish what all of us most desire in these operations, namely, widest possible distribution of the Government's securities among investors throughout the country."

To Investors, Manufacturers and Patent Attorneys

An established and responsible metal stamping concern is prepared to consider the manufacture or financing (purchase or royalty arrangement) of patents for products for which a national market exists or could be created.

Preference will be given to products that would have a broad market and could therefore be sold at moderate retail prices. Special consideration will be given products whose original purchase automatically creates the sale of "parts" or accessories. Products of intricate manufacture or that call for the excessive use of materials or parts not within the regular scope of a metal stamping factory are not particularly desirable, unless the sales possibilities are unusually attractive.

Patents of fairly recent grant or pending applications only are desired. The fullest possible details regarding the product, its uses, probable cost of manufacture, etc. (presented by letter), will secure the quickest action.

SEEKS $60,000,000 FUND FOR FARMERS

Administration Bill to Provide Rural Credits Offered in Both Houses.

USES FARM LOAN SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The Administration's program for rural credits legislation became more definitely outlined today with the introduction in both House and Senate of an amended Credits bill, with new features which were declared to have the support of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and officials of the Treasury Department and the Federal Farm Loan Board.

Introduced by Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin and Representative Anderson of Minnesota, author and Chairman, respectively, of the Congressional Agricultural Commission, the bill would utilize the existing Federal Farm Loan system as a basis by creating within it a farm credits department through which potential credit facilities would be provided for farmers' short and long term loans to the extent of at least $60,000,000.

Significance was seen in the introduction of the legislation, because of the recent White House conference attended by Secretary Wallace, Senator Watson of Indiana and a dozen other Republican Senators, at which the farm credits situation was discussed and an agreement reached to provide comprehensive credit machinery for the farmers through the Federal Farm Loan system.

The twelve farm loan banks at present have a Government subscription totaling only $12,000,000, but under the new bill they would be provided with a revolving fund subscribed by the Government totaling $60,000,000, divided equally among the twelve banks. The banks would also be authorized to rediscount farm paper with maturities of from six months to three years.

"The bill will enable the farmer to make loans for production and marketing purposes on a basis of maturity corresponding with his ability to realize and pay the loan from the proceeds of his farm or from the sale of products hypothecated as a basis of the loans," Mr. Anderson said today. "It will enable the farmer to draw money from the money centres of the country in such volume as to reduce the interest rates effective in agricultural sections without interfering with or in any way imperiling the business of banks whose deposits are subject to withdrawal on short notice.

"It requires no installation of new machinery, and permits the farmer to do his business in intermediate credits in the same way as he now does his business in relation to short-time credits.

"It will not impose upon the farmers' requirements for intermediate credit the large overhead which would be involved in the erection of an entirely new machinery to meet these requirements. It will provide a means for meeting the credit needs of co-operative producing or producing and marketing associations composed of farmers.

"In addition, the bill amends the Federal Reserve act so as to admit to the Federal Reserve system State banks having a smaller capital than now required, providing these banks undertake to meet the present requirements within three years."

SEEKS FEDERAL PLANT AT MUSCLE SHOALS

Dickinson Bill Provides for Government Making of War Nitrates and Fertilizer.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A Government-controlled corporation to produce nitrate for war purposes and cheap fertilizer for farmers was proposed today as a solution of the Muscle Shoals problem by Representative Dickinson, Republican, of Iowa, a leader of the "farm bloc," who introduced a bill to put his plan into effect.

In a statement Mr. Dickinson said the Ford offer for Muscle Shoals had been subjected to such "strong criticism" as to endanger the future disposition of the plant, and that he had been "led to the conclusion that some plan of Federal operation is the only solution that will insure early completion of the work."

Mr. Dickinson's bill provides that the "Federal Chemical Corporation," consisting of the Secretary of War, the Secretary of Agriculture and three members to be appointed by the President, receive power to complete and operate the Muscle Shoals project for the manufacture of nitrate and fertilizer, the latter to be sold to the consumer at cost plus 4½ per cent., to be added to provide funds to complete and equip the plant. The corporation also would be authorized to sell excess power to States, municipalities or private enterprises, giving preference to States and cities.

Dams on the Tennessee River contemplated in 1918 would be completed under Mr. Dickinson's bill, and surveys would be made for storage reservoirs. Wherever private interests benefit from the establishment of these reservoirs the bill stipulates they shall bear a proportionate share of their cost.

Another section of the measure provides that, subject to the approval of the President, the corporation be authorized to negotiate with the Alabama Power Company to settle "the difficulties existing between the Government of the United States and the said power company by virtue of the joint ownership of the power plant at Gorgas, Ala., and it is authorized to sell the interest of the Government of the United States in said plant to the said Alabama Power Company."

Nitrate Plant 1 under the plan would be remodeled to manufacture explosives and fertilizer, and Plant 2 would be used altogether for the production of fertilizer to be sold to consumers directly or through agencies in various parts of the country. The corporation also would be authorized to fix prices for fertilizer charged by private manufacturers who obtained the chemical elements from the Muscle Shoals plant.

Referring to the Ford offer, Mr. Dickinson said objection had been made "to giving any individual the benefits of an investment of $105,000,000 and obligating the Government for $50,000,000 and the placing of this great property in a private corporation, which would have the added advantages of price control of fertilizer and would gain a manufacturing advantage in water rights, without supervision or control by any Government agency."

Harding is Not Expected to Address Congress Today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The day when President Harding will deliver his annual message to Congress is still problematical.

At the Executive Offices it was said tonight that it was hardly probable he would appear before Congress tomorrow and no opinion was ventured as to whether he would appear Friday, although a Presidential spokesman on Tuesday indicated that the message probably would be delivered in person either Thursday or Friday.

TIGER AND WILSON RECALL OLD TIMES

White, to dine and rest an hour before dropping in at Continental Memorial Hall at the annual meeting of the Southern Society. To keep this engagement the Tiger stayed up two hours after his 8 o'clock bedtime, for not being able to visit the South on his American tour, he was anxious to bring his mission to this section of the country through Washington Southerners.

The 81-year-old French visitor went through today, the busiest he has had since coming here two weeks ago. Before calling upon Mr. Wilson he laid a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington, spoke before the Army War College and then visited Mount Vernon, where he laid a wreath on Washington's Tomb.

Without command, 300 army officers of high rank leaped to attention in the lecture hall of the War College when M. Clemenceau appeared in a doorway this morning. He was followed by Secretary of War Weeks, who took a front seat in the audience. The silent, rigid greeting that contrasted strongly with the cheers and applause that signaled other appearances he has made in this country affected M. Clemenceau, for his eyes were shining as he stepped on the platform and looked at the rows of motionless olive drab, mixed with a scattering of navy blue, before him. He was introduced by Major Gen. B. F. McGlachlin and was heartily applauded when he stepped forward to speak.

"One of these days, under a form I don't know, the time will come when we meet again," the Tiger said.

He said that France and England were glad enough when American help came, and he caused a laugh by the remark that he did not believe "it would have displeased the Americans had the war gone on a little longer."

His Talk to War College.

M. Clemenceau said in part:

"It has been said that America is a new country while Europe is old. I do not believe it. You say you are not European. I say you are. You came from Europe, but you have added greatly to what you brought; you have added the knowledge of how to do big things.

"We had been suffering in a most dreadful manner, but we were always with the idea that America would make up her mind to cross the sea. Democracies are good things, certainly better than autocracies, but still they have their disadvantages. A democracy takes a long time to form its opinion. You were slowly and slowly making up your minds while the rest of Europe was making up its mind that after all independence was one of the first things to be obtained.

"When I saw the first American uniform on the field my heart was full of gratitude, for the end was in sight. All depended upon the show your soldiers made against the Germans. If that showing was to be good, it would not last long. The result was better than we expected. Old soldiers are too apt to belittle young ones, but we knew you when you came. You had fought the great American Civil War. The American man had proved himself to be as powerful a soldier as he was citizen. With your generous dash you lost more men than you ought to have, but your effect upon the Germans made them understand that when they saw more and yet more men come across the sea they had to sue for peace. Your coming saved many lives, American as well as French. I must say that you came very late, however.

"Well, the war came to an end. And now we are called militarists. You said we were fighting for the safety of democracy. You said that it was the future state of mind that was to be decided. We made democracy safe again, and there we are waiting for you.

"There was romance in the word 'Americain.' There was victory in your touch. Our peasants, as you know, are unlettered, yet they knew, too, what America meant.

"You Americans were fresh; we were tired. It cannot be described what you meant to us."

"There can be no estrangement of French and American hearts.

"Even if you had never come to us, we still should have loved you, because we are democracies. We have the same ideals. We hold no malice for your leaving us.

"I must not speak of politics, but I must speak what is in my heart. You came to us, and we were glad; you left us and we did not resent your going—we with 5,500,000 of our manhood destroyed. Think, gentlemen; had there been no war these millions would now have been living, working.

"I have learned much in your country. It is different from what it was fifty years ago when I was here. I have learned much, and when I return to France I shall tell my people to send many young men here."

At the end of his visit to the War College the officers of all ranks discarded their army dignity and gave the visitor three rousing cheers and a "tiger."

Trip to Mount Vernon.

After his address at the War College M. Clemenceau went to the Navy Yard to board the U. S. S. Sylph, the yacht of the Secretary of the Navy, to go to Mount Vernon. Ambassador Jusserand, who had been received at the dock with a salute and a guard of honor, was already on board.

The party had luncheon on board the Sylph and disembarked at Mount Vernon early in the afternoon. M. Clemenceau drove immediately to Washington's tomb and a wreath inscribed "Clemenceau" was added to others marked, "Joffre, Vivian, Foch, Balfour," and "Albert, King of the Belgians." He then went through the rooms of the mansion.

Probably the relic of greatest interest to the visiting Frenchman, who once spent two months in jail for opposition to royalty, was the key of the Bastille that Lafayette sent to Washington. He announced that he would send to Mount Vernon a golden medallion he had received shortly after the armistice from the City of Mulhouse, expressing gratitude of the liberated population of Alsace-Lorraine. This liberation having been accomplished in part by the American Army, M. Clemenceau said, "it seems fitting to place this medallion at Mount Vernon as a token of gratitude toward America and her valiant soldiers."

Address to Southern Society.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—M. Clemenceau's address to the Southern Society tonight was in the nature of a message to the South, since the former Premier was obliged to cancel his intended trip into that section. M. Clemenceau was presented to his audience by Hugh C. Wallace, former American Ambassador to France, and received an ovation.

In presenting M. Clemenceau, Mr. Wallace declared that Europe needed America now as she did five years ago and that most of all she needed present sympathy and support.

"Let us remember," he added, "that France and America, friends for over a century, are still friends and allies in all that will help in the betterment of the world, for the America of 1922 still thinks as she did in 1917, and her affection for France remains the same."

Asking his audience to think of the Clemenceau of 1918—"the man who was the heart and soul of France as she gathered herself for the supreme struggle on the Marne"—Mr. Wallace declared that "the recollection of that inspiring figure will not soon fade from the minds of men."

M. Clemenceau, as he stepped forward to speak, confronted an enthusiastic audience which crowded the hall to its capacity and greeted him with the rebel yell, mingled with applause. Joining in the applause were members of the Southern Congressional delegations on the floor and on the platform Senator Harris and former Senator Hoke Smith, both of Georgia. "Uncle Joe" Cannon and other notables, including Henry White, Ambassador Jusserand and Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, occupied a box.

The Tiger wore a lighter shade of gray gloves than usual and was attired in evening clothes. He moved with a sprightly step, despite his strenuous day, and gesticulated his determination to speak.

Earlier he had joined in the applause when Mrs. Maude Minor, National President of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in delivering an address of welcome, had paid a cordial tribute to France and said that France, England and America could bring perpetual peace to the world.

Mrs. Izetta J. Brown of West Virginia had added a further word of greeting from the D. A. R., mentioning the three countries, and Clemenceau, in beginning his address, said that in her reference to the three she had uttered his program.

"America gave her blood and money," he said. "I've come to ask you if you attained one aim. If you tell me you did, I'll stop.

"Did you come to save France?" he queried. "Did you come to save the world for democracy? Are you quite sure the democracy has been saved?"

The address was temporarily interrupted by a burst of applause and cheers when Clemenceau mentioned President Wilson and his fourteen points.

Referring to the newly liberated states in Europe, he declared they meant "a new Europe" and asserted that this called for revision of the Monroe Doctrine.

He was applauded again when he credited Woodrow Wilson largely with having brought about the liberation of the Central States of Europe.

But all that had been won in Asia already was lost, he continued, with "America on the other side of the ocean."

He attacked a recent cartoon picturing Uncle Sam at a hearty dinner while the European Powers, represented as dogs, were barking and fighting.

"I'd rather be the dog than the man at the table," he declared, "when it means that the dogs are fighting for the salvation of mankind."

M. Clemenceau declared he had no desire to tell the United States how she should act, but had come here merely to tell of the conditions in Europe.

"I am not responsible for those conditions," he said. "Who is responsible doesn't matter. Maybe we're all responsible. Certainly America is largely so.

"Sooner or later you have got to come back, and the sooner you do it, the less you will be compelled to do so.

"What I ask of you is a peace act," he said, "an act to make the Germans keep peace and to make sure that they pay."

M. Clemenceau concluded with the assertion that whether America came back to Europe or not, France always would love her.

"But of one thing I am sure," he declared, "if you don't come back, sometime there will come a day when you will regret it."

During the day the former Premier received from a delegation of negroes of Washington a basket of roses and an engrossed parchment expressing good-will. The presentation was made at the White home by a delegation headed by Dr. Emmet J. Scott, Secretary-Treasurer of Howard University, and during the war a special assistant to the Secretary of War.

The only event on the Tiger's program for Thursday is a luncheon at the White House as President Harding's guest, and the one event scheduled for Friday is his formal address under the auspices of the Chautauqua and Lyceum Association.

Clemenceau will leave Washington Friday night for Philadelphia, where he will deliver an address Saturday. Leaving Philadelphia Saturday night, he will make a leisurely jaunt back to Chicago, arriving Monday for an address. He will return at once to New York, arriving late the afternoon of Tuesday, and will sail for France next Wednesday.

The Bowery and Its Bank

IN the early days of Dutch New York, there were, on the East Side, several large outlying farms or Bouweries. A country road led from the village to these farms. This was called the Bouwerie Lane. Under English rule, it became The Bowery Road, and in 1807, a street, the Bowery.

One of the oldest and greatest Institutions of New York was founded on the Bowery, in the populous district where, one hundred years ago, there were shipyards, machine shops and an extensive population of working people.

In 1834 some of the most prominent and benevolent citizens, without pay or privilege, founded this Institution, which has grown to be a fortress of Utmost Safety, for the Savings of the people.

Conceived in the rarest spirit of usefulness, it has grown from small beginnings until it is one of the great pillars of our City's pride.

This is The Bowery Savings Bank

A new chapter of its history is being written.

It has erected a fine Office Building on 42d Street opposite the Grand Central Station, in which a Branch of its business will be located.

FREE STATE BEGINS IN BUSINESS FASHION

TRICOLOR FLIES OFFICIALLY

BRITAIN SENDS GREETING

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Dec. 6.—Without ostentation, the Irish Free State came into existence today. Here and there the orange, white and green floated over Government buildings and a special issue of postage stamps was made, but whatever may have been the inward emotions of the citizens they gave no visible sign that this day, portentous as it was for Ireland, differed from any other.

In the late afternoon I visited the Vice-Regal Lodge, to be met at the closed gates by a policeman, who said: "We are expecting Tim (Gov. Gen. Healy) at any moment now to take over." The flagstaff from which had flapped the Union Jack for so many years was bare, waiting for the tricolor to be run up.

There is certainly a big fast in front of the Free State, and even though the opinion is prevalent generally that the worst of its troubles have been surmounted, there is recognition that the revolt has not been completely suppressed, which induced a sober bearing toward this momentous day. The struggles of the past three years have resulted in tempering optimism with a certain amount of cautiousness.

Officially the Free State's establishment was proclaimed in Ireland at the private residence of Tim Healy at Chapelizod—who at the same time and place was formally appointed Governor General and sworn in this afternoon by the Lord Chief Justice.

Under a strong escort William Cosgrave, President of the Cabinet, accompanied by other Ministers and the Speaker of the Dail, drove to the Healy house. The ceremony took place in the dining room, members of Mr. Healy's family being present in addition to three military officers, one of whom is aide de camp to the Governor General. Lord Chief Justice Moloney read the King's proclamation and next administered the oath to Mr. Healy. The latter afterward swore in Speaker Hayes, and then the health and prosperity of the Free State, the Governor General and the President of the Cabinet were pledged in a glass of wine.

Later at the Dail there was an unusually full attendance of members, some of whom were in uniform, but there were notable absences. Special precautions were taken to prevent any Republican outrage and no person was allowed in the public gallery.

Mr. Cosgrave was the first Deputy to take the oath, and one of the last was General McKeon, famous as the blacksmith of Ballinalee. The Labor members all accepted the oath, but when the formality was completed Mr. Johnson, their Chairman, read a statement explaining that in doing so they were following the political tactics of every country in the world where capitalism existed. The oath implied no obligation, he said, other than the obligation of any person who accepts the privilege of citizenship.

Cosgrave Appeals for Union.

The election of Mr. Cosgrave as President of the Cabinet was received with applause, and the quietude of the small House was impressive as he rose to make his address. As always, his face was pale and his tone so quiet that at moments his voice was almost inaudible. That he regarded the event as epoch-making was shown by the fact that he had written his speech, and he read it with great care. He deplored the opposition with which they had met and which had caused them to dissipate their strength and finances, and he went on to pay a tribute to the British attitude.

"From the hour that the British were committed to the Treaty," he said, "they have never tried to whittle down one iota of what was due to us. They stood by the spirit and the letter of it with a scrupulousness which has been undeviating."

The deputies leaned forward in their seats to catch his every word, and his voice was raised slightly as he read a telegram he had just received from Bonar Law, conveying good wishes to the Free State and an assurance that the British Government would do all in their power to further their common interests.

"The Free State, continued the President, was another nation admitted to take her place in what was formerly an empire, but was now a free partnership, and I hope it will open the eyes of our opponents and make them realize that they must be dreaming and that freedom is in their hands," he said.

The President extended a friendly hand to Ulster, denying any intention to employ coercive measures. "I hope we will come in with the rest of the Irish nation," he said, "and share in the government as well as in the prosperity that will flow into the union."

He then nominated his Cabinet, which is the same as in the Provisional Government.

While the Dail was sitting protective steps were unobtrusively strengthened and the minutest scrutiny of all civilians was maintained, while in the streets outside a patrol consisting of officers and a party of troops lined both sides of the road.

Speaker Administers the Oath.

DUBLIN, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Inauguration of the Irish Free State as one of the Dominions of the British Empire took place today. The ceremony was simple and unmarred by hostile demonstrations from the Republican minority.

There were no crowds outside the Parliament house when the Dail met tonight. The Ministers and others connected with the Government made their way to the Parliament chamber by a private entrance from the adjoining Government offices, and no visitors were admitted.

The members assembled punctually at 8 P. M. William T. Cosgrave, President of the Dail Cabinet, now in effect Prime Minister of the Free State, and Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Home Affairs and nephew of the new Governor General, were among the first arrivals, and occupied the same seats as in the old Dail Eireann. At 8:10 o'clock Speaker Hayes announced that he was authorized by the Governor General to administer the oath to the Deputies.

Mr. Cosgrave was the first one to be sworn and to sign the roll. The oath covers allegiance primarily to the Constitution of the Irish Free State and secondarily to King George as the head of the peoples forming the British Commonwealth.

Mr. O'Higgins and the other Ministers took the oath in turn, followed by the members of the Dail. The oath was taken in each case in individually and most of the repetitions were audible throughout the chamber. Some of the military members, including Defense Minister Mulcahy, were in uniform.

When the ceremony was completed, Speaker Hayes was re-elected Speaker and Mr. Cosgrave was re-elected President of the Cabinet.

Patrick O'Maille was elected Deputy Speaker.

Only two of the five Irish signatories of the treaty, Eamonn J. Sugan and George Gavan Duffy, took the oath. Of the others, Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins are dead, and Robert C. Barton is in jail as a rebel.

All the Labor members were present and took the oath, with the exception of M. Gallagher, member for Carlow, who was the only member of the Dail to vote against the Constitution. He is expected to refuse to take the oath, thus leaving his constituency unrepresented.

Cathal O'Shannon, editor of The Voice of Labor, and noted for his advanced views, was one of those sworn in. Lord Mayor O'Neill of Dublin was absent because of illness. Another absentee was Eamon de Roiste (William Roebuck), member for Cork City. He has been a supporter of the treaty, and is considered as certain to take the oath later.

General McKeown, who has been conducting the Free State in many operations in the provinces and has not been in Dublin recently, appeared and took the oath. He was in uniform.

Mr. Cosgrave, in acknowledging his election as President of the Cabinet, received an ovation. He began his address with an expression of regret that twelve months, which might have been spent in securing the fruits of England's struggle, had been wasted in realizing what he termed the sad effects of those who had called upon the people to throw aside those fruits and re-enter battle.

Mr. Cosgrave paid warm tribute to the British, who, he said, when the treaty was signed, never had what to subtitle it down one iota, but had stood by the letter and spirit of their bargain with scrupulous and undeviating good faith. He then read the following telegram from Andrew Bonar Law, the British Prime Minister:

"On the inauguration of the Irish Free State I desire, on behalf of my colleagues and myself, to convey to you a message of greeting and good-will. You may be assured that we, on our side, will do all that lies in our power to further the common interests that we both have in view—peace and prosperity to Ireland and lasting concord between the two countries."

Mr. Cosgrave in his address dwelt on the full powers given to Ireland by the treaty and the acknowledgment of the fact by the British statesmen. As regards Northeast Ulster, he said the people there were bound by the treaty in honor, and their Northern policy must be continued in accordance with it. He pointed out numerous advantages to Northeast Ulster by coming into the Free State, but said that if Ulster remained out the treaty clearly provided what was to happen, and he would act accordingly, not forgetting the solemn pledges to large sections of the six counties which desire to enter the Free State, as had been proved by the recent elections in Tyrone and Fermanagh.

The whole tenor of the President's reference to Ulster was quiet and conciliatory.

Minister of Defense—RICHARD MULCAHY.
Minister of Education—Professor JOHN MacNEILL.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—DESMOND FITZGERALD.

Thirty Senators Named.

Parliament has the duty of nominating all the Ministers not members of the Executive Council, and will do so through committee representation by all sections of the Chamber. The Ministries not in the Cabinet will be Agriculture, Fisheries and Post Office. In addition, there will be an Assistant Minister of Labor, an Industries Commissioner and one liaison officer between the lower house and the Senate.

An interesting feature of the proceedings was the disappearance of Mr. Cosgrave after his election and the postponing of his speech for half an hour. On the return of the President to the Chamber an explanation of his absence was given. This was to the effect that Governor General Healy had approved his appointment.

Mr. Cosgrave later announced his list of thirty nominations of Senators. The more prominent of those named by him were the Earl of Granard, the Earl of Wicklow, the Earl of Kerry, the Marquis of Headfort, Baron Cheaney, the Earl of Mayo, the Earl of Dunraven, General Sir Bryan Mahon, Sir Horace Plunkett, Sir Thomas Esmonde, Martin Fitzgerald of The Freeman's Journal, Henry Guinness, a Governor of the Bank of Ireland; Dr. George Sigerson, Professor of Biology, University of Dublin, and William Butler Yeats, the poet.

The President included in his nominations the Dowager Countess of Desart and Mrs. Wyse Power.

The Dail will elect the remaining thirty Senators for the first Parliament. For these Senatorships there are more than eighty candidates.

When the Senate is constituted later in the week both houses will be addressed by Governor General Healy in the King's speech, which will be composed, according to constitutional practice, by the Irish Cabinet.

The House adjourned at 8 o'clock this afternoon until tomorrow.

Press Greets the New Order.

The newspapers editorially refer to the birth of the Free State in a hopeful spirit. The Freeman's Journal, remarking that the Irish Free State begins life today under a constitution of Irish manufacture, adds:

"All intrigues to make trouble over the new instrument of the Irish Government fell to the ground on the realization that the British Parliament, despite all the supremacy claimed for it, could not change a word or phrase in an Irish-made constitution without Ireland's consent. The much-abused treaty has disestablished that domination and made Ireland supreme in mastery of her own affairs. Today begins the exercise of that mastery."

The Irish Independent says that the old and bad order completely disappears with the inauguration of the new Government.

"The Viceroyalty and the Lord Chancellorship are abolished, and the entire machinery of the Administration, as well as the sole law-making power within the Free State is in the hands of Irishmen themselves."

The newspaper considers that the men who were in charge of affairs during the transitional period, although comparatively young, have shown wonderful constructive ability. "As time goes on," the newspaper says, "our Parliament will, we are sure, set an example to other assemblies by wise and progressive legislation."

The Irish Times says that the Irish people, by their own deliberate choice, set to their own resources to make their own laws and shape their progress.

"Their future will be what they choose to make it," this journal declares, "and the honor of success or the shame of failure will fall upon themselves. Within the next couple of years—for these must be critical years—they will confound or justify the prophets of evil."

The Irish Times continues with the assertion that the infant State enjoys the confidence of Great Britain, the British Empire and the whole world.

Mr. Harvey, the United States Ambassador, says that America stands ready to help in every possible way, the newspaper says, and asks whether Irishmen will be able to apply to their own needs the purpose, vision and force of character which the Government demands.

No signs of activity on the part of the Republicans had appeared up to a late hour, but all the roads leading to Dublin were being patrolled by Free State forces. A special aid squadron also was on scout duty in order to be ready for any possible developments.

King's Proclamation Issued.

LONDON, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—A historic Privy Council, held in Buckingham Palace this morning, dealt chiefly with the establishment of Ireland as an independent commonwealth within the British Empire.

King George signed a proclamation giving effect to the new Irish Free State Act, also a proclamation appointing Timothy M. Healy as the first Governor-General of Ireland.

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

Drying-Poles
One of the inconveniences of the Arctic is that there is no place where things may safely be left. The omnivorous dogs devour clothing or boots left on the ground and the treeless waste offers no hanging place. Racks and poles are set up near dwellings and boots and clothing dried on them in the sunshine. The poles are imported on the trading schooner like all other building material.

WALKER ELECTRIC TRUCKS

You'll Know Them by Their Steel Disc Wheels

"The most conspicuous performance of our electrics was last Winter during the heavy snow storm, at which time most of the gasoline trucks in the city were stalled. While the going was difficult, we were able to make our deliveries."

JUDICIAL CANDIDATE GOT KU KLUX THREAT

DEMANDED THAT HE QUIT

Prosecutor Gets Evidence—Haywood Asserts He Is Being Followed.

The first tangible evidence to show that members of the Ku Klux Klan have made threats against any one in New York City was received by Acting District Attorney Pecora yesterday. It was a copy of a letter, the original of which is available, sent to Edward S. Brogan, former Assistant District Attorney, when he was a candidate in the last primaries for the office of Judge of General Session. The letter did not come from Mr. Brogan, who is now in Canada.

It was a photostatic copy, showing the imposing letterhead of the Klan, and purported to be from Klan No. 21, that being the only signature attached to it. In it Mr. Brogan was referred to as "a low kneeler to the Pope of Rome," and ordered him to withdraw from the campaign. The letter follows:

"The Most Sublime Lineage in All History, Commemorating and Perpetuating as it does The Most Dauntless Organization Known to Man."
IMPERIAL PALACE
KNIGHTS OF THE KU KLUX KLAN
Incorporated.
ATLANTA, GEORGIA.
Department of Propagation
Office of
IMPERIAL KLEAGLE.
KLAN NO. 51, NEW YORK.

Edward S. Brogan,
Columbus Circle,
New York City.
Sir:

Your persecutions of the Ku Klux Klan has reached its limit. We have stood silently by while you maligned us through one campaign. Now it must cease.

You have been posing as a man unprejudiced by religious prejudices while you always been a low kneeler to the pope of Rome. It is to him you owe allegiance not to your people or your flag. Now your duplicity must end.

Immediately upon received this communication you will withdraw from the present campaign and leave the way clear to a real man.

This will be our sole warning unless you immediately drop from the race we shall force you to do so even though it be our first public act in New York.

Beware, you have been warned.
KNIGHTS OF THE KU KLUX KLAN,
KLAN 21.

— Brogan Out Early in Race. —

The letter to Mr. Brogan was first shown to Judge Francis X. Mancuso, who on Monday charged two Grand Juries for December to investigate the activities of the Klan. While he would not comment on the letter, it is known that Judge Mancuso believes it of sufficient importance to be placed before the Grand Jury. Mr. Pecora is now attempting to find the headquarters of Lodge No. 21, and Lodge No. 51, which is mentioned in the letterhead.

Mr. Brogan ran in the election of 1921 for Judge of General Sessions on an independent platform, announcing himself as "Anti-Ku Klux Klan." He did not get very far in the primaries, but in the last election entered the Democratic primaries. The letter was written on Sept. 19, which was primary day. He didn't pay much attention to the letter, apparently, and nothing happened to him because he was eliminated from the campaign in the primary.

"This is the first bit of tangible evidence of the Klan making a threat which we have received," said Mr. Pecora. "They sent this letter to Mr. Brogan and practically told him to get out of the race for General Sessions Judge. This is a copy of the letter, but I understand we can have the original by issuing a subpoena for it. I notice that there is a discrepancy in the letter. It is headed 'Klan No. 51' and signed 'Klan No. 21.' That may be a mistake.

May Call Haywood.

"I have also heard that threats were used in recruiting new members, and I am investigating the methods employed in the recruiting during the past month. Several men who were asked to join the Klan have offered to come in and tell me what they know about its methods. If I learn that threats were contained in any other Klan letters I may find grounds for taking some definite action. I have heard of other acts by members of the Klan in New York, which indicate that they have violated the law on a number of occasions. I had rather not mention the character of these acts at present, as to do so might hamper our investigation. The acts were all of one kind and were committed, I understand, three or four times recently.

"I will probably invite the Rev. Oscar Haywood to come down here and tell us what he knows, but before doing that I want to learn all I can about the Klan and its activities."

Dr. Haywood smiled when told of the letter and said:

"That was not written by any member of the Klan. It is a part of the campaign of propaganda being waged against us. The Klan does not violate the law, does not attack any one. Some persons have done criminal things in the guise of Klan members and we have secured proof of that several times."

Dr. Haywood became very solemn as he reflected a moment, and added:

"I have been threatened myself. They have been following me."

He seemed disinclined to expatiate on the subject, but when he was pressed for details said he had received two threatening letters.

Trailed, Says Haywood.

"One was from a negro and was signed 'Chief of the Gunmen,'" said Dr. Haywood, pursing his lips and rocking back and forth on his toes. "He said he had 600 gunmen who were after me. However, I have only one life to lose, and I might as well die in a good cause."

"But the other letter, was that from a white man?"

"Yes," he assented. "He didn't make any particular threat. He seemed to be a sort of religionist. He didn't say so, but I should judge he was a Catholic. It was a general attack."

"And how about 'they' who are following you?" Dr. Haywood was asked.

"A man followed me one night," he continued slowly and with what dignity a man could muster with pants and coat clapped on hurriedly over his pajamas.

"We tested him," he went on. "I had two assistants with me and we tested him. After we had walked a way we stopped on a corner and the man stopped. Then I went up to him and said: 'What did you want?' 'I don't want anything—yet,' he answered. Then I said: 'You were following me.' And he said: 'I wasn't following you.' And I told him never to follow me again and I haven't seen him since."

The doctor paused a moment before going on to tell of the other man who followed him. This was a big burly, rough looking fellow.

"He followed me up in the elevator one night," said Dr. Haywood. "He got out and started to follow me around the corridor and the girl at the desk stopped him. He asked her if that was my room I was going to, but she stopped him. I think he was a Jew. He sent up word that a friend wanted to see me in the lobby, but I didn't go down. They have threatened me, as I said."

"Who do you mean by 'they'?"

"Oh, no organization in particular, just those who are against us."

Dr. Haywood was asked if he knew how many Klans there were in New York, so that it might be judged as to whether or not the No. 21, signed to the Brogan letter, was among the number of organizations in existence.

"I don't know anything about the Klan in New York," he replied. "I don't know whether there is a Klan in New York or not. I don't know and haven't spoken to a single man since I have been here."

"Why are you called organizer, then?"

"They don't know any better, don't know what they are talking about."

ASKS HOUSE KLAN INQUIRY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Investigation of Ku Klux Klan activities by a House committee which would be directed to "recommend, if necessary, proper disciplinary action," was proposed in a resolution introduced today by Representative Ryan, Republican, of New York.

The resolution also called for an examination of the financial condition of the organization, "in order that just and proper returns be filed with the collectors of internal revenue," and provided that all such organizations must file with the Postmaster General semi-annually the names and addresses of officers and members.

The resolution called the Klan "un-American," and asserted it had expended "large sums for the building of palaces" and had issued "propaganda of religious bigotry and racial hatred."

GALE SWEEPS UP-STATE.

Two Barges Sunk in Oneida Lake—Crews Rescued.

ALBANY, Dec. 6.—Gales and snow flurries swept Northern New York late yesterday and early today, bringing the first real Winter weather of the year. In Albany the wind dropped to twenty miles an hour, according to official Weather Bureau figures, but Schenectady, Gloversville, Port Henry, Saranac Lake and Ogdensburg reported gales. At Ogdensburg the wind approximated sixty miles an hour and caused a suspension of navigation. Ferry service was suspended at points along the St. Lawrence for a time.

Three grain barges, blown aground on Oneida Lake, were being battered to pieces today on Verona Beach, near Oneida. State troopers had assisted in the rescue of Frank Boswell and Charles Lawyer, two of the crew employed on the barges. Both are at the hospital at Oneida. Three other members of the crew were taken off in mid-lake by the steamer Martin H. Glynn, towing the fleet. Five barges were in the fleet and two were sunk in mid-lake.

WOMAN'S ANNOYER FINED.

She Follows Him From Theatre and Causes His Arrest.

Howard Carson, 18 years old, who said he was a salesman living at 38 West Sixty-fifth Street, was fined $5 by Magistrate Edward Weil in Night Court yesterday on the complaint of Miss Leona Du Veaux of 540 West 144th Street for annoying her in the Strand Theatre.

Miss Du Veaux told the Magistrate that Carson seated himself beside her and annoyed her. Then he rose and started out. She followed him and when he went up the aisle toward the exit he was surprised, she said, to find her hand resting lightly on his shoulder. He didn't mind, Miss Du Veaux said, until she called a doorman and turned Carson over to him. Patrolman William Fowler of the West Forty-seventh Street Station arrested Carson on a charge of disorderly conduct. He paid the fine after denying the charge.

Gadski is scheduled to sing in concert on Monday. She came here to face a Legion committee and deny accusations of pro-Germanism, but was unable to arrange a meeting.

Isle of Pines Treaty Taken Up After 18 Years in the Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—After an eighteen years' sleep in a Senate Committee room pigeonhole, the Isle of Pines treaty with Cuba, submitted to the Senate by former President Roosevelt, emerged from its retirement today and was reported favorably by the Foreign Relations Committee. Action at this time was requested by Secretary of State Hughes, who said he desired to clear up the old question.

The treaty relinquishes any claim of the United States to the island, which is about fifty miles off the Cuban mainland. Its ratification has been opposed in the past by Americans having investments on the island.

The Isle of Pines was not specifically mentioned in the treaty which gave Porto Rico to the United States and to settle the island's status the treaty was negotiated.

Democratic committee members voted to report the treaty today, but with reservations for information as to why Secretary Hughes was now pressing for ratification after the lapse of nearly two decades.

A Sale of Crombie Ulsters

The genuine Crombie fabrics from Scotland and in the heaviest weights—38 to 40 ounces

$68 for the $90 grade

When you say "it's a Crombie," you have said the last word in overcoat fabrics. There is none better; none, we believe, so good. Crombies are held in the overcoat market like pearls on Maiden Lane—always at par. To get Crombie fabrics at an off price is something that happens only once in a blue moon.

Yet, the finest and heaviest Crombies are here in this sale of ulsters; and all of the ulsters are made of Crombie overcoatings; not just a few mixed in with other fabrics to give "class," as is often done in other sales.

18 Patterns to choose from

Hand-tailored, of course

Every ulster is strictly tailored according to Wanamaker specifications, the highest in America for ready-to-wear clothing.

Town Ulsters and Storm Ulsters

There are two models, both double breasted—one a town ulster, and the other a storm ulster that is a little roomier.

All lined with Skinner's finest satin.

These ulsters represent the greatest value in luxury overcoats that has yet been offered—make the most of the opportunity while it lasts.

JUDGE BARS BROKER FROM WIFE'S STREET

Husband Ordered to Keep Off a White Plains Thoroughfare for a Year.

SHE SAYS HE ANNOYED HER

He Will Have to Climb a Fence to Get Into the Public Library.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 6.—City Judge Holden today ordered Edmund J. Ryan, a Wall Street stock broker, not to put a foot on Grand Street, White Plains, where his wife resides, for one year. This Court direction came after Judge Holden had found Ryan, who is reported to have an income of $15,000 a year, guilty on his wife's complaint of disorderly conduct and intoxication. He also placed him on probation for one year with County Probation Officer Decker, with a provision to pay his wife $65 a week for her support and that of their three children. Ryan will be permitted to see his children at some place away from Grand Street to be arranged by the probation officer.

Mrs. Ryan resides at 37 Grand Street and her husband lives on Oraswampum Street, a few blocks away. The Court in ordering Ryan to keep off of Grand Street expressed a desire to prevent him from annoying his wife. Town humorists are now wondering what the police will do if they are ever called upon to arrest Ryan again, because Police Headquarters is on Grand Street and so is Judge Holden's office. In order to reach the police station and yet follow the court order to the letter, Ryan would have to climb over a fence in the back yard and go through the rear door. If Mr. Ryan should desire to visit the city's public library, which is also on Grand Street, he would have to jump over a high fence on the adjoining street and enter by a side door. There is also a steep hill back of the Ryan home on Grand Street, so he would have to be rated as a good climber to reach the kitchen door of his wife's home.

Ryan was arrested on Thanksgiving afternoon while he was making his customary visit to his children. Mrs. Ryan said he was intoxicated and annoyed her. Ryan said his wife met him in the back yard and told him he had not given her any money for several weeks. He says he tried to walk toward the street through the automobile driveway and that his wife continually got in front of him, and a quarrel followed. He says a neighbor appeared on the scene and he said to the man: "What right have you to inject yourself in this conversation between my wife and myself?" Then a fight followed, and Ryan said he was knocked down.

Former City Judge Morthmer J. O'Brien, who appeared for the broker, told Judge Holden that if he sent his client to jail it would bring a stigma on his children and that probation and keeping off Grand Street would be the best justice.

COLOMBIA GETS $5,000,000.

First Check on Account of $25,000,000 Given by United States.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The United States today gave the Republic of Colombia a check for $5,000,000, its first payment under the $25,000,000 treaty ratified in 1921 to cover certain damages incurred in the construction of the Panama Canal.

The payment was due Sept. 30, but for some unexplained reason Colombia was not ready to receive it until today.

Under the treaty the remaining payments will be made yearly in $5,000,000 sums.

If M. Stergiadis does not reply to a summons ordering him to stand trial in Athens he will be tried in absentia, the dispatch adds.

CITY FINDS MONEY TO SUPPORT CHARITY

Fee of $25,000 for Transit Service Held Back—Pension Funds Taken Care Of.

The Board of Estimate found enough money yesterday to make up the deficiencies existing in the charitable institutions and various pension funds which have to be met by the end of the year. The five Borough Presidents, who worked as a committee on ways and means, reported that enough money had been found with $48,000 to spare. This amount will be applied to the tax deficit. Next year the board will have to make up a deficiency of about $2,000,000.

"After the first of the year," said Borough President Riegelmann of Brooklyn, "I expect the Controller will feel good and will dig up a ton of money."

The Corporation Counsel's office made a sacrifice to help out the situation this year. Fees for special counsel to the amount of $37,374.59 will be held over. It was brought out that the city still owes United States Senator Hiram Johnson $25,000 for special work done regarding traction matters.

"We are not going to California and advise Senator Johnson to put in his bill before January 1," was the way President Riegelmann put it in explaining that the California Senator would have to wait for his money. The total deficiency, exclusive of the tax deficiency, amounted to $794,897.47. Of this amount $427,612.74 is to be financed after the first of the year. Besides the $37,000 for special counsel fees in the Corporation Counsel's office, which will go over, is an item of $25,000 for telephone investigating expenses and $10,000 for expenses in telephone and transit matters.

Wherever it was possible public work was put off until next year. This item amounted to about $122,000. From water revenues another $98,000 was picked up. The Board of Education came along with an item of $225,000. Various departments swelled the amount by $33,000. The total amount of money saved to wipe out the deficiencies was $851,356.47.

"We are getting by this year," remarked President Riegelmann hopefully. "Next year the sun may shine."

WARNING ON HARD COAL.

Woodlin's Aid Tells Fuel Chiefs Anthracite Supply Is Limited.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 6.—Utter impossibility of securing a 100-per cent. supply of anthracite was emphasized by G. N. Snyder, on the staff of William H. Woodin, State Fuel Administrator, at a conference of Fuel Administrators of the Fifth and Sixth Judicial Districts here today.

The outlook at present is for a six months or 60 per cent. supply, he stated, with a leeway of 10 per cent. additional if conditions are favorable for mining and transportation.

"There will be plenty of fuel, but not plenty of anthracite," he told County and District Administrators. "That can be interpreted in different ways by consumers, but this fact cannot be changed—there will not be enough hard coal."

Discussion of the situation in the two districts found opinions of the officials about alike in that distribution was as even as could be expected and fairly impartial. A remark ascribed to Mr. Woodin that "evenly distributed complaints show evenly distributed anthracite," seemed to fit the situation, it was decided.

There was some discussion of a proposal to establish a regulation making consumers buy a certain proportion of substitutes with every ton of anthracite. Mr. Snyder denied Canada was getting more than its usual share of coal.

The general conclusion arrived at in the conference was that the problem was one calling for education of consumers to the facts and securing their co-operation in making available anthracite supplies go as far as possible.

COAL CRISIS ACUTE; CONFERENCE CALLED

tricts which lack fuel. One thousand tons of coal destined for Brooklyn reached New York Harbor yesterday and was immediately delivered to dealers in localities where an acute shortage was reported. This shipment was known as "emergency coal" and not counted in the allotment for Brooklyn. Similar shipments are en route.

Reports of Profiteering.

Reports of profiteering continued to reach the fuel administration offices yesterday. Each complaint will receive consideration. On the east side a number of the so-called cellar dealers were reported to be selling coal in 100-pound bags at prices 25 per cent. more than the price fixed by the administration. Prices in many parts of the city on domestic size coal were reported very high. In some of the outlying districts it was said that dealers were asking $22 a ton for a poor grade of household fuel. Some of the small coal peddlers said they had to sell fuel at from $1 to $1.05 a hundred pounds in order to make any profit, as they were being charged as high as $17.75 and $18 a ton.

"Owing to the shortage of coal," Street Cleaning Commissioner Taylor said yesterday in an order to district superintendents and dump inspectors, "it is the intention to furnish wood to all those desiring to take advantage of the opportunity of carting or carrying it away from the department dumps.

"Accordingly, you are hereby directed to arrange to have all the wooden boxes and barrels that are hauled by the department vehicles deposited at a location adjoining the local dumping boards where it will be safe to store it and also convenient to be placed on trucks or other vehicles to be carted away by the people applying for it from day to day."

Where Wood May be Obtained.

ENGINEERS DRAW UP COAL SAVING RULES

Explain Use of Substitutes and Care of Furnace to Get the Best Results.

Professor L. P. Breckenridge of Yale University, who presided yesterday at the session of the Fuels Division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers which is holding its forty-third annual meeting at the Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, said that while State and individual must conserve anthracite coal this Winter, there should be no real suffering if every one co-operated in a careful use of substitutes.

"There is no question but there will be a shortage of hard coal in the larger sizes," said Professor Breckenridge. This shortage must be shared by the various States, each taking a lesser amount than usual of anthracite and each using substitutes to make up the remainder. Consumers will be wise to provide themselves with at least 20 per cent. of their fuel supply in the form of substitutes, such as small sizes of anthracite, coke, wood or bituminous coal.

In a set of rules for the use of anthracite, care of the furnace and the burning of substitutes the Fuels Division points out that gas coke is a good substitute used in connection with anthracite pea or buckwheat coal; that block wood is also good in the same connection but requires more attention than coke; that bituminous coal can be used in most furnaces which are constructed to burn anthracite. Bituminous coal requires more attention than hard coal, and without this care will give out less heat.

At the business session of the society Calvin W. Rice, the Secretary, delivered an address which he described as a report to American engineers of his recent visit to South America, where he participated in the International engineering congress held at the Centennial Exposition at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Mr. Rice said that three definite steps had been achieved toward unity of the Americas, North and South. "First," he said, "action has been taken toward effecting a permanent organization to carry out the plans of the congress at Rio. Second, a standardization bureau, as suggested by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, is to be established in every Pan-American country. Third, the dream of a transcontinental railway is approaching the stage of reality. A meeting to further this project will be called by the nations of Pan-America."

Last night the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held a joint meeting with the American Economic Association at the Engineering Building. E. M. Herr, President of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and Professor Wesley C. Mitchell of Columbia University were the principal speakers.

Mr. Herr's topic was "The Human Problem in Industry." Professor Mitchell said that American business men were producing grave national consequences by subordinating the making of goods to the making of money.

The society will hold its concluding sessions today. Tonight there will be a dinner at the Hotel Astor.

MOLTKE IN MEMOIRS CRITICISES WILLIAM

CHIEF IRRITATED BY ACTS

BERLIN, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—The former Kaiser's repeated interference with the plans of the German General Staff during the mobilization days of 1914 bobs to the surface time after time in the introductory chapter of Lieut. Gen. Count von Moltke's "Memoirs," just published by his widow.

The impression given by the former Chief of Staff in his book is that William was anxious to avoid drawing England into the fray, and that, contrary to the view of the General Staff, he believed France would remain neutral in the contemplated Russo-German hostilities.

Thus the Kaiser is pictured as favoring a policy virtually ignoring the western front for the sake of war in the east, in direct contradiction to the plans of his military experts, which had for years been based upon the possibility of a campaign on both fronts.

Count von Moltke, as head of the staff, naturally had to bear the brunt of this opposition, and his memoirs show that he smarted keenly under it. Then he pointed out that forced marching of massed troops to the east, such as the Emperor desired, would result in a "wobegone conglomeration of disorganized, armed human beings without training," the Kaiser responded cuttingly: "Your uncle would have given me a different answer."

Again, when the staff emphasized the need of the Luxembourg railways for mobilization purposes, the Kaiser and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg objected the plan, lest the seizure constitute a threat against France in the eyes of England. Such seizure, says von Moltke, was contemplated as part of the first day's mobilization program.

"We had to secure the Luxembourg railways unconditionally against seizure by France," he wrote, "since we needed them in our advance."

In view, however, of the reported assurance that England would guarantee French neutrality, the staff's plan was momentarily cast overboard, and, adds von Moltke, "while I stood by, the Kaiser, without asking me, turned to the Adjutant serving him and ordered him immediately to telegraph that the Sixteenth Division at Trier (Treves) was not to march into Luxembourg. It seemed as if my heart would break."

This original order was transmitted by telephone, and von Moltke proceeds to relate how he stolidly refused to sign a telegram intended to confirm the telephonic message.

Them moirs fail to make definitely clear the author of the dispatch from London referring to England's position with reference to the naval attack on France on which these early preparations were allegedly pivoted.

Von Moltke wanted to offer Belgium recompense for permitting the Germany army to cross her territory, the memoirs indicate, but he was apparently blocked in this plan by the Foreign Office.

"The possibility that Belgium would protest against our marching through, but would not oppose it by force of arms, was reckoned with," he wrote. "This was dealt with in a statement which I drafted to be sent to the Belgian Government and which guaranteed the King (of Belgium) the stability of the monarchy.

"Consideration of territorial extension for Belgium in the event of her friendly accommodation, which was also contained in the same statement, was rejected by the Foreign Office."

OIL TANKS MENACED BY $250,000 FIRE

Menacing for more than an hour six nearby oil tanks of the Tidewater Oil Company, a spectacular fire late yesterday afternoon destroyed the woodworking mill of the Consumers Coal and Ice Company at Fifty-second Street and Avenue E, Bayonne, N. J. Traffic on the main line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which passes the plant, was tied up for fifty minutes, half of the city was thrown into darkness by the destruction of electric light wires, and local and trunk telephone service was interrupted for a time when the wires were severed by falling poles.

The entire Fire Department of Bayonne, consisting of six engine companies, two trucks and an auxiliary emergency company, was called to fight the flames, which were seen for miles around. Chief Alfred Davis said that on his arrival it seemed as if it would be impossible to save the oil tanks, on which showers of sparks were falling.

The fire started in the dry kiln room of the plant. Stored in the building were thousands of feet of cured timber, which the flames consumed in a few minutes. A general alarm was immediately turned in because of the proximity to the oil tanks.

Employes of the Tidewater Company, whose stores and oil base are about 800 feet from the lumber mill, facing on New York Bay, turned out and wet down the tanks, all of which were said to be filled. A brisk north wind wafted the sparks over to the oil plant as well as the factory of the Bayonne Supply Company, manufacturers of plumbing material. Three engine companies joined in pumping a constant flood of water over the tanks and on adjoining meadows which caught afire when sparks settled in the dry grass.

The section where the fire raged is residential as well as manufacturing. Many families gathered their valuables and left their homes in the fear that the oil in the tanks would be ignited. There was also the danger that the wind would veer around, endangering the blocks of wooden houses. Police sought to allay the fears of the householders when the firemen got the fire under control and most of the residents returned to their homes. Employes at the Tidewater Company said they were in readiness to draw off the tanks had the necessity arisen.

A telephone pole on which were strung the cables of the Bell Telephone Company's main trunk lines to Washington and points South was burned down and service was interrupted for several hours until an emergency repair crew could be brought from the city. Electric light service was resumed during the evening when repairs were made.

INQUEST ON PRINCE'S DEATH

Husband of Detroit Woman on Whom He Called Exonerated.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Dec. 6.—Wesley H. Pett was exonerated from blame for the death of Frederick W. Prince of Montclair, N. J., publicity agent for the Western Electric Company, who died in a hallway outside of the apartment of Pett's wife on the night of Nov. 22, by a coroner's jury this afternoon.

The county physicians differed as to whether Prince's death could have been caused by a blow. Prince was found dying after Pett had broken in the door of his wife's apartment while she was entertaining friends, including Prince. Pett admitted that he had struck one of them, but denied he was Prince.

If you are a constipation victim you need Bran that is ALL BRAN

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is so delicious and inviting that thousands of families use it constantly to make enticing bakery batches, such as bran muffins, pancakes, raisin bread, etc.; they eat it as a cereal, and many sprinkle it on their favorite cereal, its nut-like flavor having a fine appeal.

Many more thousands of people eat Kellogg's Bran every day of their lives because it has permanently relieved them of constipation and the dangers of dreaded diseases that constipation leads to. If you are suffering with constipation you need ALL BRAN—Kellogg's Bran—with its permanent corrective qualities. Foods that are part bran can never give the desired relief because they do not contain sufficient of the elements that Kellogg's Bran naturally contains.

When you know that constipation heads directly to Bright's disease and other ailments, there is no time to be lost in experimenting. Kellogg's Bran, delicious in its patented cooked and krumbled form, becomes an immediate necessity. If it is eaten regularly (two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases with each meal)—it will relieve constipation permanently! Your physician will recommend Kellogg's Bran. It will free you from proprietary pills and cathartics which are as system-racking and almost as dangerous to health as constipation itself!

Serve Kellogg's Bran regularly. Watch the health of your entire family improve. It is wonderful for children. Kellogg recipes are printed on each package. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled.

CERTAIN PEOPLE of IMPORTANCE

Lola Espinosa

"SHE NIBBLED cakes in bed, all afternoon. . . . At five she would be beautifully dressed, down in the odorous old parlor, rippling operatic gems. Dinner was supposedly at seven, but there was no time in Lola's scheme of things.

She always breakfasted in bed. Before he left, Bertie would stoop over to kiss her, and the soft olive arm would come up to catch him in a strangling embrace. 'Ah, he was her darling—her dove—the heart of her heart—the little drop of blood of Mary's Son,' she would murmur in passionate Spanish."

To Lola Espinosa, life meant sleep and warmth, cakes and kisses, and the world's admiration. Could America assimilate her? Could husband and baby change her lazy but violent nature? Or would she remain a little exotic hothouse plant to the very end?

Certain People of Importance presents the varied problems of a typical American family. Lola is but one of the sharply individualized characters that live for us in the pages of this, Mrs. Norris' masterwork.

ELECTION CHANGES GAIN SENATE FAVOR

SEE NO NEED TO "COOL OFF"

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—In the face of President Harding's informally expressed opposition to proposed changes in the Federal Constitution discussions today among Republican Senators showed a decided inclination in favor of amending the Constitution so as to abolish the Electoral College and put forward the date of the meeting of Congress to the January following an election.

From what took place in the exchanges of views among Senators it became evident that an expected coldness toward the proposed changes among Republican regulars, with whom party loyalty is a strong consideration, did not exist. Some Republican regulars who had expressed an unfavorable opinion of the effort to amend this fundamental law said today that they had obtained a mistaken idea of the changes suggested and were now disposed to give them support.

While there is no certainty that the pending resolutions submitting the amendments to the States for ratification will be acted on at the current session of Congress, today's developments furnish considerable assurance that they will be adopted at a comparatively early date. Although they were brought forward by members of the new Radical-Progressive group in the Senate, organized under the direction of Senator La Follette last week, some of the regulars found themselves in agreement that amendments along the lines of the resolutions dealing with these changes were in accord with present conditions and the state of popular opinion, and could be incorporated in the Constitution without making any radical innovation in our system of government.

Senate Expected to Take the Lead.

It cannot be said that what took place during the private conferences today means that there has been any concerted agreement reached among the Republican regulars to adopt the proposed amendments as a party matter, but it was evident that the groundwork was laid for a sentiment which ultimately will mean their adoption, by the Senate, at least. Sentiment in the House has not been indicated sufficiently to afford any certainty as to what that body will do. It is accepted generally, however, that the House will be inclined to follow the lead of the Senate, especially as the proposals are in line with the Progressive inclinations of a large number of its members.

No formal expression has come from President Harding on the subject, but enough was said at the White House yesterday in a quarter which reflects the President's views to show that he is chary of what was termed "tinkering with the Constitution." It was clearly set forth that the President felt that the "founding fathers" were wise in making the provision that Congress should not meet, unless called together sooner by the President, until thirteen months after the elections. This interim, it was pointed out, gave time for passions engendered by political controversy to cool and to enable the representatives of the people to act with calmness and matured judgment.

Senator Norris, who reported the amending resolution yesterday, came back at the President today with the retort that the President should also "cool off."

Hold Hamilton's Fears Groundless.

Some members of the regular Republican contingent in the Senate were inclined to the same view as the President when the proposal to change the Constitution received impetus within the week. Since that time they have come to the conclusion, so they indicated today, that the changes suggested were not as far-reaching as they had believed. Much of today's discussion had to do with the reasons which had actuated the framers of the Constitution in adopting the provisions now in question, and there was a raking over of historical documents with a view to getting first-hand information.

What the inquiring Senators learned was that Alexander Hamilton was chiefly responsible for these provisions. Senators said this evening that Hamilton felt that the Electoral College and the election of Senators by State Legislatures were essential to give checks on direct rule by the people, his view being that the Democratic aspirations of the electorate were satisfied with the election of members of the House of Representatives by direct vote. That Hamilton's fears had proved to be groundless in several important particulars was agreed by most of the regular Republicans who conferred on the subject, and as a result a strong movement to submit the proposed amendments to the States may be said to have been started.

Curiously enough, the proposal to abolish the Electoral College and provide that each State should vote directly for candidates for President and Vice President every four years brought less critical reaction than the other proposal, to have a new Congress begin its sessions in the January following its election in November and to have the Presidential term begin in a like period after the quadrennial elections.

The proposal to abolish the electoral College, which is virtually the same in the two pending amendments, one fathered by Senator Ashurst and the other by the Committee on Agriculture, of which Senator Norris is Chairman, provides no real change in the method of electing the President and Vice President. Instead of having the elections of President and Vice President made indirectly by electors chosen at the polls, the new method would have the candidates for President and Vice President voted for directly and the result of the contest in each State certified directly to the Senate and the House of Representatives by the proper State authority. The Senate and the House would merely canvass the vote. The amendments provide that the number of votes to which each State is entitled under the present system of choosing electors shall not be changed.

Earlier Congress Date Backed.

In regard to the proposal to have the meeting date of a new Congress set forward so that the first regular session will be begun in January, two months after an election, instead of thirteen months after an election, there was less enthusiasm among the Republican regulars, but no decided opposition was expressed and the impression was given that it would receive cordial support among them. This same proposal surrounds the change of the date of the Presidential inauguration from March to the previous January.

Yesterday the Committee on Agriculture reported to the Senate a joint resolution proposing these changes in the Constitution. The discussion today among Republican regulars indicated a disposition to defer any expression on the subject until the Committee on the Judiciary reported on amendments by Senator Ashurst, which are now under consideration. Hearings on the Ashurst amendments are to be given by the Judiciary Committee and sentiment among the Republican regulars is that when the resolutions are reported in amended form they will be more matured than the resolution which came from the Committee on Agriculture. Furthermore, the feeling was that the Committee on the Judiciary was the proper body to pass upon the subject.

Senators regard the action of the Committee on Agriculture as more or less in the light of a joke. That a resolution for a Constitutional amendment came from that committee was due to the fact that when Senator Caraway offered his resolution to amend the Constitution so as to prohibit defeated members of the Senate and the House from serving, the Senate viewed the proposal with amusement. With the idea of making sport of it they agreed to a motion to refer it to the Committee on Agriculture, whose province is entirely apart from laying the groundwork for Constitutional reform.

The Committee on Agriculture took the reference seriously and reported a substitute for the Caraway proposal, this substitute being the proposal for changing the date of the Presidential inauguration and the assembling of Congress and providing for the abolition of the electoral college.

Norris Takes Issue With Harding.

Senator Norris today announced that he would resist any effort of President Harding to bury the amendment reported yesterday from the Committee on Agriculture.

"The President," he said, "is mistaken entirely about the reason the framers of the Constitution had for postponing the time for the assembling of Congress. If, at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, there had existed the present facilities of transportation, the telegraph and telephone and other methods of communication, there is no question that the framers would have provided for the meeting of the new Congress around Jan. 1. This has been demonstrated by every State in the Union which has adopted a Constitution since that time.

"If it is true that Congress should wait—that there should be a 'cooling off' period such as the President has in mind, then it follows that there ought to be another election to elect men to office who already had cooled off at the time of the election. That would be logical. If the people are sufficiently intelligent to govern themselves they ought to have the right to put their will into law just as soon as that will is expressed. To deny that proposition is to say that we are not fit for self-government.

"Just now the President is trying to put through a law which the people in reality at the election condemned. Wouldn't it be well that he should cool off and that the old Congress should cool off before they try to enact something into law to which such condemnation has been given?"

ANDREW AT VATICAN, THANKS POPE FOR AID

ROME, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Prince Andrew of Greece, banished by the revolutionary Government in Athens for his part in the Greek military disaster in Asia Minor, arrived in Rome at noon today, accompanied by his wife, Princess Alice, and their four daughters, on their way to London.

They went directly to the Vatican, where they were received by Pope Pius. Andrew expressed to the Pontiff his heartfelt thanks for the timely intervention of the Vatican during his trial to prevent a sentence of death such as was returned against former Premier Gounaris and the other ex-Ministers.

Pope Pius, after expressing his pleasure at seeing the party safely out of their peril and on the way to England, inquired about the situation in Greece. He expressed the hope that normal conditions would soon be re-established there so that the country might face the difficulties of the situation with the prospect of success to which the Hellenic people were entitled in view of their noble traditions and ardent patriotism.

Andrew and his family afterward visited Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, with whom they had a long conversation.

ACID THROWERS PUNISHED.

German Court Sends Scheidemann's Assailants to Jail for Ten Years.

BERLIN, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—The Supreme Court of Leipsig today passed sentences of ten years at hard labor on Hans Hustert and Carl Oelschlaiger, charged with attempting the assassination early in June of Philipp Scheidemann, Socialist leader and former Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

The attack took place while Herr Scheidemann was on a holiday near Wilhelmshohe. Prussic acid was thrown in his face and his escape from death was attributed to the fact that the acid was discharged at comparatively long range, making it partially ineffective.

The men were arrested in August near Gletwitz.

fuse to proceed with the projected operations. This is positive. Architects and owners have so expressed themselves, and those who are in position best to know have made this open and positive statement."

Other speakers declared that removal of labor restrictions by the plumbers' unions would greatly reduce building construction costs. Instead of having 2,000 men engaged in the plumbing industry under present restrictions, it was stated, there would be so much more construction going on that 4,000 mechanics could be put to work.

May Force Settlement.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the Lockwood Legislative Committee, announced yesterday that the committee would again intervene next week to force a permanent settlement of the building trades dispute if the Independent Bricklayers' Helpers and Building Laborers' Union continued to defy the edict of the Board of Arbitration calling for amalgamation with the International Laborers' Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

"Unless the independent laborers change their attitude," said Mr. Untermyer, "the committee will take the matter up at its meeting on Dec. 11. The building industry cannot longer be menaced by this controversy of rival unions."

It was learned yesterday that pressure is being brought to bear upon members of the Executive Board of the independent union to force them to comply with the permanent settlement plan, which called for dissolving that organization. Union officials, however, said they would not recognize the arbitration decision and would demand a public hearing before the Lockwood Committee and present evidence to show that it was entitled to recognition and not the international union.

"There is no power which can determine the affiliations of the thousands of laborers in the independent union by forcing the signatures of its officers to arbitrary agreements arrived at behind closed doors," said a statement issued by the independent union. "Mr. Untermyer has succeeded in determining the personal actions of a number of our officials, but the standing of our organization has not been impaired. The union, through methods provided by its own constitution and rules, has determined under what conditions it will agree to amalgamate with its rival organization."

Pincus Hockstein, acting General Secretary of the independent union, said that the union would seek to make permanent the injunction against the bricklayers' union and the Master Builders' Association when it comes up in the Brooklyn Supreme Court next week. He said that former President Dilgard of the union had informed Mr. Untermyer last Monday night that he had no authority to withdraw the injunction proceedings, but still Mr. Untermyer saw fit to announce the next day that the injunction would be dropped.

No statement was issued by the mason builders yesterday, but it was learned that they will abide by the terms of their contract with the independent union until Dec. 31, regardless of the outcome of the present controversy.

The "Daylight" Floor Lamp

THIS is a new type of lamp for reading or close work, adapted for home use by the inventor of the "daylight" lamp which has long rendered efficient service in scientific, mercantile and industrial fields. The light it affords is cool, restful, and especially refreshing to tired or sensitive eyes; it is, in effect, practically identical with natural daylight.

The lamp is attached to an adjustable stand, and may be used in conjunction with any type of electrical service. The price, in stock, is $45.00. What more desirable for a holiday gift?

NEW BUCKET SHOPS DAILY, SAYS EXPERT

TESTIFIES IN DILLON SMASH

Investigator Says He Gets His Information From Discharged Wall Street "Bums and Thieves."

Charles M. Minton, head of Charles M. Minton's Brokers' Investigating Bureau at 29 Broadway, testifying yesterday before Referee Peter H. Olney in a search for assets of the brokerage firm of Dillon & Co., which failed about a year ago, declared that he knew of a dozen crooked brokerage houses now operating here, and that more bucket shops are opening every day.

Minton was subpoenaed by Keyes Winter, trustee for Dillon & Co., in an effort to learn what he knew about "Dandy Phil" Kastel's connection with the brokerage firm. He admitted that he had known Kastel since 1915, and that Daniel Dillon, ostensible head of the firm, in 1921 subscribed $120 for Minton's investigating service. Minton testified that up to two years ago he had been connected with the Bankers and Brokers' Investigating Agency, but that he has no connection with it now.

He also stated that he recently turned over to District Attorney Banton the names of two men, one a lawyer, who, he said, were representing themselves as "fixers" for bucketshop operators facing investigation, and who pretended that they could call a halt on prosecution. The witness also admitted that he was a friend of Harry W. Culver, whose brokerage firm, Trustee Winter was informed, also was backed by Kastel. Replying to a question by Mr. Winter he denied that he introduced Culver to Kastel in the office of Dillon & Co., before the failure of the latter firm, but he admitted that he took Culver to Dillon and that he learned soon after that Dillon was diverting business to Culver's firm. Mr. Winter stated during Minton's examination that Culver had testified at a preceding session of the inquery that he had been introduced to "Dandy Phil" by Minton soon after the severance of Culver's connection with the Stock Exchange of Carpenter, Cuttry & Co., which was expelled from the Exchange last June.

Didn't Know Kastel Backed Culver

"I was the most surprised man in the world when I was informed that Kastel was the backer of Culver & Co.," Minton declared. "None of my friends knew that Kastel was suspected of being connected with Culver's firm. When I took Culver to the office of Dillon & Co. he told me he was going into business with $70,000. He told me that $40,000 of the money belonged to his wife and the rest was to be furnished by his father-in-law."

Minton said that soon after Dillon & Co. took over the affairs of its predecessor, Dunn & Co., "Dandy Phil" told him that he had sold Dunn & Co. to Daniel Dillon who told him he had organized the firm with $40,000 which he had saved from his salary in a brokerage firm in which Dillon previously had been employed.

"Is it true that the services you rendered Dillon & Co. and other brokerage firms consisted, in part, of advising them that complaints had been filed against them in the District Attorney's office?" asked Mr. Winter.

"I never heard of any complaints against any of my clients," Minton replied, "and I never tipped off anybody."

Answering a question by the trustee, Minton said that he was a friend of Joseph Meighan, who is in the District Attorney's office, but no further questions along that line were asked.

Minton then admitted that in July, 1921, he received a letter from Dillon thanking him for the service he had rendered the firm, and that he wrote in reply acknowledging the receipt of $120 from Dillon & Co. for his firm's service. Pressed for an explanation of the service he had rendered Dillon & Co., Minton said that he had never been called on by the firm for any service and that the $120 was in the form of a subscription in the event the services of his bureau were needed.

Denies Getting $800 From Dillon & Co.

"Didn't you receive $800 from Dillon & Co., or from "Phil" Kastel in addition to the $1207" Mr. Winter asked.

"The $120 was the only money I ever received from Dillon & Co.," Minton answered, "and I never had any relations of the kind with Kastel."

"Do you know where Kastel is now?" asked the Trustee.

"If I did I'd tell you and collect the reward," replied the witness.

"Why, I get all of it from bums and thieves that have been discharged by brokerage firms," said Minton. "These thieves come into my office every afternoon about 4 o'clock. Most of them are sore because their employers wouldn't let them have $500 or whatever they demanded for silence. If a broker should give one of them any money, within a few minutes you could find him standing in front of a whisky bottle in one of the saloons in the financial district. When they come to me they tell me all that they know about their former employers and a lot more about them and everybody else. I wouldn't believe one of them under oath. Every statement they make has to be checked up to see if it amounts to anything."

Minton described how bucket shops get victims. He explained that there were many "sucker" lists in circulation in the financial district, usually containing 100,000 names of persons all over the country. He said that the usual procedure was for the broker or one of his confidential men with a smooth line of talk to go into a telephone booth, which he described as a "boiler room," place a bottle of whisky and a package of cigarettes in front of him and between drinks of the liquor and puffs of the cigarettes "go to work."

Whisky Kept Up Courage.

Minton said that the whisky and the cigarettes were calculated to prevent the broker from "weakening" while he was encouraging a prospective victim to place an investment with the bucketshop. Minton also declared that "a smooth worker" usually "hooked" one out of every five persons when he engaged in conversation over the telephone.

Mr. Winter asked Minton if he had ever received a communication from a bank in Indianapolis regarding Dillon & Co. The witness said he was certain he had not. The Trustee then showed part of a letter from Dillon & Co. to G. H. Clewes, an Indianapolis chemist, who lost $18,000 through the failure of the Dillon firm.

This letter was signed with the name of F. J. Ryan, who was a bookkeeper for the brokerage firm. Ryan testified at a previous hearing that the signature was the handwriting of Kastel. In making public the following extract of the letter, Mr. Winter said that it revealed a practice among bucket shops of using the names of brokers investigating agencies to impress prospective victims with the reliability of the firm soliciting his order:

"You ask for references as to the standing of Dillon & Co. I know that any of the recognized companies for investigating the standing of brokerage firms will satisfy you. These avenues are the Bankers & Brokers' Investigating and Reporting Bureau and Bishop Service. The Bishop Agency is the official investigating agency of the New York Stock Exchange. For bank references, I would suggest the Bank of America and the Lincoln Trust Company."

SING SING GUESTS PICKED BY RATTIGAN

GAVE 40 WOMEN ICE WATER

Special to The New York Times.

PORT CHESTER, Nov. 6.—While an official inquiry is under way to establish how high salaried State officers came to be fed and lodged free at the private home of the warden of Sing Sing Prison, ex-Warden Edward V. Brophy charged here today that Charles F. Rattigan, Superintendent of State Prisons, encouraged the practice. Brophy made public a letter, written to him, he said, by Superintendent of Prisons Rattigan instructing him to take care of W. Thomas Wooley, a civil engineer of Schenectady, whose State salary is said to be about $5,000. Brophy said that Wooley stayed in the prison residence for six months and Mrs. Wooley for about three weeks.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes, whose wife last Saturday put an end to the use of the warden's house as a hotel, declines to talk. Brophy says he understood when Lawes succeeded him he said "he would not let Wooley stay there." Brophy also declares that Superintendent Rattigan objected to Brophy having his own close friend and appointee, John P. Joyce, in Brophy's own home as an invited guest, but that Rattigan ordered him to entertain persons whom Brophy did not want in his house.

Brophy also said that Superintendent Rattigan asked him to feed Spencer Miller of East Orange and forty women at the Warden's table, and when Brophy rebelled ordered him to spread the covers. Brophy says he defied the order and "gave them ice water on the lawn."

The ex-Warden named William McCabe of Poughkeepsie, investigator for Rattigan, and John Schneider of Syracuse, a former Prison Department official, as "repeaters," whom he often had to put up at his home, and said that McCabe recently stopped three days with Warden Lawes.

"Nobody but the Warden and his family," declared Brophy, "has any legal authority to eat in the Warden's home. It's one of the worst abuses up there. The law allows the special maintenance appropriation only for the Warden. I get $175 a month for maintenance, but I had so many to dine I protested to the Superintendent and he increased it $25 a month."

He says that in July, 1919, he provided meals for sixty-six persons, in August eighty-eight, in September ninety-four, in October forty-two, November sixty-eight and two weeks in December seventy-five. When a Sing Sing official was informed today of this record, he said: "That's small compared to lately."

The letter offered for publication by Brophy is on the stationery of the Prison Department, was written on June 18, 1919, two months after Warden Brophy took office, and reads:

"Mr. Edward V. Brophy,

"Agent and Warden, Sing Sing Prison, Ossining, N. Y.

"Dear Sir: This letter will be presented by Mr. W. Thomas Wooley, who I expect will be in charge of the new prison construction work at Sing Sing.

"I wish you to extend to Mr. Wooley every possible courtesy and put up his car while he is on his way to New York to meet me on Tuesday. I probably will visit Sing Sing on Wednesday in company with him. While he has not been appointed, recognize him as a part of the Prison Department just the same and I suggest that if you have accommodations you put him and his wife up at Sing Sing if he so desires.

"Yours very truly,

(Signed) "CHARLES F. RATTIGAN."

"Wooley used to stay with us from Monday to Friday," continued Brophy. "He was there from the time the letter was received until about the time I left. I carried out Rattigan's instructions about Wooley. Mr. Rattigan was my boss," continued Brophy, "and I felt I had to comply with his wishes. Wooley stayed there, ate, had his clothes cared for and got his barbering free."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 6.—When told about the charges of former Warden Edward V. Brophy of Sing Sing, Charles F. Rattigan, State Superintendent of Prisons, said it was true that he had asked the Warden to entertain W. Thomas Wooley of Schenectady and his wife.

He explained that Mr. Wooley was the engineer of the State Prison Department. "It has always been the custom," said Superintendent Rattigan "to entertain State officials at the Wardens' houses for a reasonable length of time. I was Warden of Auburn Prison and I always entertained whom and when I pleased, and would do the same thing again.

"Anything that I ever did I am willing to stand on, and I am not in the least disturbed by anything that Brophy might say. Brophy is a sorehead because he was fired from Sing Sing for inefficiency."

Justice Morschauser Waives Rule in Granting Divorce Plea.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 6.—After Supreme Court Justice Morschauser had heard testimony here today in the divorce action of Mrs. Sara D. Robinson of Larchmont, against Herbert S. Robinson, a professor of languages in New York City, he said it was his custom to have the defendant produced in Court.

"Well, I guess we can't bring him back here," remarked the Justice. "Under the circumstances I will grant a judgment."

The couple were married on Aug. 12, 1913. One of the principal witnesses was Albert Halper, a friend of the defendant, who testified that he found Robinson at a hotel with a young woman. "When I went to the room," said the witness, "Mr. Robinson said he hoped I would be a regular fellow and not tell his wife what I had seen."

TO SAVE GIANT OAK.

Cape May Freeholders to Preserve Famous Tree at Schellengers Corner.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Dec. 6.—The Cape May County Board of Freeholders has decided to preserve the 200-year-old giant oak at Schellengers corner at Green Creek, nine miles north of this city. It was under this tree that former President Woodrow Wilson made a speech to the Delaware Bay fishermen. A former Minister to the United States from China said that in all China there was no tree as large as the oak.

A Red Bank woman has sent $20 to preserve the tree. She signed no name. It is understood the Freeholders now have ordered Ralph Schellengers of Green Creek to save the famous oak, though an expert from the State forestry said the tree could not be preserved.

Gave a 'Rockefeller' Check for $2.80.

BIBBINGTON, Minn., Dec. 6.—Sam Pavich, a local poolroom owner, today has a check for $2.80 signed with the name "John D. Rockefeller." Pavich said he accepted the check from a stranger. The police are trying to trace the signer.

3 KILLED, 12 INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

BOY IS RUN DOWN IN STREET

Three persons were killed and twelve others were injured in automobile accidents in and near the city yesterday. Those who lost their lives were a chauffeur of a limousine which was upset in a collision in Fifth Avenue and a three-year-old boy who was run down by a truck in Jersey City. A policeman on his way to reserve duty received a compound skull fracture when a taxi on the running board of which he was riding struck another car.

Joseph Brundage, 55 years old, of 322 East Fifty-eighth Street, a chauffeur for Mrs. William H. Payne of the Hotel Belmont, was the driver of the car that was upset in Fifth Avenue. He was taking Mrs. Laura Bassett of the Belmont and Mrs. Harry Otis Farley of Detroit out for a morning ride in Fifth Avenue. Mrs. Payne, who is 80 years old, was not in the car.

As Brundage was passing Ninety-sixth Street a car driven by Samuel Cahn, a dry goods merchant, of 204 New Main Street, Yonkers, emerged from the Park and struck the Payne car. The limousine was overturned and the occupants were pinned inside. The chauffeur and the two women were lifted from the car and driven in a taxicab to Mount Sinai Hospital. Brundage was dead when the taxi arrived there. The women had received but slight bruises and said that they preferred not to be attended.

With Cahn were Abraham Silberman of 46 Randolph Street, Yonkers, and his wife, Eva. They escaped injury, although Cahn's car was badly damaged. Cahn was placed under arrest on a charge of homicide by Patrolman Abbey Kemack of the East 104th Street Station.

The car which Brundage was driving was the property of Ewen Dugg, owner of the Hollywood Garage of 323 East Sixty-fourth Street, from whom Mrs. Payne leased it.

Boy at Play Is Killed.

Dominic Morcia, 3 years old, was killed while playing in front of his home at 37 Wales Avenue, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon. The car that struck him was owned by the Standard Wet Wash Company. John Bannard, 74 Bergen Avenue, Jersey City, the driver, was arrested on a charge of homicide.

Patrolman Frank L. Frazone of 4,582 Park Avenue, the Bronx, attached to the East Twenty-second Street Station, received a compound fracture of the skull, and Andrea Cuomo of 45 President Street, Brooklyn, was injured in a collision at Twenty-third Street and Fourth Avenue yesterday morning. The policeman was on his way to reserve duty and was riding on the running board of a taxi driven by Thomas Carney of 19 Columbia Place, Brooklyn. Cuomo was a passenger in the taxi. The other car was driven by Charles Oddo of 134 Edson Street, Corona, L. I. Carney was arrested on a charge of assault.

One man was killed and two persons were injured Tuesday night in an accident at an unprotected grade crossing of the Long Island Railroad at Islip, L. I. Louis Matthies of Islip Terrace, who is employed in a store at Lindenhurst, lost his life, and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bruger of Islip Terrace were injured. Mrs. Bruger so seriously that she was taken to Babylon Hospital. Matthies had taken Bruger to the station to meet Mrs. Bruger, and when the train on which she had arrived had left they started across the track with several other automobiles. They failed to see an approaching coal train.

Car Hits Pole, Injures Two.

Helen Dittus, 26, of Westfield, N. J., and Justine Rodiger, 22, of 165 East Sixty-sixth Street were injured by pieces of an electric light pole at John and William Streets, which was shattered when a heavily laden auto truck got out of control. According to the driver, Joseph Spirano of 151 Courtlandt Avenue, the Bronx, the brakes refused to work. Several other persons who were near the two girls narrowly escaped injury. They were taken to Beekman Street Hospital, where it was said that Miss Dittus had a broken ankle and internal injuries and that Miss Rodiger had two toes of her left foot crushed.

While chasing a speeder on Hudson Avenue, Brooklyn, Motorcycle Policeman William E. Cunningham collided with an automobile owned and driven by Benjamin Klein of 285 Montgomery Street, Brooklyn, at the intersection of Johnson Street and Hudson Avenue, Brooklyn. The policeman was thrown from the motorcycle. He was treated by Dr. Whitman of the Cumberland Street Hospital for bruises.

Ernest Jud, a chauffeur, was injured in a collision of two motor trucks at Pitkin and Saratoga Avenues, Brooklyn. Jud was driving a truck belonging to the James O. Hubbard Company when he ran into another truck owned by West & Romeyn of 82 West End Avenue, Manhattan. Jud's right leg was broken. He was taken to Kings County Hospital, where it was said that he might have suffered internal injuries.

A one-man Greenpoint trolley car was struck and carried along several feet by a Graham Avenue car at Flushing and Classon Avenues, Brooklyn, last night. Although the Greenpoint car was wrecked and the windows of both cars shattered, no one was injured. Fifty persons riding in the Graham Avenue car left when the two cars came to a stop.

DOUBLES $1,500,000 INSURANCE ON LIFE

J. C. Penney, With $3,000,000 Policies, Joins Group Known as "Big Four."

Chain Store Chairman Takes Personal Protection, and Not for His Corporation.

James Cash Penney, head of the Golden Rule Stores, one of the largest chains in the country, became one of the largest holders of life insurance yesterday when he took out $1,500,000 additional insurance, making his total personal policies approximate $3,000,000. Mr. Penney is Chairman of the Board of the J. C. Penney Corporation, with offices at 370 Madison Avenue. His home is in White Plains, but he spends the Winters at Miami.

By increasing his life insurance through I. W. Brill of Brill & Scott, general agents of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, 516 Fifth Avenue, Mr. Penney joins a group of American business leaders who had come to be known as the "Big Four" in the field of insurance. But it is said that those who rank him carry much insurance for the benefit of their corporations.

In the group of men who are insured for millions are Adolph Zukor, head of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, $5,000,000; Rodman Wanamaker, $4,500,000; Pierre du Pon, $4,000,000, and John Wanamaker, $3,000,000.

When an effort was made last Spring by insurance experts to compile a list of more than a score of the highest insurance holders in the United States, the standing of the "Big Four" was disclosed. It was also found that there were at least fifty persons altogether in this country who carried insurance amounting to more than $1,000,000.

Among the other industrial and business leaders who were found to be highly insured were Will H. Hays, National Director of the Motion Picture Industry, who was insured for $2,000,000, the policy made payable to the industry of which he is the head. Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and other motion picture stars were said to carry insurance policies of approximately $1,000,000 each.

The additional $1,500,000 insurance for Mr. Penney was not underwritten entirely by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, according to E. G. McWilliam, sales manager for the local agents of that company. Mr. McWilliam said at least a score of companies participated, being for the most part "old line" companies. The formal statement concerning the policy issued by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company among other things said:

"Only three other men in the world carry personal life insurance in larger amounts, according to available records. Rodman Wanamaker's life is insured to the extent of $4,500,000. Pierre Dupont carries $4,000,000 and John Wanamaker, father of Rodman and department store pioneer, carries $3,000,000.

Mr. Penney was born in Hamilton, Mo., Sept. 16, 1875, the son of James C. and Fannie (Paxton) Penney. He was educated in the high schools.

He married Beta A. Hess of Denver, Col., in 1909. Following her death in 1916 he married Mary Kimball of Salt Lake City, Utah, July 29, 1919. He is an advocate of prohibition, is a member of the Methodist Church and belongs to the Transportation, American Yacht and Knollwood Country Clubs.

WETS' CAMPAIGN EXPENSES.

Association Against Prohibition Received $2,382, Spent $2,356.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The Association Opposed to Prohibition, through G. C. Hinckley, Secretary-Treasurer, filed a report today with the clerk of the House showing the expenditure of $2,356 in the recent campaign under direction of its national headquarters here. Total contributions were $2,382.

In addition the association filed separate statements for its branches in New York State, Indiana, Pennsylvania and at Toledo and Sandusky, Ohio, with a list of contributors, all amounts, however, being small. The report included a printed list of House members and candidates, classified and made public prior to the election as "liberals" on the question of beer and wine.

The Flying Squadron, a prohibition organization, also filed a supplemental report, showing receipts of $8,166. Its campaign expenditures, chiefly for sending out speakers, were $7,651.

A verdict of $12,000 was awarded Mrs. Mary Stark, who is living apart from her husband with her 4-year-old child, in Eagert Avenue, Brooklyn, by a jury in the Queens Supreme Court yesterday, against Melvin Collison of Jamaica for injuries suffered in an automobile accident in September, 1921.

Indianapolis Will Test Speeder's Sanity; West Is Turning to Drastic Penalties

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Heavier fines, jail sentences and trips through morgues and hospitals to view the dead and injured victims of reckless automobilists are becoming effective curbs in many parts of the Middle and Far West, a digest of reports from several States shows.

Fines alone, the reports indicate, are not effective. In Chicago and Cook County, despite increasingly heavy fines, the death toll in automobile accidents for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, was 736, as compared with 690 last year and 542 the year before. There were seventy-five automobile deaths in November of this year.

In Louisville, where forty-one persons were killed by automobiles in the first seven months of the year, fines also have failed, officials say. One police judge there imposes fines of $7 for each mile per hour on speeders, and adds jail sentences if the driver was intoxicated.

A successful campaign was launched in Detroit more than a year ago when Judge Charles L. Barlett began sending speeders to jail for terms of one to fifteen days. Among those sentenced was John Duval Dodge, a wealthy young man, who served five days. Recently speeding was reduced in Detroit and Judge Barlett began conducting offenders through the morgues and hospitals to see the results of speeding. Arrests the week after the trips started dropped from seventy-five to twenty-five.

A sanity test will be made for all persons arrested in Indianapolis for speeding, Mayor Samuel Shank of that city announced today. The Mayor made this announcement after Judge Wilmeth in the City Court had imposed light fines on a number of speeders. Persons arrested and held for an examination by the Sanity Commission, the Mayor said, would be held in jail until they were examined, the State law providing that persons held for sanity tests cannot give bond. In announcing his plan for holding speeders for an insanity test, the Mayor said that they would be placed in padded cells, which are now used for the insane.

Cleveland with 116 deaths and 2,168 injuries in traffic accidents up to the middle of November, is imposing workhouse sentences and the requirement of morgue and hospital visits, as well as fines.

Judge George E. Mitz of St. Louis, who assesses fines as high as $300, has added a traffic law school to his court.

Judge W. P. Wappick of Omaha takes groups of speeders to hospitals in the police patrol wagon to see their victims and then assesses fines.

U. S. OFFICERS TO AID BRAZIL BUILD NAVY

REPRESENTS ALL BRANCHES

Will Stay Two Years in Southern Republic—Agreement Made by Secretary Hughes.

The personnel of the Special Naval Mission, which is being sent by the United States to Brazil to assist in the improvement of the naval service of the Southern republic became known last night upon the arrival of members in this city preparatory to their sailing. From Rear Admiral Carl T. Vogelgesang, head of the mission, which is to stay two years in Brazil at the invitation of that Government, it was learned that the mission would sail on the Munson liner Pan American at noon Saturday from Pier 1, Hoboken.

The mission includes sixteen officers and nineteen chief petty officers. The members are due to arrive at Rio de Janiero on Dec. 21. They will take up their work immediately upon landing.

The purpose of the mission is not to stimulate a big navy, but to aid the Brazilians in developing their navy to a point commensurate with the size and importance of the country.

When Secretary of State Hughes and Brazilian Ambassador Augusto Cochrane de Alencar signed the agreement providing for the Special Naval Mission, on Nov. 6 last, Secretary Hughes explained the objects as follows:

The purpose of the mission is one of helpfulness to Brazil, to assist the Brazilian Navy Department in all matters that pertain to improvement in their naval service. In this task the mission will collaborate and work in conjunction with the officers of the Brazilian Navy.

Rear Admiral Vogelgesang, formerly Commandant at the New York Navy Yard, Brooklyn, was appointed chief of the mission because of his former visit to Brazil on a similar mission. He was the head of a smaller commission of restricted character, which was sent to Brazil in 1918 during the World War to assist the Brazilians in their preparations for war on the sea, particularly in the development of their naval organization, and naval aviation.

He was special naval aide to Secretary Hughes on his recent trip to represent the United States at the Brazilian Centennial Exposition.

The other officers are:

Captain T. A. Kearney, formerly manager of the New York Navy Yard, who has been relieved for special duty with the Naval Mission, of which he is serving as Chief of Staff.

Captain L. M. Overstreet of the Plans Division, Office of Operations.

Commander Ralston Holmes, who has been chief naval aid to the President of the United States in command of the Mayflower, the Presidential yacht.

Captain J. A. Furer of the Bureau of Construction and Repair.

Commander C. C. Gill, editor of the Naval Institute, who has been on duty at the Naval Academy and is known as a writer on sea warfare.

Commander W. Baggaley, now on duty in the Brazilian Naval War College at Rio de Janeiro.

Commander W. O. Spears, now on duty at the Naval War College Hospital, who will join the Mission on completion of his duties.

Lieutenant John D. Pennington, personal aid to the Rear Admiral, Chief of Mission.

The Brazilian Navy's strength is 13,000 men. Of ships it has two battleships of the dreadnought type, 3 scout cruisers, 6 destroyers and 3 submarines, also some coast defense vessels of old type.

Those who are conversant with the naval armaments of the Latin American countries consider that Brazil's navy is probably second to that of Argentina, which also has the same number of battleships of the dreadnought type as Brazil, but is slightly stronger in the auxiliary types.

Brazil has no navy yards at the present time, and even had she assented to the proposals laid down by the disarmament conference she would not have been in position to over-supply her naval needs. Through her representative at the League of Nations, Brazil objected recently to a plan submitted to the Disarmament Commission of the League whereby the military establishment of all nations would be reduced. It is said that Brazil's military expenses at present are about 45 per cent. less than they were in 1913.

HOLDS GIRL SUFFERED BY BRYN MAWR ACTION

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—Miss Marjorie Barker of Michigan City, Ind., "suffered real damage" as a result of her dismissal from Bryn Mawr College in April, 1921, Judge Dickinson declared in Federal Court here today. The statement of claim filed by Miss Barker, however, is legally defective, Judge Dickinson ruled, and granted permission to her counsel to redraft the statement of claim in an effort to show that she has a legal right for action.

Miss Barker, among others, was questioned before her dismissal by the college authorities about petty thefts and then went home for the Easter vacation. While away, she was requested by the college authorities not to return. A petition was filed later by her in the Montgomery County Court asking that she be reinstated as a student on the ground of her innocence.

The State court decided it had no jurisdiction over the rules of the college. Miss Barker then filed a suit in the Federal District Court for $50,000 damages.

SON FIGHTS FOR $800,000.

John Elton Wayland of 48 East Fifty-third Street, disinherited son of Chandler N. Wayland, yesterday obtained an order from Surrogate Cohalan, directing the nine executors to show cause why he should not be appointed administrator of his father's estate, which he values at $500,000. In his petition Wayland, who is a lawyer at 165 Broadway, says his father, who was 87 years old at the time of death, was sent to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue in November, last year.

While at Bellevue his father was declared insane by Dr. Menas L. Gregory, the son sets forth in his application, which says a document purporting to be the will of his father, was executed five days before removal to Bellevue. In this will Wayland directs that his money be used to erect a million dollar hotel and to pay for paving the streets of Stonington, Conn., and that he left nothing to his son "for the reason I have been instrumental in securing him a fortune safely possessed by him this day, greatly in excess of my own."

Wayland rests his case solely on the charge that his father was mentally unsound when he made his will.

DRUG RAID NETS 9 CHINESE.

Narcotic Agents Find Two Pounds of Opium in Barber Shop.

Nine Chinese were arrested yesterday in raids made by detectives of the Narcotic Division. They were charged with possession of contraband drugs. The prisoners are Ah Gun, 28, 5 Chrystie Street; Ling Mo Ti, 30, 194 Park Row; Ah Bung, 30, 25 Bowery; Ah Ming, 23, 30 Henry Street, and Ah Sue, Chang Wah, Ah Gow, Ah Toch and Ong Uh, all of 260 Cherry Street.

Ah Gun, known as the "Barber of Chinatown," operates in the rear of 5 Chrystie Street. According to Commissioner Carleton Simon he has been under surveillance for some time. Detectives Wolkoff and Hackett went to his shop yesterday. Gun was at home with his friend, Ah Sung. The detectives say they were about to leave when Ah Gun reached under a chair and drew out a pair of scales, and at the same time Ah Sung set fire to a trash can in the rear.

A closer inspection of the chair revealed a number of false bottoms, detectives said, from which they draw forth a pipe and other evidence of the presence of opium. A search in the trash can, they say, revealed two pounds of raw opium. Ah Sue, Chang Wah, Ah Gow, Ah Toch and Ung Wah were arrested at 260 Cherry Street by Detectives Barry and Rogers.

HARVARD CLASS CANDIDATES

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 6.—The Nominating Committee of the senior class at Harvard announced tonight a slate for class day officers. The six nominees for marshals and the two for the class treasurer are affiliated with major sports. The varsity football team is represented among the nominees for marshals by Captain C. C. Buell of Hartford, Vinton Chapin of Boston and George Owen Jr. of Newton. Bradley Nash of Brookline, the hockey manager, and John G. Flint of Boston, candidate for goal tender, and A. P. "Buddy" Ladd Jr. of Milton, varsity crew captain, are the other nominees.

Sheridan Logan of St. Joseph, Mo., and Edwin S. Webster Jr. of Chestnut Hill, managers respectively of the crew and football team, are the contenders for class treasurer. The Crimson, the college daily, is represented by Robert Anderson of Newton Centre and Robert Bradford of Boston as candidates for class orator; Charles D. Whidden of Cambridge as chorister, and Marshall A. Best of Chicago for poet.

THE realization that other methods, such as gargles, could be used neither often nor strong enough to actually disinfect a germ-laden throat, prompted a throat specialist to develop Formamint.

It actually kills germs.

Formamint is a refreshing tablet that melts slowly in the mouth, releasing a potent yet harmless germicide that combines with the saliva and penetrates every remote fold and crevice of the throat, destroying germs positively and continuously.

TSING-TAO BANDITS SEEK TO RULE CITY

They Demand That China Surrender It When the Japanese Leave on Dec. 10.

JAPAN WILL NOT REMAIN

China Agrees to Pay 40,000,000 Yen for the Shantung Railway on Jan. 1.

PEKING, Dec. 9 (Associated Press).—The situation at Tsing-tao, caused by the operations of the bandits with whom Shantung Province is infested, is described in an official dispatch received late last night as exceedingly critical.

The Chinese officials there conferred with the bandit leaders in an effort to conciliate them. The bandits rejected the advances, however, and kidnapped the Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, demanding $500,000 ransom for him.

Later the bandit leader delivered an ultimatum that unless Tsing-tao was handed over to them on Dec. 10, the date set for the Japanese evacuation, they would kidnap all responsible Chinese officials and burn or pillage the shops.

The Japanese authorities, according to the message, declare it is not possible to change the plans for the restoration of the province to China, and that China must assume the responsibility.

Most of the merchants in Tsing-tao have closed their shops, and many civilians have fled to Tsinan-fu, the capital of the province.

China and Japan last night completed settlement of the Shantung controversy as outlined by the terms of the Washington treaty.

China agrees to pay Japan 40,000,000 yen for the Shantung railroad. The payment will be made in fifteen-year Chinese Treasury notes, bearing interest at 5 per cent.

In addition, China pays Japan 10,000,000 yen for all public properties located in the Kiaochow district.

Civil and military administration will be turned over to China on Dec. 10, while the Shantung Railway will be transferred to Chinese authority on Jan. 1.

China, as a direct result of the Washington conference, thus regains control of the territory which she lost when it was seized by Germany in 1898.

Wang Chen Ting, head of the Chinese Shantung Commission, leaves for Tsingtao tomorrow to assume control of that port on behalf of China, where bandits are reported ready to invade the Kiaochow district as soon as the Japanese evacuate it. Merchants in the port are said to have barricaded their shops for fear of pillage.

The Japanese legation here announced that troops would be landed from two Japanese destroyers now in the harbor of Kiaochow should the lives and property of the 20,000 Japanese nationals be endangered after the evacuation. The Chinese Foreign Office said it was exerting influence to prevent any outbreak by the bandits and that it would be a disgrace to China if the restoration of Shantung after so many years should be followed by lawlessness.

WIFE CANNOT ADD, HE WANTS FREEDOM

Husband Asks Annulment of Marriage Because She Is Poor in Arithmetic.

Because his wife can't add, subtract or multiply and is thereby not qualified to manage the financial affairs of his household, Julius Berman, a cutter, of 321 Livonia Avenue, Brooklyn, has decided that he wants to annul the marriage. Yesterday he asked Justice Kapper in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to grant him an annulment decree on the ground of fraud. This is the first suit of its kind ever brought in Kings County or the State, in the memory of court officials.

"She falsely and fraudulently represented to me that she was a fit person to manage the financial matters in the buying and disbursing of funds for the purchase of commodities and other articles for my household," said Berman. "She said she could be safely entrusted with the care and supervision of these things. As a matter of fact she could not. She is not able to add, subtract or multiply, and has not even the simplest conception of simple arithmetic.

"As soon as I discovered she was unfit in financial matters I refused to live with her. She does not know what four and five is, or three and seven, or any such figures. She cannot be entrusted with even a half dollar because she does not know how much to pay out and how much change she should receive. The best she could do would be to open her pocketbook and trust to the peddler's honesty."

Mr. Berman was a widower with six children when he married his second wife on June 2 last. Mrs. Berman insists that she knows all the arithmetic necessary to run Berman's household.

"He lost me," she said yesterday, "because, I believe, he is in love with another woman. His meagre knowledge of arithmetic reminds me of the axiom that those who live in glass houses should not throw stones. All the mathematics necessary for the wife of a man of his type is to know how to buy the necessities of life, and while I am not an expert I know how to figure enough to buy all the food for a home."

Justice Kapper reserved decision.

UPHOLDS FASCISTI JUSTICE.

Mussolini Commends Sternness to Alessandria Criminals.

ROME, Dec. 6.—Premier Mussolini has sent a congratulatory telegram to the Fascisti organization in the Province of Alessandria, which recently warned the criminals of the district that the Fascisti would deal out justice with physical force to habitual breakers of the laws, says the Messaggero today.

"I fully approve your new methods of punishing criminals," it was said in the message.

Coast Guard Rescued 2,954 in Year.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The rescue of 2,954 persons from positions of peril during the twelve months ended last June 30 was reported today by the United States Coast Guard. In the previous fiscal year 1,835 were saved. The annual report stated that of 21,586 vessels boarded in the last year, 362 were seized or reported for law violations, 264 more than last year. Last year the value of vessels, including cargoes, assisted by the Coast Guard totaled $26,241,000. Removal from the paths of navigation of 38 derelicts and other obstructions and the return to owners of derelicts valued at $589,000 were reported.

SEEK TO GET MILLION FOR SEVEN COLLEGES

Every Christian Woman Asked to Give Dollar for Oriental Institutions Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—American women are planning to give seven colleges complete in every particular to the 400,000,000 women of the Orient. Two of them will be medical schools. The colleges are in operation, but require buildings and sites. A group of women some months ago undertook to raise the $3,000,000 which will be necessary to provide them. The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial Fund promised to give $1,000,000 if the remaining $2,000,000 was obtained by Jan. 1.

Through a Christmas appeal last year and during the year $1,000,000 more was obtained. To get the balance an appeal to women, regardless of religious belief, to give $1 each next Saturday is being made. In a statement made today Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, Chairman of the committee in charge of the campaign, told of the need for the seven colleges and their work. She said:

"The seven colleges which are to provide Christian leadership over 400,000,000 Oriental women are Tokio, Yenching, North China Medical, Ginling, Lucknow, Madras and Vellore Medical College. These are union Christian colleges in Asia for which the joint committee representing ten great mission boards has united to secure land and buildings. To present this cause and to obtain the money we have secured the co-operation of 50,000 women's auxiliaries, including women's clubs, Daughters of the American Revolution chapters, collegiate alumnae, missionary societies and other women's organizations. As soon as the money is received we shall cable to the seven points to proceed with the work. If it should not succeed, we will have to cable to stop.

"In India there is only one doctor to each million women. Only one woman in 100 in India can read. In China the ratio is one in 1,000. In the past we have sought to educate the women of the Orient by bringing them to this country. The cost was great. Now we are adopting the common-sense plan of carrying the college to them. In making this gift of the seven union Christian colleges to the women of the Orient, we have forgotten denominational lines and women of all communions in America are working shoulder to shoulder in behalf of the gift. The ten co-operating communions are the Northern Baptist Church, the Christian Church, the Congregational Churches, the Canadian Methodist Church, the Canadian Presbyterian Church, the Lutheran Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, the Reformed Church in America and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

JUGOSLAV CABINET OUT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A peasant bloc in the Parliament of Jugoslavia, headed by M. Raditch, a Croatian bookseller, has forced the resignation of Nicholas P. Pashitch, the Premier of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes and his Ministry. Information from Belgrade, the capital of the kingdom, states that the King of Jugoslavia has accepted the resignation, but has asked the Ministry to carry on until a new Cabinet can be formed.

The resignation of Premier Pashitch came as a complete surprise in Balkan diplomatic circles in Washington, where, however, there is a confident feeling that Jugoslavia's "grand old man" will not now long be out of office, despite the fact that he is 77 years old.

The reason for Pashitch's resignation is said to be loss of control over the Belgrade Parliament in the face of the appearance there of Raditch, with his bloc of sixty members, which gave them the balance of power as against the Democrats and Radicals. One of Raditch's cardinal aims has been the creation of a Croatian Republic within the monarchy of Jugoslavia. He has also declared his opposition to "secret diplomacy," and advocated the abolition of the diplomatic corps.

APPEAL FOR SICK VETERANS.

Clergy Endorse Request to Aid the Legion's Mountain Camp.

A Christmas appeal for funds for the Veterans' Mountain Camp at Big Tupper Lake, N. Y., is made by the American Legion, which owns the camp. The clergy of New York City have given their support to the camp, according to the statement issued yesterday, which quotes Bishop William T. Manning as follows:

"The Veterans' Mountain Camp has been established to provide for ex-servicemen who have developed tuberculosis or other diseases since their discharge from the service and therefore cannot be cared for in the institutions provided by the Government. It is most appropriate that gifts should be made at Christmas for the support of this institution, and I hope that the soldiers, sailors and marines who need the help of the Veterans' Mountain Camp will be remembered by the people of New York City and the State."

CORSICAN BANDIT KILLED.

Romanetti Was the Last of Old Type That Made the Island Notorious.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—The disappearance of the last Corsican bandit of the old type is reported from Ajaccio. Napoleon Romanetti, who had held out against the officers of the law for years, has been shot by a gendarme while trying to escape with an automobile belonging to the wife of the Prefect of Corsica.

Romanetti recently protested, through the Corsican newspapers, against articles appearing in the Paris press terming him a common robber. He was accustomed to treat his victims politely, he said, and even, when circumstances permitted, entertain them cordially, after taking their valuables.

TRAIN BLOWN OFF TRACK.

Gale in South of France Interrupts Traffic to Spain.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—A gale in the south of France in the Pyrenees region caused an unusual accident this morning when a passenger train was blown off the track.

As the train was traveling on the Narbonne-Cerbere line not far from Perpignan, an exceptionally fierce gust lifted the rear cars, throwing them beside the track and causing the derailment of the rear.

Fortunately the train was running slowly and nobody was hurt, but traffic to Spain was interrupted.

ROB MISS A. KNEELAND.

Thieves Get Jewels From Handbag as She Embarks at Cherbourg.

CHERBOURG, Dec. 6.—Miss Adele Kneeland of New York today was so interested in the examination of her passport while she was embarking on the liner Majestic for New York that she did not notice some one opening her handbag and removing jewels from it said to be valued at 45,000 francs.

The police made a search for the jewels but found no trace of them.

SHIPPING REPORT SHOWS BIG TRADE

MANY VESSELS STILL IDLE

Efforts to Sell Them Fail, but Increased Values May Compensate Later.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Growth of United States shipping in foreign trade, establishment of extensive passenger services in the North Atlantic, the Pacific and to South America, and stabilization of the Government's shipping venture on a strictly business basis are pointed to as the year's outstanding achievements in the sixth annual report of the Shipping Board.

Reviewing at length the functions of the board since its inception to carry forward the nation's tremendous efforts to transport food, troops and supplies overseas during the war, and the various changes in policy incident to the armistice, the report shows that the existing board's functions relate not only to the physical running of ships, but range over the entire field of a nation's merchant marine. Labor, port facilities and commerce are discussed in detail.

Altogether the Shipping Board has had during its career 3,644 ships, totaling about 19,568,000 deadweight tons. These were obtained from various sources. Some have been sold and many are now tied up idle. The report shows that notwithstanding depression in shipping, there were at the close of the fiscal year on June 30, 1922, approximately 50,000 men engaged on vessels of the American merchant marine and a larger number of longshoremen employed in loading and unloading. More than $10,000,000 annually has been saved in the reduction of marine and longshore wages of Shipping Board vessels alone. Reductions were effected after strikes and negotiations ranging from 18 to 25 per cent.

The policy of the board regarding making wage readjustments is declared in the report to be based wherever possible "upon collective bargaining, which has resulted in allaying as far as possible the discontent and resentment which usually follow wage reductions."

Carry Half of Foreign Trade.

During the last fiscal year, the report says, there were 37,312 arrivals and departures of vessels engaged in foreign trade, aggregating 80,231,000 long tons of cargo. Of this total 52 per cent. moved in American bottoms. In relative efficiency indicated by the relation of load to deadweight tonnage the American percentage was 82.9 per cent., compared with 36.4 per cent. foreign. While American ships used 2.62 deadweight tons to move each ton of cargo, foreign vessels used 2.74.

Recounting the difficulties which had been encountered in the board's effort to dispose of its idle tonnage, the report says it found that no one was willing to buy in large quantities, at anything like a fair price, under present conditions. At the close of the fiscal year the effort to find buyers was continuing, but the board still had for sale 1,686 vessels, totaling 10,809,172 deadweight tons. Of these 1,256 were steel cargo ships and 225 were wooden cargo ships, while the remainder were of various steel, wooden, composite and concrete types.

"The immediate prospect is not favorable to the early disposal of the fleet," the report declares. "First and foremost comes the necessity for legislation. Even with this legislation the transfer of the fleet to private hands, if it is to be accomplished as part of the building up of the American merchant marine, must be a slow process.

"The increase in value of the vessels due to the demand that will come in the next few years as a result of the growing age of the world's tonnage should, however, more than compensate for the cost of upkeep during the period that must elapse before these factors become controlling ones."

During the year the wooden fleet was reduced by 236 vessels, and the cost of the upkeep of the fleet was reduced by $41,000. The maintenance cost still stood, however, at an annual average of $919 per vessels.

The amount received from sale of "outlying projects" belonging to the board during the year was $1,854,750, representing a return from property which had been given a "present fair value" of $2,113,600. The report says that "in accordance with agreement made with the office of the chief coordinator," sales and transfers were made at prices 15 per cent. below "present fair value." Sales from real estate brought in an additional $8,098,722. Notable among the economies recorded was a reduction of $1,043,075 in salaries through reduction of the personnel of maintenance and repair department by 423 employes.

It is noted by the board that the year saw completion of the war-time building program, the last ship built on Government account, the Western World, having been delivered on May 9. The total number of ships delivered during the year was 23, as compared to 218 in 1921 and 1,002 in 1920.

A summary of the amount of commerce borne in American bottoms during the year showed that Shipping Board vessels handled 4,313,913 cargo tons of imports and 6,634,331 cargo tons of exports, operating through forty-three United States ports. The total tonnage of the American merchant marine was fixed at 27,784,989 deadweight tons, compared to 27,538,464 a year ago. Of this total, 16,279,371 tons was employed at the end of the 1922 fiscal year in foreign trade, compared with 16,819,943 at the end of the previous twelve months period.

Pothier Gets Writs in Cronkhite Case

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 6.—Writs directing the Department of Justice at Washington to produce for the defense certain records relating to the killing of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite were issued here today by Federal Judge Brown for the use of Roland R. Pothier of Central Falls, R. I., former army Sergeant, accused of murdering the officer, when he appears in court here Monday to fight removal to Tacoma, Wash. Pothier will fight removal on the ground that the Federal Court in Tacoma is without jurisdiction.

Wellesley Has Campus Fire Scare.

WELLESLEY, Mass., Dec. 6.—Wellesley College campus was the scene today of a fire which damaged a cottage occupied by maidservants. The nearness of Stone Hall, one of the largest buildings, caused the dismissal of some classes and the gathering of students from others. The flames did not spread. The damage was principally to the basement of the cottage, and was estimated at less than $5,000.

COMMONS RESENTS ELLIS ISLAND WAYS

Foreign Under-Secretary Says They Are Adapted to People of Low Conduct.

SUBJECT OF NEGOTIATION

Suggestion That British Emigrants Keep Within Empire Cheered From Ministerial Benches.

LONDON, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Conditions at Ellis Island and the treatment of immigrants there are primarily adapted to people of a low standard of conduct and constitute a serious hardship to persons of any refinement, especially women, it was declared by Roland McNeill, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in answering a question in the House of Commons today with regard to the treatment of British immigrants at Ellis Island.

Mr. McNeill mentioned the negotiations which have been going on between Great Britain and the United States on this subject, and said they were continuing. It appeared, he stated, that the American Government was unable to keep the immigrants of different nationalities separated during their detention, and that emigrants from England to the United States would do well to bear this fact in mind.

Sir Harry Brittain, member for the Acton Division of Middlesex, asked whether it was not far better for British emigrants to go to some section of the empire.

Mr. McNeill did not reply, but the question evoked cheers from the ministerial benches.

Robert E. Todd, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, declined yesterday to discuss the statement made in the British House of Commons by Roland McNeill, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, that conditions at the station constitute a serious hardship to persons of any refinement. He said it was a matter for the State Department to consider.

The Commissioner did say, however, that he had seen many immigrant stations in Europe, and Ellis Island was at least the equal of any of them.

"While it was not built as a first-class hotel," he said, "every effort is made to keep it clean and to keep the people there in the proper frame of mind."

HOLD THREE AMERICANS FOR TAKING CHINA ARMS

HANKOW, China, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—At the Consular Court hearing yesterday on the seizure by Rear Admiral Phelps, Commander of the American warships on the Yangtse, of six airplanes destined for the Chinese military forces, it was developed that the planes were landed at Hankow on a customs permit issued on the authority of the Minister of War. The customs documents classified the planes as munitions. The purchase of the planes was financed by the Hongkong-Shanghai Bank.

James Slevin, an American, who was arrested in connection with the seizure, is charged with violation of the arms embargo agreement of Pogo and the President's proclamation of March, 1922, regarding the trading in arms.

HONG KONG, Dec. 6. (Associated Press).—An engineer and a storekeeper of the American steamship President Jackson have been sentenced to six months' imprisonment on a charge of trading in arms.

BULGARIAN REBELS FLEE.

Band That Occupied Kostendil Dispersed by Government Forces.

SOFIA, Dec. 5.—The band of Macedonian autonomists who occupied Kostendil Tuesday morning evacuated the town in the afternoon, the Press Bureau says. The band, which was accompanied by members of the Opposition bloc, withdrew without resistance in the face of a Government detachment.

It was said today that the Government was content to call the incident closed and would take no exceptional measures as a result of it. The general impression is that the movement, ostensibly promoted by the Macedonians, was really attributable to the Opposition bloc, which is using the Macedonian question in its fight against the Government.

The incident was discussed in Parliament today. M. Daskaloff, the Minister of the Interior, said that it was a repetition of the uprising at Nevrokop a month ago. He accused the bourgeois Opposition bloc of acting in connivance with the Macedonians.

HOME AFTER LONG STAY IN GERMANY

RETURN ABOARD MONGOLIA

Other Passengers Agree That High Living Cost and Weak German Currency Has Caused Dissatisfaction.

After an absence of twenty-four years in Germany, Samuel Krebs, an electrical engineer of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Krebs returned yesterday on the Mongolia of the American Line to make their permanent home in their native land. The moon was shining and the tall buildings, all new to them, were ablaze with electric lights as the Mongolia steamed to her pier from Quarantine with the engineer and his wife studying the scene from the promenade deck.

"It's grand and beats any stage setting we ever saw in Germany," said Mr. Krebs as he studied the harbor. He said he had worked for the Western Electric Company and other American firms in all parts of Germany and had almost forgotten how to speak English. During the war they were cut off from outside communication in an electric plant in Saxony.

Mr. Krebs said he had been living recently in Nuremburg, where business was quiet except in making toys, for which a market in England and America is found.

"The people are dissatisfied," he said, "and this dissatisfaction is growing everywhere because the cost of living in Germany has increased 1,200 to 1,500 times what it was before the war, while wages have been increased only 500 times. Clerks' wages have been raised only 250 times and educators are only receiving 100 times the pre-war wage scale. You could hardly call it living."

Mr. Krebs said he saw no danger of socialism or communism spreading in Germany.

Another passenger on the Mongolia was F. G. Mollenhauer of 250 Broadway, Secretary of the Sana Corporation. He said he believed the financial resources of Germany would be exhausted soon. It is impossible for financial conditions to improve, he said, with the unstable currency in Germany.

J. A. Scott, United States Vice Consul at Dresden, was also a passenger.

Eighty per cent. of the passengers were rosy cheeked, healthy, good looking German girls, whose fares had been paid by relatives or friends in this country.

In addition to 220 cabin and 148 third-class passengers and mails from Hamburg, the Mongolia brought 2,000 canaries from the Harts Mountains and the Black Forest regions and several hundred cases of German toys.

DECLARE VETERANS BEATEN IN HOSPITAL

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—Charges that a shell-shocked World War veteran was beaten to death and of inhuman treatment of wounded veterans, including a "water cure," were heard today by the Federal Grand Jury, which is inquiring into the former management of the Public Health Service Hospital in this city. Treatment of wounded soldiers in the hospital had been investigated by the Department of Justice at the suggestion of the American Legion. The facts were laid before the Federal Grand Jury today.

The investigation has nothing to do with the present management of the hospital, against which no charges have been made.

Affidavits charging that orderlies in the hospital kept shell-shocked veterans in a bathtub of water of 98 degrees from 8 o'clock in the afternoon until 1 o'clock the following morning were placed before the jury. Details of the ill-treatment of veterans after operations horrified some of the jurymen.

According to an affidavit sworn to by J. H. Collins, a former orderly at the hospital, who had been a Major in the army, Alphonso Swerts, a Belgian inmate, who had been in the American Army, was beaten by four orderlies and died twenty minutes later. The affidavit of Mr. Collins, which was read to the Grand Jury, said, in part:

"On Dec. 10, 1921, while I was an orderly at the hospital, I was placed in Receiving Ward A from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight. The conditions as I found them in the hospital were disgusting, revolting and appalling.

"There was a 225-pound man in that ward who was constantly kept in a straitjacket and in a filthy condition and received absolutely no attention. There was a wounded soldier in the ward who was suffering from an infectious disease. He, along with tubercular patients and other patients suffering from contagious diseases, was allowed to sit at the same table with other veterans who were merely shell-shocked.

"The name of one of the men who had this contagious disease was Schoies. I took particular care of Schoies and I contracted the disease from him. His blankets were mixed with other blankets, and one week he would have a blanket and the following week it would be given to another patient.

"There were no supplies for tubercular patients at the hospital and those patients were herded with healthy veterans suffering from only mental trouble. They expectorated on the floor and no effort was made to stop them."

Among the nurses who testified today were Miss Victoria Robinson, Miss Whitehall, Mrs. Read and Mrs. Pelton, the head nurse. Miss Cecil Kennedy, a representative of the American Red Cross, appeared before the jury this morning. The nurses were at the hospital when Swerts died and Miss Kennedy attended the funeral of the veteran.

J. G. Shuey, an agent of the Department of Justice, who conducted the original investigation, said:

"Swerts was inhumanly treated. I found he had been given long baths in hot water and had been assaulted by the orderlies."

Shuey said he was present when Swerts's body was exhumed, three months after burial, and saw that three of the man's ribs had been broken.

Dr. William Dobson testified that Swerts was badly bruised when he was received at the hospital, where he was brought from the Indiana County (Pa.) Jail, where he had been confined because of his insane violence.

MOTHER AND SON INDICTED.

Accused of Murder of Her First and Second Husbands.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 6.—Indictments charging murder, first degree, was returned against Mrs. Gertrude Gerstenberg Guerriori and her seventeen-year-old son Lester, by the Greene County Grand Jury, sitting at Catskill today.

The indictments charge them with the slaying of the woman's first and second husbands, Emil Gerstenberg, the first husband, died four years ago of poisoning alleged to have been placed in root-beer by Mrs. Gerstenberg, and carried to him by the son, then thirteen years old.

What is it that you buy or sell?

IF YOU SELL goods to someone who in turn sells them to someone else, the greatest thing you can have to talk about is resalability.

If you are a merchant and buy goods to sell, the quality you will pay most for in any merchandise is resalability.

You cannot count upon the readiness of the public to buy goods about which the public knows nothing.

You are reasonably safe in relying on the public to buy goods with which the public is favorably acquainted.

That $1,000 Reward Remains Unclaimed

Some time back, we found it necessary to strenuously protest against those who found it to their interests to stem the wide public approval that met our efforts to deal direct with the public, by causing to be published broadcast the following statement in conspicuous type:

$1,000 REWARD—This sum will be paid to any person or persons furnishing information that will substantiate a suit at law, either civil or criminal, against any individual or individuals responsible for any false statement of fact against this firm, particularly as follows: 1—That we are not clothing manufacturers. 2—That we cannot sell below usual retail store prices. 3—That we do not refund any or every dissatisfied patron's purchase money on demand. 4—That the woolens we use are not 100 per-cent. pure. 5—That we were not intimidated and threatened by certain retail clothing interests in our efforts to sell direct to the public. (Signed) Finkelstein & Maisel.

This bold challenge had the desired effect—for some time.

But lately, and with studied persistency apparently, the old canards have been revived and sent forth on their errand of malice, but with extra emphasis on the $1,000 reward.

Therefore, we feel called upon to herewith renew the above reward, with every assurance to the thousands of friends we have made, and the public in general, that Finkelstein & Maisel are really clothing manufacturers, offering clothing values that are exceedingly unusual.

All Suits Reduced 20%
All Overcoats Reduced 15%

This makes the new scale of prices on suits made of fine wool serges, worsted, tweeds, etc., $19.60, $23.60, $26.40, $30.00, $31.60 and $36.40 for suits with two pairs of trousers.

On overcoats, belted and unbelted ulsters, Chesterfield and other latest models, the new prices are $20.83, $25.08, $28.05, $31.68 and $33.58.

So much for the prices, sensational in the extreme, needless to say. But what about the cut, trimmings, finish and the many little things so essential in a suit or overcoat that the average good dresser demands, but can only obtain at big cost?

That's the important point we want you to bear in mind. Verily, seeing is believing, in this instance. You must see and wear a Finkelstein & Maisel suit or overcoat to truly appreciate their real value, with our guarantee to refund your money instantly, if you feel dissatisfied in any particular.

AMERICA FINDS HER VOICE.

The address made at Lausanne yesterday by Ambassador CHILDS, undoubtedly in pursuance of explicit and detailed instructions by Secretary HUGHES, is in many ways the most notable utterance on foreign policy made by the present Administration. By it this country at once takes again its place in European affairs. In a way which might have been thought dictatorial and eagle-screaming had not the statement been made, in all probability, after private exchange of views with the Allied Powers, the United States undertook to lay down a policy binding on the Near East conference. At least, our Government served notice that it would submit to no other policy.

Going further and in a bolder way than either Great Britain or France or Italy has yet done, the American definition of the freedom of the Straits and of the accessibility of the Black Sea was made in the most uncompromising terms. The Dardanelles must always be open to vessels, whether of war or commerce, in times whether of peace or of war. Any limitation upon the free passage of American ships for any lawful purpose in any international waters is repudiated in the firmest language by the declarations of Ambassador CHILDS. The suggestion of admitting one warship at a time is scorned. Control of the Straits, or of the commerce of the Black Sea by any one nation or group of nations, is asserted to be inconsistent with the principle of entire freedom to all, by which the United States will stand or fall. In words which have a Roosevelttian echo, the Washington Administration notifies Europe that, while the United States has gone and is willing to go far in naval disarmament, > no nation would be readier to maintain a sufficient naval force to act as the police of the free seas to protect its citizens and their ships wherever they might be, to suppress piracy or other menaces, and to act at times for the public good and give relief to the suffering, just as ships of war have recently done in the Near East.

The logical and inevitable consequences of such an announcement of policy are obvious. We must be ready to co-operate in carrying out our own declared purposes. The allied plan, as made public at Lausanne, is for an international commission of control to keep open the Dardanelles and the Bosporus. Membership in that commission is to be offered to the United States. How can we refuse to accept it? It cannot be that the Administration will shrink from backing up its brave words by appropriate acts. What we demand we must help to secure. In this matter, at least, America must resume her seat, while insisting upon her full rights, at the council table of Europe.

There can be little doubt that this exposition of America's position will be warmly approved by the people of the United States. The Washington Government has frequently seemed to feel hampered in its foreign policy by a fear that the public would not endorse straightforward and vigorous expressions of our views and plans. That has certainly not been true in the past, and there is no sufficient reason to believe that it is true today. Nobody wants war or even rumors of war, but the prevailing sentiment would favor every just and simply assertion of the righteous purposes and the undoubted power of the United States. If our Department of State can so successfully maintain American rights of navigation and speak as if sure of its authority as well as its good cause, the hesitation and timidity which have been shown in making representations to Turkey regarding her imperiled Christian population cannot much longer be justified. The courage needed for the action now taken is surely great enough to be equal to the other. If the American Government can find a resolute voice to protest against interference with its ships, it might, without hurting anybody's feelings or endangering any national interests, pluck up spirit enough to let the Turk know what it thinks of wholesale deportations equivalent as they are to sentencing hundreds of thousands of women and children to death.

SECRETARY MELLON'S SUGGESTIONS.

The Secretary of the Treasury selects in characteristically simple and matter-of-fact language, in his annual report, to the past year's largest achievement of his department—the reduction and refunding of the public debt. This reduction during the fiscal year of a thousand million dollars in outstanding Government obligations—chiefly in the short-term floating debt which a year ago had reached all but unmanageable proportions—has been accompanied by an exceedingly skillful anticipation of the huge maturities, next Spring, of the $4,500,000,000 Victory 4¾ per cents of 1919. Partly through outright redemption in advance and partly through conversion into lower-rate bonds with a different maturity, a Treasury situation which not so very long ago was believed by Wall Street to foreshadow a 5 per cent. refunding loan in 1923 is now such as to make its handling easy.

Mr. MELLON's recommendations for legislation are not many; they include his views how escape from income taxes may be rendered more difficult. The Secretary urges "prompt adoption" of the proposed constitutional amendment against future issue of tax-exempt securities. Such an effort is not promising. Apart from the dislike entertained by thoughtful people of invoking constitutional amendments to help out an inconvenient situation, there would be no assurance as to the attitude of the legislators. This is a matter in which the State Governments are sure to press for retention of a privilege which enables them to borrow on advantageous terms.

There is reason also to doubt the responsiveness of Congress to the Secretary's suggestion that, since the high surtaxes "are defeating their own purpose" by driving the recipients into tax-exempt investments, the surtaxes should themselves be reduced. The principle underlying this advice is wholly sound and is recognized as such by all experienced economists. But its embodiment in actual legislation by the present Congress will hardly be expected.

More immediately feasible is Mr. MELLON's further suggestion that the part of the tax law concerning deduction of investment losses from tax declarations be revised. That provision was rightly incorporated in the law; its omission would have involved great injustice, especially when investment profits were made taxable. But the privilege is notoriously abused—not least through the selling of stocks or bonds on a falling market, with the purpose of buying them back at the selling price or lower, yet deducting from tax declarations the loss from the original purchase price. This practice is not only hurtful to the revenue but demoralizing to the investment market. The Secretary points out the two methods of reform: to limit such deduction of losses to 12½ per cent., as is done in limiting taxable gains on capital transactions, or to accept the English practice of ignoring either capital gains or losses in the tax returns.

A STATE FUNCTION.

A decision of the Court of Appeals, unanimously affirming a judgment of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, gives further support to the principle that education is a State function. A high school boy in the town of Arcadia, in Wayne County, received injuries while operating a buzz-saw as a part of his school work. The court held that while the members of the Board of Education are protected from individual liability where "their official character is the opportunity or occasion of their neglect," the board itself, being a corporate body, is liable for its own negligence and, furthermore, is not absolved from liability because it is a Government agency. Negligence in this case was conclusively established and a judgment was entered in favor of the guardian of the injured boy.

In reaching this decision the court, Mr. Justice POUND writing the decision, declares that the "Board of Education is the agency by which the State delegates the power and duty of controlling the schools in the district." In the case of New York City, though the district is co-terminous with the city, and embraces five or six millions of people, it is still a school "district" and is subject to the Board of Education, to which as a corporate body the State delegates the control of the schools. There is much public confusion in this matter, because the Mayor of the city appoints in this district the members of the Board of Education. In theory he is acting as a representative of the State in doing so. As a matter of fact, the public generally holds him responsible as a city official. For his own sake he ought to be freed from that ambiguous responsibility. It is to give this relief and lodge responsibility where it belongs that direct election of the board by the people of the district is urged.

The decision goes on to say that the board "is bound to act with due regard for the safety of the children." The court was thinking of their physical safety, and in so doing found for the children. There are, according to Superintendent ETTWEIN, 197,906 elementary pupils on "double session" and 94,640 on short-time instruction in this district alone, not to mention those in overcrowded classes. There is neglect here to do all that should be done for these children. The board is liable, of course, only to the extent that funds have been vested in it for such use. It is not responsible that the funds are inadequate or that its hands are tied by red tape or other bonds. But if the "district" were held liable by the State for the injury done to these hundreds of thousands of children, through the lack of that which the State promises to all children, the damages would be beyond estimate.

DISARMING GERMANY.

It would be easy to adduce evidence that Germans are arming for another war against France, but it would be difficult to prove that their activities are a menace to France at this time. A distinction should be made between Germans and Germany. The present Government has no intention of engaging in war, nor have the masses of the people. But individuals, including officers of all ranks who served in the late conflict, the Junkers, and the old bureaucratic class generally, would not be averse to a war of revenge and may be suspected of agitating to bring it about—not this year or next, but some day. M. CLEMENCEAU's list of forty-five caches of arms and munitions, discovered by the Military Inter-Allied Commission of Control since July 15, 1921, is substantially correct. Machine guns, rifles, and parts of machine guns and rifles, cannon, ammunition of various kinds, artillery "pieces," breech blocks, grenades, revolvers, explosives and pontoons were brought to light, but it is doubtful whether a full division could be equipped with the material wrung from the Germans who were trying to hide it. Their will to wage a war of revenge was clearly indicated by the discoveries, but did they signify a menace to France and the French Army? If so, when?

By the end of 1921 Germany was 95 per cent. disarmed. The Military Commission had worked quickly, if not always smoothly, for obstacles were put in its way. The accomplishment was greater than could have been expected. As regards artillery, the disarmament was 97 per cent. complete; as regards machine guns and rifles, 93 per cent. Here are some of the figures: Of field guns up to 7.7 centimeters 16,906 had been surrendered and 16,885 destroyed. Of guns larger than 7.7 centimeters 4,186 were surrendered and 4,100 destroyed. Of field howitzers up to 10.5 centimeters 8,103 were surrendered and 8,101 destroyed. Of heavy howitzers and mortars above 10.5 centimeters 3,867 were surrendered and 3,856 destroyed. Of machine guns 86,505 were surrendered and 84,168 destroyed. Of rifles and other small arms 4,460,649 were surrendered and 4,351,027 were destroyed. Of bombs 782,875 were surrendered and 647,035 destroyed. Of all other equipment used in war there was the same story. War industrial disarmament, that is to say the destruction or conversion of plants that manufactured war material, presented a more difficult problem, but the Military Commission hewed to the line, despite the charge made but not always believed, that the dismantlement was instigated by France to cripple Germany and eliminate her from competition. German man power could not be reduced, but the millions fit for military service could not be armed or even trained for war in a way to make them formidable for a long time to come. According to a British General who served on the commission, the Germans were so closely watched that if they had desired to manufacture poison gases the opportunity was never allowed them. No modern army could keep the field without an adequate air force. By midsummer of 1921 the Germans complied with provisions of the Peace Treaty by destroying 14,721 airplanes and hydroplanes and 24,208 motors. To the Allies 2,775 planes and 1,800 motors were delivered.

The Germans have not submitted to disarmament with good grace. Officers and agents of the Interallied Commission have been insulted and maltreated by mobs. It has been necessary to warn the German Government that if violations of the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty did not cease the commission would have to continue its work beyond the time set for disarmament. A real menace to France may lie in the manufacture of arms in Russia under German supervision. The scale of it is not definitely known. An English observer who visited Germany recently has expressed the opinion that the assembling and concealing of arms was a threat to the Republican Government and not to France. If that Government should be overthrown, the danger to France might become imminent through a military alliance with Russia. M. CLEMENCEAU may have such an eventuality in mind when he talks about a war of revenge, and he may sincerely believe that Germany is arming spiritually and would arm militarily if she could. If this is the case he pleads powerfully when he declares that the allies of France are bound by moral obligations to give her their support and thus avert the war which she has cause to fear.

THE OLD GUARD TURNS.

Startling news comes from Albany. It appears that the Republican moss-backs, the old fogies, the hoary reactionaries, whom the progressives were cheerfully starting out to obliterate, have resolved to fight back. They threaten to "start something" on their own account. This plainly violates all the rules of political warfare. If the Old Guard is suddenly to appear as that wicked animal which bites when it is attacked, a great many lovely plans will have been made in vain. The last thing which discredited conservatives are expected to do is to start something, to begin a counter-revolution. Their assigned role is to lie down humbly and let the triumphant progressive chariot pass over them.

The Albany recalcitrants propose to change all this. Meeting treery with theory, they declare that the true seat of Republican authority in this State is north of the Bronx. Hence they claim the right to resist dictation by enterprising reformers from New York City. They point out that the Republican "centre of gravity" has distinctly moved up-State. Acting like men conscious of having it in their control, they defy the busy upheavers to come on and do their worst. If the challenge is accepted, and if the Old Guard maintains its belligerent attitude, we may soon have a centre of hilarity, both up State and down.

Equally irregular and horrifying is the attitude of some of the indurated and unrepentant Republicans at Washington. They are refusing meekly to open their mouths and swallow every nostrum offered to them by the Farmer-Labor prescription-mongers. It is even said that the White House is not ready to take a short cut to the millennium by way of miscellaneously amending the Constitution. This is a parlous state of affairs. Time was when beaten or even shaken conservatives looked about in alarm and besought the forward-lookers to give them the easiest terms possible. Now the stiff-backed old sinners are actually talking about imposing terms upon the saints. This will doubtless seem to the progressives a culmination of reactionary crime, but to the impartial onlooker it holds promise of a political struggle in which the best men may not win, but which will surely furnish a great deal of public amusement.

BONAR LAW'S "MINORITY."

Shortly after the British election, Mr. LEON GEORGE viewed with alarm the fact that the Conservatives were in a popular minority. He was sure that a minority Administration "will help to discredit the Government with certain classes of the community." Americans were able to endure minority Administrations like Mr. LINCOLN's and Mr. WILSON's. Doubtless Mr. GEORGE would have resigned himself to minority government if the National Liberals had been the chief minority. He viewed with further alarm the possibility of a Labor Administration, "placed in power by a decisive majority of members elected by a minority of votes." He didn't indicate what legislation should be adopted to change the system which, temporarily at least, he so deplores.

"Intellectuals" also deplore it. Thus The Nation of London solemnly tells us that Mr. LAW's Government is deprived of "moral force" because it was put into power by a minority. And The New Statesman weeps to reflect that "once more we have an unrepresentative Parliament." Even The Spectator, which should have been cheered by the result of the elections, is grieved that a number of Labor seats was gained because "the anti-Labor vote was split." In a letter to The London Times, Mr. A. P. HERBERT, a brilliant humorist and novelist, deals ironically with some of the disappointed moralisers about a minority vote:

> It is clear (1) that the successes of the Conservative and Labor Parties were both illusory; (2) that during the past three weeks we have been sadly wasting our time; and (3) that democracy is no good. Over 136 seats were won by a minority of the total votes polled—and in all these cases it would seem that had there been a straight fight (1) the liberal vote would have been given to a Conservative and not to Labor (Spectator), and (2) the Liberal vote would have been given to Labor and not to a Conservative (Nation and New Statesman). Which of these conclusions is correct it is not for me to suggest, but it is clear that so long as the three parties remain in being and our electoral system remains the same we are doomed to have "unreal" elections and "unrepresentative" Parliaments.

The only prescribed cure for the disease, if disease it be, is Proportional Representation. That has the additional merit of being supported by many earnest reformers. Mr. SPEACHT of The Spectator, for instance, merely vaneraten the Referendum. Proportional Representation he adores. Well, the Secretary of the Proportional Representation Society has analyzed the election figures. The House, chosen under Proportional Representation, would have stood: Conservatives, 256; Labor Co-operatives, 167; Independent Liberals, 100; National Liberals, 69; others, 17. That is, the Conservatives would have had substantially their present majority over the next strongest party, but would have been in a minority of more than 100 in the whole House. There would have to be another Coalition or an unstable combination of groups, liable to be displaced at any moment by a new Government or a new election.

Mr. HERBERT's moral for the benefit of the moralists about minority government is too good to lose:

> Though reason tells us that our electoral system is inconceivably bad, that once again our people have returned to power a Government which they cordially dislike, yet in a stupid, muddle-headed sort of way we have secured a Government which will have at least the opportunity, and the time, to govern—of its own strength and in a straightforward way. And that, I suppose, is after all the main point of an election.

According to The London Nation, the Bonar Law Government was kept in power "by the division of the Progressive vote between Liberalism and Labor." Mr. HERBERT shows that, of 170 single-seat "[illegible]" constituencies, the Conservatives won 54, Labor 66, the Independent Liberals 19, the National Liberals 10. So, as The Nation's theory that all non-Conservatives are Progressives, "the two sides divide the profits of these constituencies fairly equally at 83 and 82." Mr. HERBERT chuckles as he enumerates among these minority "Progressives" such stalwarts as Sir JOHN SIMON, Mr. CLYNES, Mr. RAMSAY MACDONALD, Mr. SNOWDEN [illegible] and the Communist, Mr. NEWBOLD. I hope we shall hear a little less on this subject." Probably his hope will be justified. A good politician has to learn the art of being a "good loser"; and wailers over what might have been at an election make the public grin.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Will They Heed His Appeal?

As the new Governor General of Ireland says that he means and expects to remain the "THE HEALY" of his old fighting days, and as evidently he ascribes importance to this as indicative of the simplicity that will mark his part of the administration of the Free State, it is not necessary for others to name him with more formality. He is not dependent on forms and ceremonies, fortunately, as the measure or compulsion of respect, and he is the better fitted for his difficulty that his record is as much marked by the picturesque and the humorous as it is by proofs of an underlying seriousness and by demonstrations of his high ability as a lawyer and a parliamentarian.

A worker for recognition of Ireland as a nation long before most of those who now are imperiling that nationality were born, no sane Irishman, without anger or derision, can hear THE HEALY described as an agent of the British tyrant, and antagonism to him, or suspicion of him, will be possible only to mad or vicious enemies of Irish freedom, achieved at last after so many weary centuries of struggle that often seemed hopeless.

And on his first day in office, THE HEALY had something to say to Americans of Irish birth or descent—to the Americans to whom he himself, more than once and always effectively, has appealed for help. He asked them—all of them—to lend their encouragement to the Free State Government—"our Government," he called it—and added, "or at least not to give its enemies financial aid."

Whoever does not heed this entreaty will take upon himself a heavy responsibility and will deserve the severest of condemnation from all real friends of Ireland. Further agitation in behalf of the theoretical and impossible "republic" is nothing less than criminal, even when it is not accompanied by murder, as it so often has been in the last year, and the giving of money to the ex-Varsity faction is the financing of the blackest form of treason to Ireland and the Irish.

Prosecutors May Well Be Puzzled.

In the District Attorney's office there is no failure to realize how difficult it will be to conduct an effective campaign against the Ku Klux Klan. Nowhere except within its own circle is there any doubt that it is a vicious organization—that its methods of attaining its ends are utterly wrong and therefore utterly reprehensible. Its professed purposes, however, are not only innocuous, but commendable, and for its summary suppression—for the prosecution of its members, merely as members—there is no law and in all probability should be none.

Only in overt acts can the Klansmen be criminal, and only through some as yet uncommitted blunder by their leaders can a direct connection between illegal acts and the Klan itself be established. Whatever the individual member may do, if it is against the law it is done by him as an individual, and Klansmen not directly implicated can profess horror at his conduct and satisfaction over his punishment.

The trouble lies in the fact that in the open publications and public utterances of the Klansmen only generalities appear. Their object is to elevate morals, to preserve order, to sustain the Government, to preserve Americanism. How they are to do all this they never say. That the method is one of terrorism and secret vengeance has become a matter of common knowledge, but it is not on that account the easier to prove or the harder to deny.

Cancer and its Treatment.

"When doctors disagree," it is not for others to say who is right, and never was this truth in more need of remembrance than in the case of Dr. L. DUNCAN BULKLEY, with whose views as to the proper treatment of cancer the physicians and surgeons of the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital have felt obliged publicly to express their profound dissent.

With that highly esteemed institution Dr. BULKLEY has until recently, from its establishment—with which he had much to do—been connected. For years he was the senior physician, though the title of Senior Physician has not been his officially. Long since he came to the conclusion that cancer was but the symptom of a constitutional condition, and that the best—or almost only chance of curing it lay, not in using the knife, but in changing the underlying and causative condition by medical, dietetic and hygienic measures.

This opinion, of course, is in direct conflict with that held strongly and insistently preached, not only by those who have been Dr. BULKLEY's associates in the hospital, but with practically all physicians and surgeons the world over. His books have made some converts, but not many, and it is safe to say that in the judgment of his profession he is wrong—tragically and desperately wrong.

Naturally, a man of Dr. BULKLEY's learning and experience supports his view with arguments not lightly to be dismissed, and he has achievements on which to base his contentions. He has not succeeded, however, after prolonged effort, and there is no present indication that he is going to succeed, in convincing his professional brothers that his theory is sound. The sensible thing for the layman to do, therefore, would seem to be to heed the majority—the very great majority—of experts and to go to the surgeon at the first suspicion of suffering from the most terrible of all diseases.

If this is done soon enough, cure and safety are promised. But meanwhile, unfortunately, the number of cancer victims appears to be increasing steadily, in spite of the surgeons.

A Familiar Flowering of Pugilism.

We have had prize-fights and boxing scandals in this country. Some of them have been black enough, but none of them has been quite as black as that which now is causing so much excitement in France.

On general principles, the story of the negro SIXE is plausible, but CARPENTIER, the white opponent whom SIXE defeated, always has been of high repute, as pugilists go, and it is his reputation for good sense as well as for honesty that makes difficult the belief that he would enter the miserable plot charged against him. It seems incredible, too, that he thought there was any need for him to buy or arrange a victory by consent. On the other hand, as there is no doubt as to the reality of his defeat, why should the negro's title of champion have been taken from him merely because of subsequent misbehavior? His conduct was exactly what should have been expected by those who raised him to his absurd eminence.

SELECTIVE IMMIGRATION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The well-considered letter of R. M. Bouton in THE TIMES of Nov. 26 on problems of immigration gives the impression, though probably not intended, that selection and reasonable limitation are incompatible. As a matter of fact, with immigration unrestricted in amount, selection has been found to be practically impossible. On the other hand, when once you have established limitation, the popular mind, working on rather simple lines, turns at once to getting the best selection out of the available applicants for admission. Therefore, limitation actually produces selection, and is in no way an alternative.

At the present time, under the menace of a vast number of people who are not wanted in this country, and to whom are given inducements, sometimes forcible, to depart from their own country, a numerical limit is a definite measure of safety. Its great advantage is that it cannot be evaded or nullified by officers of the executive department, as has often been the case in the past when we tried to limit by selective qualifications.

There can be no doubt that within the present numerical limit it is possible, by good selective means, to get in all the persons that are actually needed for our industries and at the same time to take in only those who would make desirable fellow-citizens. That appears to be the best solution of the immigration question.

Capacity of Irish Hens.

I have read in THE TIMES that the Commerce Department of the Irish Free State reports to the American Consulate at Dublin that during the first three months of 1922 Ireland exported 252,000,000 eggs. As there are no cold storage plants in Ireland eggs cannot be kept there for years as in America, and as there are over 2,900,000 people in Ireland it would take at least 3,000,000 eggs for daily consumption, thereby making a demand on the laying capacity of the hens of at least 6,000,000 per day. Now to get 6,000,000 eggs in a day there would have to be almost 30,000,000 hens in Ireland, estimating as much as one hen out of every five laying eggs during the worst months of an Irish Winter. Perhaps now that Ireland has got her freedom Irish hens have stopped talking politics and are laying two to five eggs per day.

Too Many Holidays.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A member of the next Legislature seeking lasting fame can obtain it by pushing through a bill wiping out all holidays in this State with the exception of Fourth of July.

Every business house suffers from these frequent holidays. Employees begin to prepare for a holiday two days in advance, and every one will admit it takes several days to recover from a holiday.

The City Dumps.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg space in your paper for an appeal to civic pride by which the street dumps will give place to necessary playgrounds, that our waterfront, instead of being loathsome and unwholesome, may be developed into play spaces where in safety from disease and automobiles the child of the city street may have a glimpse of beauty, which he cannot find in a dirty crowded thoroughfare.

THE TERRIBLE TURK.

When made from metal, wood or bone.
He ornaments your writing desk,
Is effigy and all alone.

But when he's clothed in flesh and blood
(The latter seems his favorite wear)
It's not at all the same affair.

For me, I'd keep him in the house
Beside a carcbeard minaret,
Where he could never harm a mouse
And had no shiny blades to whet.

Cause Christian peoples some surprise
By turning Allah loose on them.

I like my tiny toyland Turk,
And glaring fiercely while I work,
But then he's just three inches high.

And those abroad, who deal in oil,
Are safer, it would seem, than we—
The statesmen who divide the spoil
Not even toy shop Turks will see.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The statement in the morning's Times from one Thomas W. Miller, who charges, in effect, that my brother, Irwin Untermyer (now a passenger on the steamship Olympic on his way to Lausanne and therefore unable to answer for himself), was an "evasionist" under the draft act and was granted exemption from military duty as a farmer, is unqualifiedly false. The fact is that my brother was about to be called to the colors as a married man with a non-dependent family when the war ended. On his own statement he received exactly the same classification (Division A, Class II.) as every other lawyer of his own age with a non-dependent family, and was about to respond with them to the call in the colors that was then impending.

The attitude of my brother is best expressed in his own words in a statement from him that was published in the morning papers of Oct. 25, 1920, in the following words:

> The statement that I sought to evade military duty is an utter and complete falsehood and has evidently been circulated by my political adversaries from unworthy motives.
> "I was not included within the ages covered by the first call. In my return to the second call I explicitly stated that my occupation was that of a lawyer. In compliance with the instructions of the War Department with respect to agricultural and industrial pursuits, I also showed, as required to do, that I was the owner of a farm of about 500 acres in the State of New York. I stated explicitly that I was only interested in this farm financially and that I was not a farmer but earned my living exclusively by the practice of the law in the City of New York.
> "On my return, which was made before a local board in the City of New York, I was put in class 2-A, just where a lawyer of my age with a non-dependent wife and three children belonged. Had the war not ended so unexpectedly I would in a short time have been called to the service."

As the secrecy of the answers to the questionnaires is so jealously guarded by the draft law against disclosure, it would be interesting to know where Mr. Miller, who is a Federal officeholder, gathered the misinformation on which his statement is based. That canard was thoroughly thrashed out and exploded at the time of the political campaign referred to by Mr. Miller.

ADMINISTERING THE LAW.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Judge Talley's article in THE TIMES upon some of the reasons for the inefficient administration of the criminal law is excellent and may perhaps usefully be supplemented with a statement of some of the concrete proposals for improvement which the City Club of New York has made to the Legislature. Some would require constitutional amendments. Others could be effected by statute. They are as follows:

Repeal of the present provision of the Code of Criminal Procedure prohibiting comment by the Court or by the District Attorney upon the defendant's failure to take the stand in his own behalf and providing that the defendant shall not be prejudiced by such failure.

Abolition of exceptions to rulings upon challenges to jurors in criminal cases.

Simplification of indictments and more liberal provision for joinder of various offenses in one indictment.

Abolition of present provision for a separate trials of several defendants jointly indicted and provision for letting the Court decide whether such defendants shall be tried jointly or separately.

Modification of Article I., Section 6, which now provides that no person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, by providing for prompt examination of an accused person before a magistrate or other judicial officer, and to be followed by statutory provision for the total abolition of the so-called "third degree."

The proposal is that an accused person shall immediately upon his apprehension be taken before a magistrate or other judicial officer, and, after a statement of the charge against him and opportunity to consult counsel, be subject to examination by the magistrate or other judicial officer; the entire examination to be reduced to writing and used against the accused at his trial. The practices, often brutal and always illegal, comprehensively known as the "third degree," should be forbidden and severely penalized, and it should be provided by statute that no admission or confession by an accused person, unless made in writing to a magistrate or other judicial officer, or to a district attorney, or a member of his staff, shall be admissible in evidence against the accused.

Reduction of the number required to constitute a Grand Jury. Serious consideration should also be given to the proposal, frequently made, and which has been carried into effect with satisfactory results in some other States, to abolish the Grand Jury and to provide for prosecution upon information filed by the District Attorney with proper safeguards against the suppression of charges that ought to be prosecuted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial of Nov. 24, showing the unrepresentative character of plurality elections, the writer, in mass, referring to the limited vote, that it was to see in New York City for ten years.

This is only one-third of the fact, for the limited vote was to see in New York City for a continuous period of thirty years from 1887 to 1887—from 1887 to 1914 for Supervisors of New York County, and from 1913 to 1917 for Aldermen of New York City. During this period the county and city were coterminous and local legislative functions were divided between the county Supervisors and the city Aldermen (when both were not the same persons, the city Aldermen being ex officio the county Supervisors).

This fact must be reckoned with by those who claim that a system of proportional representation for the city Board of Aldermen would be unconstitutional under the existing Constitution. The constitutional clauses governing this question were precisely the same during the thirty years referred to as they are today.

HUNTER COLLEGE NEEDS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The elementary schools and high schools of our city are, of course, the greatest educational problems, but they are by no means the only problems worthy of study. In the city where the city stands Hunter College, for women, the finest institution of its kind in the world. Hunter College has an enrolment of thousands and is training that it gives it ranks only the greatest universities in the United States. And yet, with its enormous value, it is at this time "nobody's child" because the vast body of citizens in New York is not as well acquainted with Hunter College as it should be.

While it is true that the students of Hunter College receive a free education, they do pay back in later years for what the city and State have given them. Hunter College trains a great number of the teachers of the elementary schools of the city and gives them not merely a pedagogic training but an academic training and cultural background as well. It likewise trains the vast majority of women teachers for the city high schools. Hunter College has given the fundamental training for women prominent in professional and civic life.

The public of New York City owes a duty to this fine institution. Unlike other colleges, it charges no fees. Hunter College might get about seeking to raise an endowment fund. But as a municipal institution Hunter College, like City College for men, is dependent upon the taxpayer for support, and the taxpayer is, therefore, entitled to know the facts. When Hunter College gets by way of annual allowance is regulated by law; some of it by what the Mayor accepts as "mandatory legislation." The Mayor has recently told the Citizens Union that the reason the city budget is so large is because of mandatory legislation; but you see far as Hunter College and City College are concerned, the salaries college by that mandatory legislation are not being paid and have been stricken from the budget. Few colleges have a limited appeal so far as the public is concerned; Hunter College is worthy of universal support.

Some further facts which every citizen is entitled to know are that many years ago the City of New York promised to the Board of Trustees of Hunter College a new building adequate for the purposes of the college of today. Plans were drawn, one building intended for the high school division of the college was built, and not another move has been made in more than ten years. The high school division has been housed, of necessity, in recent years in vacant rooms of a public school. That course has now been commandeered and Hunter High School must seek new quarters immediately; and those new quarters mean rent, and the present budget allowance does not provide for such expenditure. And the citizens are entitled to know that Hunter High School has the highest academic standing of any high school in the city.

Think of the teachers who teach your children and for whose salaries you pay taxes having to bring mandamus proceedings against the city officials every year in order to collect those salaries to which they are entitled by law! Think of high school children going to schools with hours some of them as late as 5 o'clock in the afternoon! Think of these high school children facing the possibility of having no quarters for the coming year unless the parents of these children, the thinking citizens of New York, come to their rescue!

It is one's privilege to visit Hunter College of the City of New York, at Sixty-eighth Street and Park Avenue, and learn what a splendid educational institution it is. It is the duty of the thinking, taxpaying citizen to rally to the assistance of the college and get for the whole college with all its divisions a new building worthy of it and necessary to its advancement, to get for Hunter College of the City of New York what the public wants.

A MATTER OF DEFINITION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I recently heard a lecture by Herbert Adams Gibbons, in which he made a positive statement that the United States was not offered a mandate over Armenia, but only over a small mountainous section in Asia Minor between Russia and Turkey, which was unfertile and would have been a very expensive undertaking for the United States, without any benefit except to keep the Russians from getting into Turkey.

Now, I notice that Mr. Morgenthau is always referring to our failure to accept the mandate over Armenia. Can you make definitely who is correct, Mr. Gibbons or Mr. Morgenthau, and help to settle an endless argument among a few friends?

Juggling With Traffic.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Of all the intolerable human conditions in town, that at the intersection of Fourteenth Street and Madison Avenue is by the worst. Conditions could be immensely improved if the Fourth Avenue the numbers from downtown were to terminate at Fourteenth Street and Fourth Avenue and the line from uptown either to terminate at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue or be extended down that avenue to Twenty-third Street. People bound for the Grand Central Station would not be at all inconvenienced. Those bound on the way downtown would be the way uptown would save time and expeditiously with the change, in between the two avenues in order to [illegible]. Then stand the intolerable delays and inconvenience, waiting and [illegible] so frequently punctuate that many changes by car. Pedestrians would be benefited, the Forty-second Street and Fourteenth Street would be greatly benefited by such a change. It might ultimately be found possible and desirable to cut a street through the block below Twenty-third Street so as to continue Madison Avenue to Union Square, where the two parts of the car line could be brought together. To save expense it would not be necessary to condemn more than a small strip of sufficient width for the two pairs of tracks and the sidewalks, that leaving the property owners all [illegible] the groome floor. With reasonable traffic regulations such an arrangement would [illegible] to be attained by the surface cars.

MISS FORCE WEDS LORILLARD SPENCER

ONLY FAMILY AT CEREMONY

Bride's Godfather, James F. Jarvie, Gives Her in Marriage—Bridegroom Was Made Major in War.

The wedding of Lorillard Spencer, a son of Mrs. Caroline Berryman Spencer, of Chastellux, Newport, R. I., and Miss Katherine R. Force, a daughter of the late William H. Force, and of Mrs. Katherine Talmage Force, was quietly celebrated yesterday afternoon at the town house of the bride's brother-in-law and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Dick, 7 East Eighty-fourth Street, the latter coming in from Long Island Tuesday to open the house for the wedding.

Miss Force's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Dick, formerly Mrs. John Jacob Aster. Her godfather, James F. Jarvie, gave her in marriage. Philip Lyndon Dodge was Mr. Spencer's best man and there were no other attendants. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter D. Knight of the Mount Washington Church in the presence of the immediate family only. A reception for relatives and a few friends followed.

No announcement had been made of the engagement, but when Miss Force and her mother recently returned from a long trip abroad it was soon understood by their intimate friends that an engagement existed and that the marriage would soon take place. The license to wed was taken out yesterday, and the bride gave her age as 30 and her residence as the Ritz-Carlton. Mr. Spencer gave his age as 39 and his address as 4 West Forty-third Street. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer will make their home in New York on their return from their honeymoon.

Mr. Spencer served on the Mexican Border and later was overseas with the New York National Guard. He was badly wounded and finally returned to this country and took up aviation. He was made a major during the war. His first wife, whom he married in 1905, was Miss Mary Hill Sands, a daughter of Mrs. Frederick F. Sands of Newport, from whom he had a son, Lorillard Spencer Jr. She obtained a divorce last Spring on the ground of neglect to provide.

Cary—Smith.

The marriage of Miss Frances Maiden Smith of this city, sister of Mrs. Charles Eastman Danforth Jr., of 146 East Forty-ninth Street, and Alexander Claxton Cary Sd., of New Rochelle, took place last Monday at Mrs. Danforth's home. The Rev. Father Barry officiated. Mrs. Danforth was her sister's matron of honor and William Guthrie Packard was best man. After their honeymoon the couple will live in Bronxville.

Webster—Edwards.

Miss Olive Shelby Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Shelby Edwards of 601 West 115th Street, was married to William Penn Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weakley Webster of Huntsville, Ala., yesterday at noon, at the Broadway Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. Walter Buchanan officiating. Miss Mabel Cochran was the bride's only attendant, and Evan Shelby Edwards Jr., acted as best man.

After a bridal trip through the South, Mr. and Mrs. Webster will make their home in Huntsville, Ala.

Englewood Girl to Wed Thomas J. Nolan, Former Air Lieutenant.

Mrs. Charles A. Emise of Linden Lawn, Englewood, N. J., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Gertrude Emise, to Thomas J. Nolan of Jersey City, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nolan.

Miss Emise is a daughter of the late Charles A. Emise, Vice President of the Chandler Motor Company, and is a sister of Mrs. James J. Ferris Jr. She attended Brownson School, and has recently returned from an extended trip abroad.

Mr. Nolan was a member of the class of '15 at Cornell, and during the war he served a year and a half in France as First Lieutenant in the Air Service.

Horner—McIntyre.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Justis Horner of 175 Quitman Street, Newark, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Palmer Horner, to Alfred Robert McIntyre of Boston, son of Mrs. Harry Nason Milliken of Newton, Mass. Mr. McIntyre was graduated from Harvard, class of '07, and is a member of the Union, Algonquin and Harvard Clubs of Boston. He served overseas in the 301st Infantry.

WILL ASK HARDING TO SPEED HOSPITALS

Legion Commander to Confer With President Next Tuesday Concerning Veterans.

VISITS INSTITUTIONS HERE

Dissatisfied with the Government's progress with its hospitalization program for war veterans in the Second District, comprising New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, Colonel Alvin Owsley, National Commander of the American Legion, will confer with President Harding next Tuesday to insist that plans for new hospitals in this area be carried out.

Colonel Owsley made this statement at the Hotel Commodore yesterday upon returning from a visit to Veteran's Hospital 81, at Sedgewick Avenue and Kingsbridge Road, where psychiatric patients are housed, and Seton Hospital, at Spuyten Duyvil, a private institution taking care of 120 tubercular veterans. It was Colonel Owsley's first visit as head of the legion to soldier hospitals in the New York district.

"I did not come to New York to make an investigation and find fault," he said. "I simply wanted to see the hospitals and say hello to my buddies. I will not say that everything is all right. I will say that the institutions that were shown me are a credit to any State.

"New York's hospitalization problem is not only a local problem; it is a national one, and our attention must be given to the hurried completion of the proposed Federal hospitals for tubercular cases at Chelsea, N. Y., and Tupper Lake, N. Y. Plans were made some time ago for the erection of institutions at these places, and they are sorely needed, but Colonel Forbes, Director of the Veterans' Bureau, has since then decided not to give the $750,000 he promised. There is no doubt in my mind that the sooner we get away from the smaller unit hospitals and get our patients in institutions entirely under Government supervision with a personnel of character and quality who know how to deal with service men in a genuine, helpful, and not sympathetic way, the quicker our problem will be solved.

"Just before coming to New York, said Commander Owsley, he had a conference with President Harding who assured him, he stated, that he would give his personal attention to the problems of the ex-service men. In view of this assurance, Commander Owsley will press upon the President next week the absolute necessity of rushing through the Government's building program.

Colonel Owsley said Brig.-Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, personal physician of President Harding and head of the Federal Board of Hospitalization, was present when the President promised to speed up this program. "It never was done before." The Legion Commander also took up with the President, he said, complaints that ex-service men did not get the full benefit of the Civil Service act, which was designed to give them preference. "The President seemed much interested," said Colonel Owsley and asked him to submit to him instances of neglect.

Another result of his conference with the President, he said, was the President's declaration that he would keep in closer touch with the Veterans' Bureau, the Federal Board of Hospitalization and the American Legion.

Colonel Owsley, Bernard Day, Chairman of the Legion's Hospitalization Committee for the second district, who accompanied Colonel Owsley, said he was "disgusted and disgruntled" with conditions in the district.

Major W. F. Lent, Manager of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau of the Second District, was not blamed by the Legion officials for any of the conditions. Dr. R. B. Robinson, Chief of the Neuro-Psychiatric Cases of this area, complained that physicians were not easily obtainable for that work.

Colonel Owsley speaks today at a luncheon of the State Chamber of Commerce and immediately afterward will leave for Indianapolis, where he will attend a meeting of State adjutants.

PROF. C. F. CHANDLER IS 86.

Professor Charles F. Chandler and Mrs. Chandler received their friends at a small reception yesterday afternoon in honor of the Professor's eighty-sixth birthday anniversary at their home, 51 East Fifty-fourth Street. Many flowers were received and a number of the Professor's old friends attended, including Elihu Root, Mrs. Frederic Betts, Mrs. Auchincloss, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Shepherd and Mrs. Henry Loomis.

Professor Chandler is professor emeritus of chemistry at Columbia University and technical adviser of the chemical foundation. In 1920 he received the Perkin gold medal for his valuable scientific achievements at a meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry. He was the first American to be president of the society, which is an international body. In addition to his long service at Columbia he was founder of the American Chemical Society, was adviser to the sugar, petroleum, illuminating gas and photographic industries and did much valuable research work.

The Cunarder Tyrrhenia, after a stay of twenty-four hours in port, sailed at noon yesterday with a good list of passengers for Mediterranean ports. The liner is replacing the Tuscania, which is laid up at a Spanish port undergoing repairs to her double reduction geared turbines. The Tyrrhenia will call at Gibraltar, Genoa, Patras, Messina and Naples, making the round voyage in six weeks.

Purser J. M. Ekins said that he was taking a moving picture camera with him this trip as there were all sorts of strange marine monsters disporting themselves in the Mediterranean, due he thought to the recent earthquake shocks. He hoped to get a film picture of the whistling grampus in action, as well as the shovel nosed whale and the bottle faced dugong.

Among the New York passengers were Mrs. Scott Burkham, Mrs. Alexander Clark, Miss Helen O. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin O. Halter and Mr. and Mrs. H. McMahon. Others on the trip were Benjamin F. Chase, American Consul at Messina; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oxnard of the Savannah Sugar Refining Company, and Mrs. J. W. Thompson of Montreal.

TO SAFEGUARD ARCHIVES.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 6.—The Faculty of Princeton University is to petition Congress for an appropriation for the construction of a national archive building in Washington. A committee of the Faculty was appointed to draw up a resolution to the effect at a meeting here today.

It has been felt in academic circles here that the manner in which important diplomatic and historic documents are kept in Washington is rather careless. The most valuable archives are at present scattered in many buildings over the capital city which are neither fireproof nor safe.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Dec. 6.—Count Anton Sigray and Countess Sigray, formerly Miss Harriot Daly, having finally succeeded in obtaining a passport from the Hungarian Government, which had been refused on the ground that the Count had been engaged in monarchist intrigues, left Budapest today for New York.

Louvain Tablet to Honor New York Men.

ALBANY, Dec. 6.—The gallant deeds during the World War of men from New York State will be commemorated by a memorial tablet in the restored library of the University of Louvain, Belgium, to be the gift of the New York National Guard. Adj.-Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid today announced that he had authorized the expenses of the tablet to be charged against the military fund of the several regiments.

Widow Gets James R. Mann's Estate

It bequeaths all the estate to Mrs. Mann and their son, James R. Mann Jr. As the latter died about two years ago, all the property will go to Mrs. Mann.

CLEMENCEAU'S LAST SPEECH HERE DEC. 12

With Jusserand He Will Attend Dinner of Committee for Devastated France.

ITS WORK ABOUT ENDED

French to Carry It On, Especially With Reference to Nurses and Libraries.

Georges Clemenceau and Ambassador Jusserand will be guests of honor at a dinner in the Hotel Pennsylania on Dec. 12 at which the American Committee for Devastated France will open a series of public conferences to show how the money raised for French reconstruction has been spent, and how the work after six years is being turned over to French administration. Clemenceau's speech will be the last he will make before returning home.

The work will be continued by the French for some time. There are many branches of the work that need further development, the most important being the development of public health nursing and the training of competent French nurses, according to Mrs. Anne M. Dike, who has been in active charge of the committee work abroad for six years.

"France had no conception of the trained nurse as we know her, said Mrs. Dike. "Six months practical experience after a very insufficient training in a hospital was considered adequate. But the work of our nurses, showing what a properly qualified woman can do, has aroused the medical profession to this need of France. The French Government report for the entire Department of the Aisne showed an infant mortality rate of eighty-seven per thousand. In the region under our nurses' care the rate is thirty-five per thousand, comparing most favorably with American records. The American committee will provide a way so that in the future the French nurses will be able to receive the benefit of modern training methods.

"The situation in France with regard to public libraries was somewhat similar. Famous libraries there were open to the scholar, the student, but until we introduced American methods there was no real conception of the public library as we know it. Now, as the result of our work and of co-operation with French officials, scholarships have been opened to French women so that they can be educated in America in library administration and return to France to put their training into effect."

SHOW WHITE MEMORIAL.

Daniel C. French Exhibits His Bas Relief of Brooklyn Philanthropist

There was shown at the Daniel Chester French studio, 12 West Eighth Street, yesterday, the completed bas relief in plaster, by Mr. French, to be erected in bronze, in the Brooklyn Botanical Garden in the Spring in memory of the late Alfred Tredway White of Brooklyn. The cost of the memorial, $25,000, is contributed by friends of Mr. White and by admirers of his estimable character and of his public service. The work is in charge of a committee of prominent men, Frederic B. Pratt, Chairman, with Frank L. Babbott, William Hamlin Childs, Walter H. Crittenden, Robert W. De Forest, Darwin R. James, James H. Post, William A. Putnam, Alexander M. White, William A. White, Howard O. Wood.

Of the memorial the committee says: "It is intended not alone as a tribute from personal friends. Its broader purpose is to symbolize for the Brooklyn of today and tomorrow Mr. White's character and his achievements in many enterprises for civic betterment. His leadership in organized philanthropy, social welfare and public service placed the people of Brooklyn very greatly in his debt. The place for the selection of the memorial was selected not only because of Mr. White's personal identification with the gardens, the possession of which the city owes largely to his interest and support, but because it expressively the traits for which he was so widely known and revered."

The putting up of the "Riverside Buildings" model homes for working men in Brooklyn was one of the important philanthropic movements in which Mr. White took a prominent place, and he was for thirty years President of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities.

The bas relief which in itself is 6 feet high by 5½ feet long, has nothing of the stereotyped memorial in it. It is very beautiful. At the right is the seated figure of a woman with a nude child beside her. In her hand is a wreath. The child and she reaches toward a laurel bush in blossom before her on the opposite side of the plaque, beneath the drooping branches of an oak tree.

There will be a background of stone to the tablet which will be placed in an enclosed area in the Gardens. The heroic figure in the Lincoln Memorial Temple in Washington was the work of Mr. French, and Henry Bacon, who was the architect of the Lincoln Temple, is associated with Mr. French in designing the setting for this memorial. Both sculptor and architect were personal friends of Mr. White.

D'ANNUNZIO SERIOUSLY ILL.

Poet's Illness May Be Partially Due to Accident Last August.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Gabrielle D'Annunzio is seriously ill at Gardone, according to a dispatch to the Central News from Rome.

It is possible that the illness now reported is at least partially due to the accident that befell the poet last August during an attack of vertigo, when he fell from the terrace of his Lake Garda villa. Although advised by his physician to give up all work for several months, d'Annunzio paid little heed to the advice and returned to his varied activities with his customary enthusiasm. On Oct. 25 he was reported as having a slight fever from overwork.

MRS. HARVEY OUT OF DANGER

LONDON, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Although the physicians attending Mrs. George Harvey, wife of the American Ambassador, declare she has so far recovered from her illness to be out of danger, the Ambassador is remaining at Warwick Castle on their advice. He has canceled many engagements in London, including his weekly conferences with the newspaper men.

Mr. Harvey telephoned Secretary Thurston at the embassy that he had been assured there was no cause for alarm, but it was thought best that he remain near his wife.

Son Reports John Wanamaker Better

In reply to a communication from a friend, Rodman Wanamaker telegraphed last night in regard to the condition of his father, John Wanamaker, who has been seriously ill in Philadelphia: "I am happy to say that during the past days my father has shown more of his reserve and vigor and I hope he will be much improved."

Andrew McLean's Funeral.

Services for Andrew McLean, editor of The Brooklyn Citizen, were held last night at his home, 294 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, with the Rev. John Carson, rector of the Central Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, officiating. Among those present were representatives of the City Government and the staff of The Citizen and former associates of Mr. McLean, including Herbert L. Bridgeman, John Walton, John N. Harmon, Edward L. Riegelmann, Justice Edward J. Lazansky and Magistrates Dooley and Walsh.

FRANK H. NEWCOMB DEAD.

Frank H. Newcomb, Assistant Postmaster in Brooklyn from 1902 until his resignation in 1911, died suddenly yesterday afternoon of apoplexy in the Federal Building, Brooklyn. His long service with the Post Office Department in Brooklyn began in 1884 when he took charge of a branch near Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues.

He owned a hat store at 136 Flatbush Avenue, well known to Brooklyn residents, especially local politicians, for Mr. Newcomb had been an active Republican for many years in Kings County. He was born in Easton, Mass., 65 years ago, coming to Brooklyn as a child. He lived with his wife and daughter at 196 Park Place. He was Treasurer of the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church.

$65,000,000 ASKED FOR SCHOOLS IN 1923

CLAIMS BUILDING RECORD

Mayor Says the $71,000,000 Spent by Him in Five Years Never Had Been Equaled.

In explaining his future school program, Mayor Hylan at yesterday's meeting of the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate stated that $71,000,000 already had been spent on schools during the five years of his administration and the program for school construction never before had been equaled by any large city in the world.

"Since the beginning of this Administration, Jan. 1, 1918, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has provided $56,378,000 for the acquisition of sites, construction and equipment of schools and for fire prevention purposes," the Mayor said. "This sum with the $15,000,000 now before the committee will make a total of over $71,000,000 provided during a period of less than five years. This means a gigantic program for the construction of schools never equaled by this city or by any other large city in the world.

"This program was absolutely necessary and was recognized by the present administration when it came into office. These conditions were brought about largely through the neglect and indifference of previous Administrations. During the previous ten years very few schools were constructed to meet the ever increasing congestion in the schools.

"Since Jan. 1, 1918, more than sixty elementary schools and additions thereto have been placed under contract, which will provide a seating capacity of 80,228, and in addition twenty-eight temporary and portable schools with seating capacity of 3,117 have been placed under contract. Also in addition thereto, there have been contracted for high schools or additions with a seating capacity of 12,784.

"The foregoing includes practically all of the 1921 program of the Board of Education and a part of the 1922 program. The balance of the 1922 program, for which plans are now being rapidly prepared by the Board of Education, will provide a seating capacity in elementary schools of 30,000 and 14,000 in the high schools. This 1922 program will involve an expenditure of over $15,000,000. This provides for twenty-three elementary schools and additions and five new high schools.

"The 1923 program submitted by the Board of Education provides for an expenditure of $65,205,000, which will increase the seating capacity in elementary schools by 94,000, and in the high schools by 15,000. This means the construction of thirty-five elementary schools or additions, six high schools and two additions to high schools, and also the construction of a vocational school, new playgrounds and an office building."

Senator-elect Meyer Levy, Democrat, who ran against Senator Schuyler M. Meyer in the Seventeenth Senatorial District, gained more than 1,000 votes through the official count conducted by the Board of Elections. The police returns showed him a winner by 1,061 votes. The official canvass gave his plurality as 2,229.

Soon after election Senator Meyer announced that he would contest the election. No action was begun, however, and yesterday it was stated that in view of the substantial plurality for Senator-elect Levy the proposed action for a recount would be dropped.

BANK CORNERSTONE LAID.

William Rhinelander Stewart, a Trustee of the Greenwich Savings Bank since 1899, yesterday laid the cornerstone for the bank's new home at Thirty-sixth Street and Sixth Avenue, just north of the Herald Square Building. The bank will occupy the entire new building.

Mr. Stewart recited the history of the bank, which is one of the oldest in the city, from the day it opened for business July 1, 1833. The Greenwich Savings Bank's first place of business, he said, was in a small part of the house at 19 Carmine Street, then a residence section of the city. Increasing business caused the removal in 1839 to 11 Sixth Avenue and again in 1846 to the northwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Fourth Street. A third removal was made to the southwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Waverley Place, and the banking house built there was opened May 1, 1864. In 1892 the building now occupied by the bank at the southeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Sixteenth Street was opened.

"After ninety years of steady and honorable growth, we expect to see the Greenwich Savings Bank established in 1923 on this site in its sixth home," said Mr. Stewart. "The new home, like all but the first banking office, will have a front and main entrance on Sixth Avenue as well as one on Broadway."

A razor ad to Women

Men are talking about a new era in shaving. A way that gives the world's fastest shave. And the smoothest.

Now we suggest it as a Christmas delight for women to give. And men folks to each other.

A velvet shave—quickly

Go today to any dealer's. Ask to see a Valet AutoStrop Set.

You will have before you the world's finest shaving mechanism.

Men are proud to own one. A gift of excellence even to the man who owns a dozen razors.

Included in every set is a supply of barber's edged blades—the keenest cutting edge known. Blades kept so keen that once over the face gives a velvet shave. No pulling, no scraping, as in old time ways.

Strops itself

We recommend the use of our famous strop for the same reason a barber strops his razor. It keeps up the keenness. It works as a part of each razor. There if a man cares to use it, or if he chooses, he can just insert new blades as he feels the need. Self-stropping is a patented Valet AutoStrop feature. It helps to give the world's fastest shave every day.

$1.00 and up

You can obtain a Valet AutoStrop Razor at any dealer's, $1 and $5. The difference in price is marked by the superior finish, the better case and the greater number of blades. Gold and silver plated fitted sets—ideal for gifts—are priced up to $25.

The gift that will please every man. It solves the problem.

3 things in a shave, men have never had before

PERSHING AND DAWES HIT REDS AND KLAN

DENOUNCES THE PACIFISTS

IMPEACH HIM, CRY HEARERS

Resolution Condemning the Governor's Action is Passed by Chicago Business Men.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—General Pershing was supported by Charles G. Dawes, former Director of the Budget, in his plea for the suppression of radicals and for more patriotism and a stronger army, here today in speeches at a luncheon of the Association of Commerce given in the former's honor. General Pershing tonight repeated his plea of today through the wireless telephone when he attended the annual dinner of the American Horse Show Society.

The sentiments of the General were accepted by 1,500 men and women at the Association of Commerce luncheon with cheers. A resolution proposed by Mr. Dawes, that Governor Len Small had "besmirched the fair name of the State of Illinois and of the United States" when he commuted the sentence of William Green Lloyd, wealthy communist, and sixteen associates, was adopted amid cries of "impeach him."

"A move to impeach the Governor would do no good," Mr. Dawes said when he could make himself heard. "He is too strong politically and it would be useless to attempt to dislodge him with the methods at our disposal."

"The Governor," the resolution read, "has invaded the judicial part of the Government in thus repudiating the finding of a jury of the people, the judgment of the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois and the judgment of the Justice representing the Supreme Court of the United States.

"We feel that by such act he has besmirched the name of the people of the State of Illinois and of the United States, and has belittled the force of national loyalty and fealty to the nation, and in a great measure discredited the cause for which many have left their mortal remains in the soil of France."

Referring to Congress, Mr. Dawes said:

"There are a lot of demagogues in Congress who have given a lot of them the chance, little by little, to undermine the Constitution of the United States. We must get a new breed of men in place of those cowards in Congress who would murder their country for the sake of a few votes."

General Pershing, referring to Eugene V. Debs, said:

"When a man who has been convicted and sent to prison for his seditious sentiments proceeds, after his release, to take the public rostrum, and then, in that place, defending the principles of Sovietism, is given an ovation by 3,000 or 4,000 persons, what have the people of Chicago to say about it?

"Has the Herrin massacre or the meeting of the Communist party in the Michigan Avenue meeting place? Read the pacifist pledge signed by 1,800 men, calling upon the youth of America to be traitors to her in her hour of need. If we are wide awake we will take action in a case of this sort.

"Do not be misled by those cranks who are always tampering with our Constitution. Let the Constitution alone and live up to it and we will have no further trouble. If you do not like the Government of Illinois or the Government of Chicago, you can change it.

"Our situation is seriously complicated by the teachings of numerous pacifist organizations. Men and women of high purpose preach the doctrine of our disarmament—blind to our recent war experience and deaf to the appeals of reason. The country is being honeycombed with this sort of thing.

"There is little difference between the malign influence of the radical who 'bores from within' and the malign influence of the Ku Klux Klan. We cannot shut our eyes to the activities of the so-called Invisible Empire, whose members in office disregard their public duty and allow their criminals to go unpunished."

He said Congress had reduced the regular army almost to the limits fixed by the Allies for Germany, "intended to make her impotent for war," and emphasized the need of citizens' training camps for officers' reserve corps.

"The situation throughout the world is far from reassuring," he added. "In the language of our Ambassador to Great Britain, Europe is facing the most despairing outlook in history. At home our situation is seriously complicated by the teachings of numerous pacifist organizations, deaf to appeals to reason.

"Others with baser designs wrecklessly advocate internationalism. Both these elements collaborate to reduce our country to a state of impotency, because if for a moment you remove force as the mainstay of government that moment the civilization of 2,000 years will disappear like an exploded soap bubble.

"Following General Pershing's speech a resolution was adopted calling on the Government to maintain a regular army of 150,000 men, completely equipped and maintained in the highest state of efficiency.

"At the Speedway Hospital General Pershing denounced radicals, who are "boring from within," and declared they were working hand in glove with a "lot of cranks."

He started tonight for Culver, Ind., where tomorrow he will address the cadets of a military school.

$35,000 FOR DEATH OF WIFE.

Husband Recovers Damages From Automobile Driver.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Selah B. Strong in Brooklyn awarded a verdict of $35,000 yesterday to Isadore Sigkoff of 4 Lewis Place, Brooklyn, for the death of his wife, Rose, in an automobile accident. The defendant was Charles Schachne, owner of an office fixtures business in Manhattan.

Sigkoff brought the action as administrator of his wife. Mrs. Sigkoff and a friend named Mrs. Schlager were struck by an automobile driven by Schachne on Ocean Parkway, near the Sigkoff home about five months ago. Mrs. Sigkoff was almost instantly killed, and Mrs. Schlager was severely injured. Schachne contended that it was raining at the time and that his vision was obscured.

Jersey Horticulturists Oppose Daylight Saving

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 6.—The New Jersey Horticultural Society, in convention at Haddon Hall, today unanimously went on record as opposed to daylight saving and advocated a law that would make it illegal for any municipality, township or county in the State to enact such an ordinance.

In his report William H. Reed, Chairman, declared that for once the farmers felt satisfied with their representative in the Legislature, naming Senators Agans, Roberts, Blackwell, and Assemblymen Sex Smith, Welsh and Styles as stanch friends.

It is rumored here that these men will form the nucleus of the "Farmers' Bloc" which may be formed in the Legislature following the movement here.

The Horticultural Society also approved strict enforcement of the Volstead and Hobart acts; legislation providing for an investigation of the highway funds, a limit to the size of trucks and an increase in the license fees for heavy trucks; and a distribution of State school funds on the basis of teachers employed and days' attendance.

URGES THAT BRITAIN BUILD BATTLESHIPS

SUPERIORITY HERE FEARED

LONDON, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—In the House of Lords today Lord Lee of Fareham pressed the Government closely to carry out the Washington treaty by immediately building two capital ships. He declared that the British delegates would not have signed the treaty, involving such drastic proposals, had they for a moment thought that one of the most vital considerations which induced them to accept those proposals would not be adhered to.

Lord Lee argued that under the terms of the treaty the Government was not permitted to postpone the building of the ships. Postponement would arouse suspicion in every admiralty in the world and would be good ground to suspect the good faith of the British Government.

The protest arose through an announcement by the Marquis of Linlithgow, Civil Lord of the Admiralty, of his inability to give a definite answer of the Government's intentions and his promise of a statement before the end of the parliamentary session.

The Marquis of Salisbury, Lord President of the Council, in behalf of the Government, gave a reassuring statement to the effect that the Cabinet had not yet had time to give the matter consideration, but the Ministers were fully alive to its importance.

Lord Lee accepted this assurance, but Lord Sydenham, who first raised the discussion, still expressed dissatisfaction. He asserted that the United States was at least stopping the further building of ships on the docks when the treaty was made, and declared that unless the treaty was carried out the United States would have an enormous superiority, with which England could never catch up.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Colonel Amory, First Lord of the Admiralty, questioned in the House of Commons today on the effect of the Washington treaty on battleship strength, replied that if the treaty were ratified America would have twenty capital ships, Japan ten and Great Britain twenty-two. If the treaty were not ratified the United States would have forty-one, Japan twenty-three and Great Britain twenty-three.

Replying to a further question, Colonel Amory said that if the Washington treaty were ratified the United States would have three capital ships building and two completed, designed to embody the lessons learned in the Battle of Jutland. Japan would have two completed and Great Britain one. If the treaty were not ratified the United States would have three completed and thirteen building, Japan two completed, four building and four projected, and Great Britain would have one completed.

Long Delay Likely in France.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—All chances of the Washington Naval Treaty being discussed before the Chamber of Deputies this year disappeared today when that important matter came before a subcommittee. Georges Leygues informed the subcommittee that Premier Poincaré was anxious to have the treaty discussed before the end of the year and he would meet the commission on his return from London in order to acquaint them with his views. But the good-will of the Government toward the treaty is not likely to overcome the opposition and dilatory tactics of both the naval authorities and the Foreign Affairs Commission as a whole.

At the meeting today of the subcommittee it was discovered that certain documents asked for many months ago have not yet been supplied. It was, therefore, reported back, with the statement that the committee "would submit a report as quickly as the complementary documents for which it demanded half been handed to it."

These documents, it is understood, include almost the whole process verbaux of the treaty discussion at Washington. For some unexplained reason these documents never have been communicated to either the Foreign Affairs Commission or the subcommission, and all information which the chamber as a whole has of the nature of the Washington records has been derived from the press.

Until more detailed information is supplied neither the subcommission nor commission is willing to move, and the chances of Poincaré getting the discussion through this year are, therefore, very frail.

TINY ELEPHANT ARRIVES.

The President Van Buren of the United States Lines, which arrived yesterday from London and Cherbourg, brought a male pigmy elephant, three years old and three feet high, and said to be the only one of its species in captivity.

The little pachyderm, named Mlamba, the Congolese for beautiful, was well taken care of on the voyage and treated for chilblains by I. M. Ingels, the ship's surgeon. Captain E. A. Cunningham, who brought Mlamba to present to the New York Zoological Society, said the elephant had been captured on Aug. 20 in the French Congo.

ASSAILS HARDING ON PACKERS' MERGER

FEARS SILENCING COURTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—President Harding's reported approval of the proposal to merge the Armour and Morris packing interests were denounced in the Senate this afternoon by Senator La Follette as nothing more nor less than an official action by the Chief Executive which, if carried into effect, would authorize the packing interests concerned to violate the law passed by Congress to regulate the business of that industry.

"It hasn't yet reached the point in this country," exclaimed Senator La Follette, "where any law has been passed which authorizes the President to sell indulgences to law breakers."

The speech was Mr. La Follette's first in the Senate since the organization of the radical progressive legislative group, of which he is the leader. It was made for the purpose of getting action on his resolution which directs the Secretary of Agriculture to report immediately to the Senate all the information in the possession of that department relating to the proposed merger of large meat packing companies. He achieved the result that he sought, for the Senate passed the resolution.

Opposes Bargain in Advance.

If the Armour-Morris merger is realized, with Presidential approval, it will mean, in the opinion of the Wisconsin Senator, that court action to stop the merger will not be taken.

"One of the most dangerous and wicked practices," said Senator La Follette, "which has grown up largely in our day is that by which great corporations go either to the President or to the heads of departments and make a bargain in advance for immunity for the crimes they are about to commit."

By many the speech was considered the opening gun of the newly organized group of radical progressives.

Senator La Follette, using a report of the Federal Trade Commission, asserted that in numerous cities the meat business was controlled by the Armour and Morris interests.

"Let Armour swallow up Morris," he exclaimed, "as this merger proposes and of course your competition is gone. Now, nothing can be more certain than that as to these sections of the country the effect of the proposed merger is to place the whole matter of prices and of buying and selling in the hands of Armour so far as the large packing houses are concerned. That is of course the purpose, or at least one of the purposes, of the proposed merger.

"It may be said that these concerns do not compete anyway. I do not profess to know about that but I do know that testifying before Congress committees they have sworn over and over again that they did compete and that there was the fiercest kind of competition between them. Mr. Armour himself has so testified. If that be true, there is nothing plainer than that this competition between Armour and Morris will be absolutely wiped out by this merger.

Asserts Law Bars Merger.

"Note the language of one of the inspired White House press articles. It says: 'The White House spokesman said the executive feels there is no legal obstacle preventing one packer from buying out another, inasmuch as the packing industry is already under Federal control.'

"I commend this language particularly to the farm bloc. I say that the law contains nothing that justifies or authorizes this merger. On the contrary, it prohibits it in the plainest sort of language.

"Why are the great packing houses frantically bargaining with Government officials to do an unlawful act? The answer is that that great packers are in financial difficulties.

"Every one of course knows," Mr. La Follette said, "that if the President should give the opinion to these packers that their proposed merger was lawful such executive action would be tantamount to promising that the courts would take no proceeding to prevent the combination. As well might these gentlemen seeking this merger go before a court and seek to extort from the court a promise that they would not be prosecuted for their violations of the law."

Senator Owen of Oklahoma and Senator Norris of Nebraska interrupted near the close of Senator La Follette's speech to endorse his views regarding the restoration of the powers of the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. La Follette said he expected to introduce the bill within forty-eight hours and to demand action at the earliest possible moment.

ASKS VOLUNTEER SANTAS.

More Than 12,000 Children Have Written for Gifts.

The hopes of 12,000 children in the homes of the poor throughout the city depend solely upon the Santa Claus Association for any share they will get in the general Christmas joy, but the organization is finding it more difficult this season to raise sufficient funds with which to provide some form of gift for each boy and girl who is anxiously waiting to hear from "Santa Claus, North Pole." The office of the association in the Knickerbocker Building, Times Square, is flooded with appealing letters, and renewed efforts are being made to prevent disappointment for any of the childish writers.

These 12,000, with more added daily, now represent 4,600 families. While the applicants are increasing, officials reported yesterday, the list of donors to the fund has decreased for various reasons. There are left about 10,000 donors or gift givers identified with the work of the association, or less than one for each child. The association asks for the aid of new donors who will play Santa Claus direct in the homes of the children.

CAIRO, Dec. 6.—A deputation representing the largest Egyptian cotton growers called on the Premier today and requested that the Egyptian Government enter the cotton market bullishly in order to force English and American bears to cease what the deputation described as "devilish maneuvers" designed to ruin Egyptian farmers. The Premier promised to see what could be done, but seemingly was not anxious to use the Government's funds for this purpose.

Threat to Muzzle the Italian Press Is Made in Mussolini's Milan Paper

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Dec. 6.—The Mussolini newspaper in Milan, Il Popolo d'Italia, which since Benito Mussolini became Premier has been edited by his brother Arnaldo, publishes an article which is obviously inspired and which gives a grave warning to the Italian press in general and the Roman press in particular that unless newspapers cease publishing false and misleading news the Government is going to muzzle them. The appearance of this article in what may be termed the present Cabinet's official mouthpiece has caused great anxiety by the Italian press.

The article says:

"The problem of the press—especially the Roman press—is beginning to preoccupy the Government. The irresponsible lightness and crookedness with which both external and internal politics are treated is appalling. Today's newspapers, for instance, are full of pure inventions. They speak of things which have not occurred and never will occur.

"The newspaper Il Mondo assures its readers, without knowing anything about it, that Mussolini at the London meeting will support Poincaré, which may be correct, but may also be false.

"The newspaper Epoca has large headlines spreading over several columns to report in about ten lines an insignificant incident of violence near Naples in which some Fascisti were involved.

"We cannot go on in this way. We are assured that the Government has decided to impose discipline even on the newspapers. Considering the thoughtless manner in which the newspapers act, nobody will be surprised if the Government adopts a censorship or even severer measures."

It is significant that both newspapers mentioned in this article belong to ex-Premier Nitti, whom the Fascisti hate more than any other man in Italy. The offices of these papers were occupied by Fascisti when they entered Rome at the end of October, but were again evacuated early in November. Since that time they have abandoned their extreme anti-Fascisti viewpoint, refraining from attacking the Fascisti openly.

ROYAL GIFTS STOLEN FROM MME. HEMPEL

JENNY LIND RELIC GONE

Burglars got $30,000 in jewels, furs and other articles, including a valuable relic of Jenny Lind and several royal decorations, early yesterday morning in the home of Mme. Frieda Hempel, a former member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, at 271 Central Park West, while she was absent on a concert tour. The singer was informed of the robbery by her husband, W. B. Kahn, who is an importer at 168 Madison Avenue, when his wife and her secretary, Mrs. Lola Willoughby, arrived from Syracuse and were met at the Grand Central Terminal.

"Oh, my lovely chinchilla coat!" questioned Mme. Hempel, recalling that it had cost her $15,000.

"Yes, that's gone, too," admitted her husband, "and so has everything else that was portable and of the most value to you. The thieves took your prized collections in gold and silver, even plucking that set of classic miniatures from the wall on either side of the fireplace, and they took your decorations, the gifts of royal hands in recognition of your singing when a girl."

Mr. Kahn said that when he returned from the theatre he found the lights in their apartment on the eighth floor in great disorder, with polished furniture burned with cigarettes and cigars the robbers had left. After Mme. Hempel had made a hurried survey of the most valuable loot taken she was dismayed to find that all her silk garments, stockings and perfumery had been taken from drawers and closets in her bedroom.

"There's a woman in this," she declared. "No ordinary burglar would mix up and take things like this clothing with the other more valuable stuff. The wretches haven't left me a stocking except what I'm standing in!"

Inspector John B. Sullivan, who put a group of detectives at work, agreed with the singer that a woman had either led the burglars or aided them. Doormen and hallmen said no one who had been unidentified had entered or departed during the night. It is believed the burglars got into the Kahn apartment from the roof of a building on the West Eighty-eighth Street side, which is on a level with the windows, one of which shows signs of a tool, but was closed. To reach this window it would be necessary to put a ladder or board from the roof to the sill to cross the space between the two structures, which are separated by four or five feet. Detectives thought the robbers had a motor car near by for removal of the loot.

Among the valuables stolen was a rare relic of Jenny Lind, of Castle Garden fame. It is a gold bracelet that was presented to the Queen Victoria. Mme. Hempel received it from friends, who found it after a search of eighteen months in Europe and presented it when she began singing some of the Jenny Lind pieces. One of the set of gold-framed miniatures taken was of Marie Antoinette. The decorations were the Exalted Officers' Cross of the Order of Leopold, said to have been the only one ever presented to a woman, and a gold bracelet, the gift of the former Kaiser.

Scores of gold and silver ornaments, many of which were gifts from friends, were taken from the music room. All of Mme. Hempel's smaller jewels and jewelry were stolen from her dressing room, together with most of the jewel boxes. Several velvet coats went with the valuable chinchilla and other apparel.

Among the numerous articles of less value that were stolen was a small tapestry piece which Mme. Hempel had not quite finished. During nine years and also during her tour of the world she used her leisure in tapestry work and the stolen portion was intended to complete it.

SEEKS WOMEN'S FUNDS TO HELP LIFT DRY LID

A luncheon of the Molly Pitcher Club, an organization opposed to the Prohibition Amendment, was held at Delmonico's yesterday, at which Elisabeth Marbury, who presided, urged the women to forego some of their luxuries in order to swell the coffers of the club so that they may work for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. She declared that many are interested in a restoration of the old days, but that they don't care enough, and that they must really be willing to make a sacrifice if this is to be accomplished.

F. H. LaGuardia and Irvin S. Cobb were the speakers, and their addresses were followed by informal five-minute talks by members and guests who told of their objections to the Volstead act and of the experiences they have had since it came into effect.

Mr. Cobb declared that prohibition has come and gone, and that people have come to realize that they are not their brother's keeper or their brother's barkeeper. He expressed the opinion that women could be a strong factor in bringing about a change in the law, and that they could accomplish more than any group of men of equal number could ever hope to do.

Among those present were Mrs. Edward Harkness, Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel, Mrs. Jerome M. Lynch, Mrs. Clinton M. Hall, Mrs. Andre de Coppet, Mrs. A. Oakley Vanderpoel, Mrs. Lewis Gawtry, Mrs. Tracy Harris, Mrs. Charles Proctor, Mrs. Frank Montague, Mrs. Louis Livingston Seaman, Mrs. Bruce Clark, Mrs. Louis De B. Moore, Mrs. Chauncey Ocott, Mrs. Sherwood Aldrich, Mrs. W. Campbell Clark, Mrs. Thomas Denny, Mrs. Frank Leavitt, Mrs. Edith F. Rainer, Miss Alice Carpenter, Mrs. Josephine Morton, Mrs. Edward McVickar and Mrs. Eugene J. Gregory.

A meeting of the club will be held on Sunday evening, Dec. 17, at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre, at which the speakers will be Governor Edwards of New Jersey, Augustus Thomas, Elisabeth Marbury and Will Rogers. The next luncheon will be held on Jan. 6 at Delmonico's.

IZZY JUST 'STALLS' INTO $50,000 HAUL

300 CASES CONFISCATED

Complete Bottling Plant is Seized, Four Men Arrested as Raiders Take Away Truckload of Spoils.

Joy riders for once, but having chosen unwisely a rickety automobile for their excursion of pleasure, Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, the rumhounds of Acting Director E. C. Yellowley's staff, were rudely halted yesterday in their attempt to exceed the speed limit by a stalled engine. The car stopped precisely in front of a garage as if by design. The location was at 611 West Forty-sixth Street, just a stone's throw from Pier 86, the Hudson River. Just what part the pier may play in the subsequent events will appear later.

Moe, who is the bigger of the twain, said to Izzy that the day was young and if repairs were hurriedly made they could still ride to their heart's content before the sun sunk behind the Palisades. Into the garage they went. Or rather Izzy, for he is the lighter on foot. Mechanics rushed to serve them. The repairmen shook their heads when Moe gleefully suggested they soon would be on their way.

This time the suggestion came from Izzy, his sense of smell being the more highly developed. He considered it a good idea to take a little stroll over the building. Meanwhile Moe, who always has an eye for things theatrical, had observed one of the floors was devoted exclusively to the care of pet monkeys and dogs belonging to theatrical performers. On yet another section of the same floor nothing was kept, apparently except large trunks in which these pets ostensibly had been shipped to the keeper of the "animal hotel."

They continued to worm their way up the narrow, winding stairs, for the building is cut into many different sections above the ground floor, and presently Moe's keen sense of hearing—in this respect he excels his partner—asserted himself. He heard the sound of a liquid being poured. At the same moment Izzy remarked he was certain of the contents of the vessels. They peered into the little room in one corner of the second floor.

What they saw made them happy all over. They said they didn't care if their little pleasure jaunt had been so violently interrupted. It was worth while.

Enter the Workshop.

Moe tapped at the door. Not a sound from within. Another rap. A voice inquired who was there. Moe said, "It is O. K." The door was quickly opened. Into this little workshop the rum-sleuths slid. The workers, three of them, continued filling bottles from a large container. The fluid looked familiar. The agents talked with the workmen for a time about buying some whisky and then presently Izzy was gone. Moe remained and continued the conversation.

Everything apparently was running smoothly until a woman burst into the room. She sensed trouble. She didn't like the appearance of the big fellow, flashily dressed, with his hands bedecked with diamonds. A warning scream went up. She was certain she had seen that face in one of the papers.

All hands stopped work and things looked bad for Moe for a few minutes. He ordered the woman to be silent and the gleam of a couple of weapons Moe always carries with him subdued the others.

The situation seemed well in hand, as Moe said afterward. But in came one of the pet canines that appeared particularly fierce. Moe thought a great deal about buying some whisky and then presently Izzy was gone. Moe remained and continued the conversation.

Izzy Gets Search Warrant.

Meantime Izzy had hastened to the office of United States Commissioner Hitchcock, procured a search warrant, dropped in to pay his brief respects to his chief, Mr. Yellowley, and returned to the garage. This time he stepped boldly up to the man apparently in charge and asserted he was a Federal agent armed with a search warrant. The man proved to be the watchman, whose name also is Smith. He lives on the third floor front, adjoining one of the rooms in which a large quantity of liquor was found. Smith has a permit to carry a revolver. The reason—twelve men tried to hold him up in the garage a year ago.

Smith was adamant about letting Izzy or any other man up the stairs unless his "boss" was present. Izzy was equally persistent. At the first time Izzy produced his revolver. Then Smith drove the elevator up to the floor where Moe was in control. Moe breathed a sigh of relief. His relief had arrived. The rest of the story is simple and devoid of the dramatic.

Huge Haul Is Made.

From the building the agents took more than 300 cases of whisky and gin and two barrels of whisky, valued at $50,000, and arrested four persons. The liquors were stored in four places on the second and third floors. In the lot were 84 cases of Burnett's London Dry Gin and 200 cases of Haig & Haig Scotch whisky, besides some rye whisky that apparently had not been "cut." The agents also seized a complete bottling outfit. The big truck of the Knickerbocker Warehouse Company was backed when the work of loading had been completed.

The agents said they had stumbled upon what they believe to be a part of one of the biggest bootleg outfits in the city. The close proximity of the building to the river made it a fine place for bootleg operations, the agents asserted.

The men arrested were John Steel, 60, of 400 West Thirty-fourth Street, a lessee of the building; Michael Clark, 35, of Virginia Avenue, Jersey City; James Leone, 32, of 700 Glenmore Avenue, Brooklyn, and George Chober, 40, of 198 New York Avenue, Jersey City.

Shipments of whisky have not been received here in copra bags. It was announced yesterday by Deputy Surveyor of the Port Sanders. Customs agents Tuesday night found small boxes of whisky hidden in the heart of each of twenty sacks of copra on the dock at Pier 20, East River. The consignment was from Port Antonio and arrived on the vessel Cayo M. Ambix which reached port from the West Indies on Dec. 4.

DRY LAW FLOUTED, HAYNES ADMITS

Growing Public Disrespect is Noted by Commissioner, but He Praises Enforcement.

HECKLED BY GALLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Testimony given at hearings before the House Committee on Appropriations, made public today, shows that the Federal Prohibition Commissioner, Roy Haynes, while declaring that enforcement of the dry law had proceeded "satisfactorily," admitted that he realized there was a widespread disrespect, defiance and violation of law in general. Representative Gallivan of Massachusetts, a member of the committee and a wet leader, subjected Mr. Haynes to a searching cross-examination as to conditions in the enforcement bureau, taking the view that the prevailing attitude toward law observance was largely due to the prohibition statutes.

The estimate for enforcing the dry laws for the next fiscal year originally was $9,250,000, the same as appropriated this year, but the Director of the Budget cut off $250,000 because of savings effected through removal of headquarters and in printing and a conviction that $100,000 was not necessary. The sum now sought from the committee, therefore, is $9,000,000. Mr. Haynes testified that he could not get along with less and attain the degree of success desired, but he explained that $250,000 reduction would not hurt the work appreciably. The Treasury appropriation bill containing the item was taken up in the House today, but the prohibition section was not reached.

The number of persons now in the prohibition force is 3,800, but Mr. Haynes said he desired appropriations sufficient for only 3,518 for the fiscal year.

Mr. Gallivan led him to discuss the amount of money collected as fines, and Mr. Haynes said about $3,000,000 in bonds was expected to be forfeited, $1,732,622 paid in compromises and "225,992 paid in taxes and penalties. Federal fines during the last year were approximately $3,142,394. Later he submitted a table showing that $2,701,305 had been paid into the Treasury in fines and forfeits.

Tells of "Splendid Co-operation."

An effort was made by Mr. Gallivan to show that the prohibition forces at sea irritated the customs service officials by their tactics. But Commissioner Haynes denied this, saying there had been splendid co-operation.

In reply to a question he said that $150,000 was asked for buying whisky evidence, $159,473 having been spent during the current fiscal year.

A denial that he ever said 20,000,000 Americans had gone on the water wagon was made by the Commissioner, although Mr. Gallivan said this had been sent out by the Prohibition Bureau Press agent, Sherman A. Cuneo. Mr. Haynes would not assert that 10,000,000 or even 5,000,000 Americans had gone on the wagon wagon in the last year, but he declared that drinking was decreasing. "Very many people during the last year," he said, "have become less addicted to drinking."

The testimony ran to some length on the activities of Mr. Cuneo, whose salary is $3,850 a year. Mr. Gallivan asked Mr. Haynes if Mr. Cuneo had "From Friar to President" was not printed largely at the expense of the Government, but Mr. Haynes said he did not believe so. He said he had never heard of a telegram supposed to have been sent to him at Washington expense from Cuneo, then in Florida, reading:

"Please send me white pants. I want to make a front in front of the President."

Gallivan Hits at Propaganda.

Dr. John Wesley Hill and a Miss Hopley, formerly employed as general agents, were targets for Mr. Gallivan, who asserted that they were used chiefly for lecturing purposes to spread prohibition propaganda.

Mr. Haynes said it was not propaganda, but giving information. He added that a "tremendous propaganda" had first been waged against prohibition, the press being full of it, because the anti-drys had access to the columns. However, in consequence of his business effort "to reinstate our organization and to let the people know what it was doing, there has been a very decided improvement in the attitude of the press, which is reflected in the great reduction in the number of articles in the news columns." So far as speeches were concerned, Commissioner Haynes said that while he sometimes accepted invitations to make addresses, he did not enjoy this, because it was "a physical handicap."

"You have stated there was a splendid reaction on the part of the general public. Do you think there was a splendid reaction on the part of the voting public a week ago?" asked Mr. Gallivan, referring to the elections in November.

"I think so, wherever the situation was normal," said Mr. Haynes.

"Massachusetts has always been a pretty sane Commonwealth, has it not?"

"Surely."

"Well, you know what happened in that State," persisted Mr. Gallivan.

"You must admit that Massachusetts has been typical of the advanced sentiment of the country on prohibition," protested Mr. Haynes.

"You know that Massachusetts accepted the prohibition amendment overwhelmingly, but a year ago by a majority of 150,000 refused to adopt an act similar to the Volstead law," said Mr. Gallivan.

"On the other hand, in Ohio, where there was a majority of 200,000 on the dry side, the issue was clear-cut," Commissioner Haynes retorted.

Acting Director Yellowley got a per diem of $5 in addition to his $5,000 annual pay while he was stationed in New York, Mr. Haynes said.

Data for the fiscal year ended in 1922 showed 20,483 convictions for prohibition violations, 4,825 acquittals and 3,217 cases dropped, with 15,000 pending. Since July 1 there have been 44,000 cases of violations.

It was also shown that from the advent of prohibition to the date of the hearing thirty-five prohibition agents had been arrested and prosecuted, while about 6 per cent. of the enforcement squad was dropped during the last year for delinquency or misconduct.

Whisky Stocks in Warehouses.

Other witnesses testified that there were now 800,000 barrels of whisky in 292 bonded warehouses, 170 being in Kentucky, but that, following the plan to concentrate the stocks, about twenty-four central warehouses had been selected. There will be in the end about thirty of these central storage places, allowing many guards, watchmen and gaugers to be dropped from the rolls. There are now seventy industrial plants, sixty-eight bonded warehouses and fifty-eight denaturing plants devoted to the use of industrial alcohol.

During the last fiscal year 2,738,768 gallons of whisky, made before 1917, were withdrawn from bonded warehouses, against withdrawals of 22,722,664 gallons in the fiscal year of 1920 and 9,977,116 gallons in the fiscal year of 1921. There was a 7,000,000 or 8,000,000 gallon decrease in the withdrawal of industrial alcohol in the fiscal year ended in 1922 over the previous period, the production in the two years being about the same. Production in the last fiscal year reached a financial value of about $30,000,000.

Mr. Gallivan asked Dr. J. M. Doran, chief of the Industrial Alcohol Division, if many men were not buying denatured alcohol for drinking. Dr. Doran said this was true, but he did not believe there was as much of it as six months ago.

Tables submitted by the Federal Commissioner showed that there were stationed in New York City a Director at $5,000, an assistant Director at $3,000, a head of field force at $3,000, a head of executive division at $3,000, a legal adviser at $3,000, six group heads, 248 agents and 112 employes.

Court Says Child Cannot Live on Affection Alone

In denying a motion of Horace Mansfield of 335 Cox Avenue, Yonkers, to amend an interlocutory judgment of divorce granted against him so that he could have his daughter, Ruth, visit him from Saturday to Sunday instead of on Saturday afternoon, Justice Morschauser remarked that he had better support his child, and endorsed the court papers as follows:

"If the defendant loves his child he better commence contributing some money toward its support and maintenance. This will show affection. It cannot live on parental affection. Motion denied without prejudice."

MURDERED RECTOR'S WIDOW COMES HERE

Mrs. Hall is in Seclusion at Park Avenue Home of Sister, Mrs. Paul Bonner.

AGAIN SEEK BLACKMAILERS

New Brunswick Investigators Drop Jealousy Theory for the Time—Mills Tells of New Evidence.

Mrs. Florence N. S. Hall, widow of the murdered New Brunswick clergyman, is in New York. Leaving her home town for the first time since the rector was buried in Brooklyn nearly three months ago, Mrs. Hall came to the home of her sister, Mrs. Paul Bonner, at 820 Park Avenue, for a rest.

Mrs. Bonner refused last night to talk of her sister's presence, beyond admitting that she was here to recuperate. It was said after the Somerset County Grand Jury refused indictments for the killing of Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Elenor R. Mills, that Mrs. Hall might take a long European trip. Mrs. Bonner refused to say whether her sister's presence in New York was to prepare for such a journey.

Coincident with Mrs. Hall's departure, the murder investigation in New Brunswick took a new-old turn yesterday. The authorities dropped for the time being the jealousy theory which had been uppermost every since Wilbur A. Mott became special prosecutor. Switching back to a hypothesis that the double killing was the unplotted outcome of blackmail, Mr. Mott's aids, by his direction, began once more to comb the underworld of New Brunswick in the hope of coming upon substantiating evidence. W. G. Bearman, a vestryman of the church and a cousin of Mrs. Hall by marriage, is one of those who early put forward such a theory, coupling it with the theory that the murder did not take place on the Phillips farm.

Mrs. Henry Stevens, another member of the Hall family, from her home in Lawrenceville, N. J., yesterday reiterated her belief that Hall and Mrs. Mills were slain separately, and neither where the bodies were found. She refused to tell why she thought so.

While detectives were trying once more to follow out the blackmail line, State troopers made a mysterious trip into the Orange Mountains, admittedly in connection with the investigation. That gave rise once more to talk of a new witness. The investigators are understood to be pressing their inquiries in the hope of having a conclusive case to present to the December Grand Jury of Somerset County which will convene on Dec. 19, and of which Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker is expected to charge with the consideration of the case which will be laid down by the present jurors on the day previous.

James Mills, husband of the dead choir singer again expressed dissatisfaction with the progress of the investigation, complaining that he had offered certain evidence acquired by an agency detective to Prosecutor Asariah Beekman of Somerset County, but had failed to get a hearing. Mills is understood to be contemplating a request to Governor Edwards of New Jersey for the appointment of Colonel Billie Parker, Burlington County detective who has solved various murder mysteries.

FANNIE BLOOM LAST SEEN IN NORKIN HOME

Fannie Bloom, the Bronx girl who disappeared in July, 1915, was last seen, Assistant District Attorney Albert Cohn of the Bronx said yesterday, at the home of Reuben Norkin, who was indicted on Tuesday for the murder of Mrs. Jennie Becker, whose body was found in a vacant lot in the Bronx last week, eight months after her disappearance.

"This is rather startling," said Mr. Cohn, "in view of Norkin's confession in the Becker murder case, but there is no real evidence against Norkin in the Bloom case so far.

"Fannie Bloom at the time of her disappearance was employed as a domestic in the family of Norkin, who has been married about ten years. The girl was 20 years old. She was defective mentally, and had disappeared two or three times before. This time she did not reappear.

"A thorough investigation will be made to discover whether Norkin has had any connection with the Bloom case. There is at least a striking coincidence in the connection of Norkin with the disappearance of the two women, but the Bloom girl was in the habit of disappearing. No proof of her death has come to light, so the case is rather thin at present.

"District Attorney Glennon has directed that the trials of Norkin and Becker for the murder of Mrs. Becker should take place at the earliest possible moment. Becker will be tried first, probably this

Catalani's "Loreley."

LORELEY, romantic opera in three acts and five scenes; book in Italian by Carlo d'Ormeville and A. Zanardini, music by Alfredo Catalani. At the Metropolitan Opera House.

Rudolfo	José Mardones
Anna, a Hamlet	Marie Sundelius
Walter	Benjamino Gigli
Loreley	Frances Alda
Hermann	Giuseppe Danise

Conductor, Roberto Moranzoni.

Alfredo Catalani's opera of "Loreley," which was produced for the first time last season at the Metropolitan Opera House, was heard there again last evening. There was an excellent performance, large audience and applause duly distributed to the singers. But as for the opera's stirring the pulse of the audience or rousing its enthusiasm, there was not much question of it, more than there was last season.

"Loreley" cannot be said to have made a very deep impression in New York when it was heard here before. The opera dates from a period about forty years ago, when Catalani was obviously impressed by German romantic ideas in literature and music. Catalani composed both "Die Wally" and "Loreley," on romantic German subjects. "Loreley," of course, summons up memories of Heine's poem and Silcher's tune—the story of olden time, the calmly following Rhine, the rocky cliff, the magic of the unearthly maiden combing her golden hair, singing a song the while; and what she did to the unfortunate boatman with her singing.

Of course it needed more than this to make an opera, and Catalani's librettists, d'Ormeville and Zanardini, devised an elaborate story of their own—a story in which the Loreley had not yet become the dangerous and unearthly figure that afterward looms so ominously on the rock, but is made so by human treachery and the working of magic power.

It embodies a form of German romanticism that has been pretty well left behind in the intelligence of adults of the present day. It is not very easy at this time to assume the state of mind in which such a story, with so many magical and superhuman interventions in purely human affairs, can make an appeal; to believe in this kind of make-believe long enough to acquire an emotion from it. There is no deep ethical significance that can very well be read into it, or any profound symbolical meaning to be found in it, or any typical story of human loves and emotions to be generalized out of it. It is a story of passions and jealousies and wrongdoings with a "dea ex mathina" to bring about the catastrophe in quite the fairy story way. It satisfactorily serves the purposes of a story of the romantic type, but it makes no appeal below the surface.

Nor does Catalani's music now profoundly stir the listener. He was an admirable craftsman who knew his business well. He was aspiring to a drama in form that should have greater substance and dramatic truth than that which prevailed in his day; and in so far he was tarred with the Wagnerian stick; and was helping to make operatic history and help on operatic progress, yet there is in this opera no specifically musical derivation from Wagner or any close following of his style. Catalani writes well for solo singers, chorus and orchestra. The choruses, indeed, are mostly superb. But there is little originality in the music, little individuality, little distinctive quality. Effective, as it often is, the music does not linger long in the memory. That the composer has been powerfully imaginative in dealing with the strongly emotional climaxes, or even with the supernatural moments with which the drama is concerned, cannot be said, though he has tried to, and has made valiant efforts in that direction.

Mme. Alda took the part of the orphaned Loreley that was last season entrusted to Claudia Muzio. The rest of the cast was the same as that which joined in the performance of last season.

Mme. Alda made a resplendent figure as the Loreley when the time of her triumph came and she gave a dramatically skillful representation. Her singing reached a higher level than sometimes it has and many passages were admirably sung.

Messrs. Danise and Gigli have both opportunities for success in this opera; both they and Mr. Mardones sang superbly, and Mr. Danise gave a powerful impersonation as Hermann, as convincing as the occasion permitted. Mme. Sundelius as Anna was excellent in both song and action. The ballot in the very pretty divertimento in the second act and again at the end of the opera gave great pleasure to the audience, to which Miss Galli and Mr. Bonfiglio added crowning touches. Mr. Moranzoni kept the performance on a praiseworthy level of excellence.

Carl Schlegel in Song Recital.

Carl Schlegel, who in stature and rich timbre stands higher among Metropolitan baritones than his name has in ten years' assignment of operatic roles, gave a song recital, his first in song seasons, before a well-filled house yesterday afternoon at the Town Hall. Mr. Schlegel is an artist of singular integrity of style, as he proved in old Italian airs by Caldara and Lotti—by Carissimi's "Pur Dicesti, O Bocca Bella," delightfully done—and in lyrics of Schubert, Strauss and Wolf, Hans Morgenstern and Walter Courvoisier, in German. He gave a popular finish with three English songs of Gertrude Norman Smith, two of which were encored, and a gay "Fool of Thule," by Pietro Ton.

Edna Indermaur, Contralto, Pleases.

Edna Indermaur appeared in a recital of contralto songs yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall before an audience that applauded warmly her singing. An attractive arrangement of Porpora's "Venetian Pastoral," by Kurt Schindler, who played the accompaniments, was heard for the first time in a New York concert hall. Miss Indermaur had a pleasing manner in her singing and her voice had much depth in the lower register. Some of the higher tones she had difficulty in reaching. The songs by Edward Shutt received the most applause of the afternoon. The program included groups in English, French, German and Italian.

Sarg Marionettes in "Don Quixote."

Tony Sarg's marionettes will begin a holiday engagement at the Punch and Judy Theatre next Monday afternoon. They will be seen in "Don Quixote," adapted for marionette use by Anne Stoddard and Mr. Sarg. There will be twenty-two performances in all—during the first week they will be given on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock, and on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

The marionette production of "Don Quixote" has been in preparation for six months, and many of the costumes and other paraphernalia have been brought from Italy and Spain.

"Reader" of Songs Makes Debut.

Bessie Worthen Stevens made her debut as a "reader" of songs in Town Hall last evening in a program of familiar compositions. She was assisted by Zark Myron Bickford and Vardah Olcott Bickford, who played the mando-cello and guitar, as soloists, in duets and in the accompaniments of the songs. Miss Stevens interpreted the "One Fine Day" from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" with a convincing earnestness which evoked enthusiastic applause. Edgar Bowman played the piano accompaniments.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Laurette Taylor will give her first performance in "Humoresque" in Atlantic City on Dec. 25. The cast will include Luther J. Adler, Dore Davidson, Howard Lindsay, Eugenie Ordway, Frank Manning, Elsie Grey and Sidney Carlisle.

There will be daily matinees of "The Fool" at the Times Square Theatre during Christmas week.

A novelty entitled "The Growing Man" and another called "The Musical Fence" will be added to the Hippodrome show for the holiday period.

"Mere Mummery," a Successful Calamity" will be acted by the Junior Auxiliary of the Council of Jewish Women at the Times Square Theatre on Sunday night, Dec. 17. Tickets are obtainable from Miss Irma M. Hoyer, 116 West Seventy-second Street.

GOV. RUSSELL ON STAND DENIES GIRL'S CHARGES

Miss Birkhead, Part of the Time in Tears, Testifies for Two Hours.

OXFORD, Miss., Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Lee M. Russell, Governor of Mississippi, today denied in Federal Court allegations made by Miss Frances Birkhead, stenographer, which brought about the suit for $100,000 damages against Mr. Russell now being heard.

Miss Birkhead, testifying for nearly three hours, reiterated charges of seduction and other allegations made in her petition. It was the opening day of the actual trial.

Governor Russell, called by counsel for Miss Birkhead as an "adverse witness," was on the stand a comparatively short time, but is expected to be recalled. He declared the charges were without foundation.

Miss Birkhead, who followed Mr. Russell was under cross-examination when court adjourned. In a voice scarcely audible, she gave on direct examination details of alleged relations with the Governor while she was in his employ during his campaign for the Governorship in 1919 and brought her testimony to a climax by declaring one of the papers offered in evidence was a forgery.

"Did you not admit in the presence of former Governor Bilbo that you were responsible for Miss Birkhead's condition and asked Mr. Bilbo to settle the matter?" was one of the questions asked the Governor.

"I did not," was the reply.

Introduction of a letter signed "Mary" brought a denial by the Governor that he was the author, and as a test for comparison as to handwriting he wrote the same wording from dictation in the courtroom. Both were submitted as exhibits. The letter, which Miss Birkhead said she received while engaged in war work at Camp Jackson during the 1919 political campaign in Mississippi, urged the recipient "to get treatment there."

Miss Birkhead charges that she submitted to an operation at the suggestion of the Governor, and as a result her health was permanently impaired. She testified the letter was in Mr. Russell's handwriting.

Miss Birkhead, part of the time in tears, was under direct examination for nearly two hours.

"The Governor appeared interesting and he told me he loved me," she testified. "Each time I saw him he appeared more interesting. He told me he was getting a divorce.

At the requests of attorneys for the plaintiff an attachment was in the hands of the United States Marshal today directing former Governor Bilbo to appear as a witness.

PLAN IRISH OPERA HERE.

A movement to introduce into this country Irish opera, sung in both Gaelic and English, to be later followed by the organization in Dublin, Ireland, of a national opera company, was launched in the Hotel Ansonia last night at a meeting of more than 200 persons of Irish nativity, who listened to the plan outlined by Thomas Egan, the Irish tenor.

Mr. Egan declared that the opera of Ireland had never before been introduced into this country, and the meeting was called for the purpose of organizing what is now known as the Irish Opera Club. He declared that Ireland had now two famous operas, "Lily-gheis," written by O'Brien Butler, who lost his life on the Lusitania when it was torpedoed, and "Eithne," written more recently by Robert O'Byrne.

The plan, according to the singer, was to organize the club, and then to produce the Irish operas in this country, going to Dublin, when conditions become normal in Ireland, to launch the movement for the National Irish Opera.

As a nucleus for the Opera Club, Mr. Egan said, singers would be selected for the chorus from the members of the Carroll Glee Club and the Glee Club of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

The officers of the club elected last night were: President, Thomas Egan; Secretary Treasurer, Lilian Breton. The election of the Vice Presidents of the club was left open for another meeting of the new organization to be held on the evening of Dec. 13.

AGAINST RADICAL PARTIES.

Patriotic Societies Would Bar Names From Ballot.

The Allied Patriotic Societies, Inc., with a membership of more than 6,000,000, is planning to introduce a bill at Albany to make it impossible for the name of any party "that subscribes to principles subversive to the Constitution of the United States" to appear on a ballot, according to the report of the Speakers' Committee read yesterday at the annual meeting at the Army and Navy Club.

"The effect of such a measure would be either to drive into the open a party who subscribed to the overthrow of the Constitution, where all could see what it stood for, or it would force its members to join a party who did not subscribe to such principles. We don't want any more camouflaging," said William D. Boeler, in submitting the report.

A resolution "to direct and control foreign-tongue newspapers," was passed. Its purpose, it was explained, was to control foreign propaganda and at the same time issue propaganda favorable to this country through the United States Commissioner of Education. Dwight Braman, President of the societies, said that such a bill would be introduced in Washington.

A high pitch of enthusiasm was reached when a resolution was passed unanimously "denouncing the attempt of German subjects to spread propaganda through the nation by lectures or otherwise, and in particular the action of Lieut. Capt. Hellmuth von Mueckle, second in command of the German raider Emden, who is spreading this propaganda in the German language."

ACTRESS IS ADMITTED.

Russian Woman is Sponsored by Methodist Immigrant Home.

Mme. Pierre Achmatoff, a Russian actress who arrived last Sunday from Constantinople on the Braga of the Fabre Line and was sent to Ellis Island, was released yesterday through the aid of the Methodist Immigrant Home, 273 West Eleventh Street. The home guaranteed that the actress would not become a public charge.

The Russian woman, who had a number of trunks, told the authorities that she had given her money to a friend named Edelshty of 544 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, to mind for her. She said that she came here to get a job with the Moscow Art Theatre Company, which is expected in New York to play under the management of Morris Gest.

FIND WOMAN IN COMA.

Patrolman Harry Betkman of the West 123d Street station found an unidentified woman unconscious on the sidewalk at Eighth Avenue and 145d Street last night. The woman was removed to Harlem Hospital. No statement was made as to her condition. She was described as about 30 years old, five feet eight inches in height and weighing about 160 pounds. She had dark hair. She had a silver wedding ring, and wrist watch with a cloth band. She wore a black coat with a brown fur collar and a blue dress. She also wore a silver chain around her neck.

SIGRID ONEGIN IN SONGS.

Metropolitan's Swedish Contralto Wins Her Audience in Carnegie Hall.

Sigrid Onegin, the new and beautiful Swedish contralto of the Metropolitan, last evening gave her first song recital in Carnegie Hall, where recently she sang with an orchestra at her American debut. Assisted at the piano by Michael Raucheisen, she was heard in songs in German, French and English, the order of which she revised so as to bring forward together the German groups, least "foreign" to her training. Her voice, rarely—and needlessly—forced for broad effects, began at full power in Schubert's "Die Allmacht," while easily best of all she did, both in more varied and lighter tones, in triple characterization and facial play, was "Der Erlkönig," entered with the composer's brief "Seligkeit."

Mme. Onegin is a dramatic singer, on whom such a program of songs puts no light task. In that she massive voice moves often sluggishly, or by sheer momentum overshoots the mark, its darker tone-color again prevailing in Brahms's "Von Ewiger Liebe," and in "Sapphische Ode" was redeemed. She thus won her house, and its flowers were at her feet before her first essay of old French airs and others in English, by Robert Clarke, W. A. Fisher, Bantock and Taylor, such as may figure more largely on her future programs here.

Dudley Diggs to Give "The Dragon."

Dudley Diggs, at present appearing with Ethel Barrymore in "Rose Bernd," will become an actor-manager during Christmas Week with the presentation of Lady Gregory's play, "The Dragon," at the Earl Carroll Theatre for special matinees. The first performance will take place on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 26, and matinees will be given thereafter on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Swiss Beat Capital Levy by 826,206.

BERNE, Dec. 6.—The official figures on the defeat of the proposal for a levy on Swiss capital, the subject of last Sunday's referendum, made public today show the majority against the proposal to have been "826,206. The vote was: Against the proposal, 723,804; for, 100,598.

May Insure Jamaica's Banana Crop.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 6.—The Government has submitted to the Legislature a proposal for insuring the banana crop against hurricanes. Measures to stop the spread of the foot-and-mouth disease among cattle are also being advocated.

REFEREE'S STORY BACKS UP SIKI

IS TOLD TO GO HOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES. Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—Tomorrow's Matin will attribute a statement to M. Henri Bernstein, who refereed the much-discussed Carpentier-Siki bout, which is the most damaging piece of evidence so far produced, to back up Siki's assertion that the bout was nothing but a frame-up, the terms of which he broke. Bernstein, according to Le Matin, was puzzled by certain words he overheard during the bout. He made a declaration to the Committee of Referees, which is under the jurisdiction of the French Boxing Federation, which included the following amazing sentences:

"I heard Siki say to Carpentier, 'Don't hit so hard. What is the use to hit so hard when it is all settled.' During the fourth round I heard Carpentier say: 'Will you lie down? Get down.'"

The Committee of Referees submitted a report of Bernstein's declarations to the Council of the Federation, which made a rapid inquiry. The council, however, was not convinced that the words overheard proved a frame-up, and closed the inquiry by stating that boxers often said all sorts of things "in order to intimidate an adversary." The developments since that time will probably cause the council to decide to open again the inquiry regarding the alleged frame-up.

Carpentier Protests Story.

PARIS, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Georges Carpentier in newspaper interviews today added his protestations to those of Francois Descamps, his manager, to the assertions of Battling Siki that the boxers' recent meeting was to have been framed.

Carpentier's chief argument in his efforts to discredit the statements of the Senegalese is to show his badly damaged knuckles and to exhibit X-ray photographs of his hands, taken after the fight, which show that all the metacarpal bones were broken.

"Does that look like a fake fight?" queried Carpentier. He also asked whether it was likely that he would arrange a framed-up for a bout he was so sure of winning that he actually lost it by overconfidence. The former champion asserted that since his defeat his one ambition has been to meet Siki again and re-establish his reputation.

An interesting scene in this latest sporting drama was enacted in the office of the newspaper L'Auto last evening when Siki and his former manager, M. Hellers, meeting by accident, had a heated passage of words over the charges, the truth of which Hellers denies. The argument, which took place in the presence of the astounded newspaper staff, ended where it began.

Siki told L'Auto that he had been received yesterday afternoon at the Ministry of the Colonies by an official who recommended to him that he return to Senegal. Siki did not say if he intended to follow this advice, confining himself to declaring that he planned to abandon boxing and take up some other occupation.

DUNN DEFEATS SMITH.

Matt Dunn, Paulist A. C. light-heavyweight, added the name of Arthur Smith, of Spider Webb's Gymnasium, to his list of victims last night in the amateur boxing tournament conducted at the Metropolis Club. The boxers clashed in a special bout at 175 pounds. Dunn, after a spectacular first round, was gradually battering his rival into submission when the contest was halted in the second round to save Smith from further punishment.

The best bout of the night came in the final of the 128-pound class between Hugo Sarno, Pastime A. C., and Charles Morris, Loughlin Lyceum. Sarno received the decision of the judges after three exciting rounds. Morris proved a pugnacious youngster, full of fighting and eager to be going all the time. He rushed his rival vigorously, but Sarno was the better boxer and clearly outpointed his aggressive rival.

Morris went into the final round on the wings of a victory over Thomas Lapin, Knights of Columbus lad, who succumbed to the Brooklynite's blows in two rounds. Sarno won the judges' decision over Sam Davis, Trinity Club, in three rounds in his semi-final bout.

The summaries:

119-Pound Class, Semi-Final Round—Al Blackman, unattached, defeated Ben Nabers, Glencoe A. C., three rounds, judges' decision; Frank Sportelli, Christ Church House, defeated Irving Shapiro, Brooklyn A. A., three rounds, judges' decision.

JOHNNY SHUGRUE SIGNED.

Local boxing followers are soon to get a glimpse of Johnny Shugrue, Jersey City lightweight, who recently knocked out Willie Jackson in ten rounds. The promising New Jersey boxer yesterday was signed to battle Elino Flores, Philippine lightweight, in the twelve-round semi-final to the Charley White-Richie Mitchell bout which will be held in Madison Square Garden on Dec. 15. The match promises a lively encounter and will rival the fifteen-round bout between White and Mitchell in importance. Shugrue will be making his first New York appearance since his spectacular triumph over Jackson, and it is expected that keen interest will centre around his showing against Flores. The latter has enjoyed remarkable success in his local bouts and is a popular favorite.

The White-Mitchell bout will serve as a climax to a busy week of boxing in the Garden next week. The arena will house a popular-priced show in which four ten-round bouts will be conducted on Monday night. These bouts will be as follows: Irish Johnny Curtin vs. Pete Wee Kaiser, Charley Beecher vs. Frankie Garcia, Jack Bernstein vs. Eddie (Kid) Wagner and Harvey Bright vs. Sammy Mandell. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights the New York State amateur championship tournament will be conducted.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

One Hundred and Second Medical Regiment Armory—Sandy Taylor vs. Wildman Gould; Charley Murray vs. Jimmy Gawdy; Al Studdy vs. Harry Gorsky, three eight-round bouts.

Jimmy Murphy Is Champion Auto Race Driver for 1922

N. H. STATE COLLEGE ACCEPTS NEW RULES

DURHAM, N. H., Dec. 6.—The rules under which the New England States College Conference for Intercollegiate Athletics, organized at Boston on Nov. 26, will operate became known in detail today with their ratification by the faculty of New Hampshire College. This is the first of the institutions to adopt the agreement, to which representatives of University of Maine, Rhode Island State College, Connecticut State College and Massachusetts Agricultural College also tentatively subscribed.

The eligibility rules permit the playing of Summer baseball under certain restrictions. They forbid any man who has obtained a varsity letter in one college from taking part in athletics at another. No player, whether he is a varsity letter winner or not, may play on the teams of a second college until a year has elapsed since his last playing.

New students, also, must have been in residence one year and have completed the institutional requirements to advance from the next class. Attendance during the Summer sessions is not counted as "residence" for the purpose of this rule.

No student may participate in varsity intercollegiate athletics for more than three years in the aggregate.

No student shall be eligible to represent his institution in any intercollegiate contest who, during the college year, has engaged in any athletic contest not connected with his institution.

A student shall be ineligible to represent his college in athletic contests who engages in athletic contests, except Summer baseball, as a representative of any athletic organization not connected with his college. The exception in the case of Summer baseball is made in the following terms:

"A student may engage in games during the Summer vacation on a team which is not under the control of the National Baseball Commission provided that written permission has been secured from the proper athletic authority and that such permission shall be authority for participation only on such teams as are specifically mentioned in the written statement."

HOPPE TO PLAY IN EXHIBITION TODAY

Will Make First Appearance Since Winning 18.2 Title—Cushion Games Scheduled.

Willie Hoppe, the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard champion, will give his first exhibition in this city since regaining his title in the recent international tournament at the Hoppe-Peterson Billiard Club this evening. He will play 300 points with Charley Peterson, the fancy shot expert, and the game will be followed by an exhibition of trick shots by Peterson. Hoppe has just returned to this city after a week's exhibition in Boston. He declares that he is in better stroke than he was during the tournament when he defeated five of the greatest billiardists in the world.

New York will be treated to a series of Interstate Three-Cushion Billiard League matches today and tomorrow. Bob Cannefax, former champion, and Harry Wakefield of Milwaukee will meet in two games at the Strand Academy today. They will play fifty points in the afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock, and fifty points in the evening beginning at 8:30. Tomorrow Wakefield will engage George Moore, another former champion, at Joe Thum's Academy in the afternoon and evening games.

The player who finishes first in the league will be crowned the professional champion of this country. The league was formed to take the place of the annual national championship tournament and the challenge matches for the title. In this way each league game virtually amounts to a championship match. Practically all of the leading professional players are in the league representing different cities. Fourteen players representing eleven different cities are competing.

Billiard Results.

Three matches were decided last night in the New York State amateur three-cushion billiard tournament at the Recreation Academy, Brooklyn. H. L. Burk defeated Peter Farace by a score of 30 to 19, in forty-two innings; Robert M. Steinbugler triumphed over H. J. Millwood by a count of 30 to 23 in fifty-eight innings, and Jack Van Gelder defeated Charles Hanf, 30 to 24, in sixty-five innings. In each game the high run of the winner was 4 and that of the loser 3.

Playing in the eighteenth game of the tournament to decide the New York State professional pocket billiard championship at Lawler Brothers's Academy in Brooklyn last night Arthur Church defeated Leo Silver by a score of 125 to 101. Church made a high run of thirty-eight and Silver made one of thirty-five. Church ran out the game with an unfinished cluster of seventeen.

Playing a steady game throughout E. O'Brien easily defeated R. Jenkins last night in the continuation of the west side pocket billiard tournament at the Broadway Academy. The score was 100 to 28. Jenkins made two runs of 13 each and completed his century with an unfinished run of 23.

J. R. Miller and E. Y Linson were the winners in the two games played last night in the Manhattan handicap pocket billiard tournament at the Recreation Academy, Manhattan. Miller, playing for 40 points, defeated R. J. Clearly, who was playing for 45 tallies, by 40 to 29. Linson, handicapped at 24, defeated F. G. Sherry, who plays for 22 points, by a margin of 28 to 20.

Coming from behind after a poor start, George LaRue last night defeated Herbert Jarett by a score of 35 to 32 in the Class A amateur three-cushion billiard tournament at Thum's Academy. The contest required eighty-four innings, due to the safety play of both principals.

Kentucky Elects Ramsey.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 6.—Dell Ramsey, Lexington junior in the Engineering College, University of Kentucky, was elected captain of the 1923 football team tonight. He has played tackle three years.

Claypool to Lead Purdue.

FIVE TEAMS FALL BACK IN BIKE RACE

SCORE AT 2 A. M., 14TH HOUR.
Teams.	Miles.	Laps.
Goullet-Belloni	1,363	8
Brocco-Coburn	1,363	8
Egg-Eaton	1,363	7
Grenda-McNamara	1,363	6
Madden-Kaiser	1,363	6
Horan-Fitzsimmons	1,363	6
Grimm-Gastman	1,363	6
McBeath-Rutt	1,363	5
Taylor-Lands	1,363	5
Kopsky-Azzini	1,363	5
Hill-Verrazes	1,363	5
Belle-Gaffney	1,363	5
Spoissens-Eyckman	1,363	4
Gremo-Gay	1,363	3

Four teams lost a lap and one team lost two laps during a jam which started with the ninth sprint of the six-day race at Madison Square Garden last night and continued for seventeen minutes of crazy speeding while a crowd that packed the arena went into a temporary delirium. There were two spills during the excitement. Willie Coburn and Sammy Gastman collided in the first spill during a mix-up while relieving their partners. Neither was going at top speed and no harm was done. Gastman also figured in the second spill, which was more serious. He and Harry Horan hit the boards together and the latter had to be carried to his training quarters. He was quickly patched up, however, and was able to resume riding half an hour later.

The jam did not affect the standing of Goullet and Belloni or Brocco and Coburn, who have a two-lap advantage over a part of the field. Egg and Eaton, who lead a portion of the field by a lap. The teams to fall a lap behind were Taylor and Lands, Spoissens and Eyckman, Hill and Verraes and Bello and Gaffney. Gremo and Gay lost two laps.

The teams of McBeath and Rutt and Taylor and Lands were the high point scorers in the evening sprints with 13 each. Goullet and Belloni scored 12, Madden and Kaiser were tied with Brocco and Coburn with 11 each. Grenda-McNamara scored 9; Egg and Eaton, 8; Hill and Verraes, 7; Horan and Fitzsimmons, Speissens and Eyckman and Grimm and Gastman, 6 each; Kopsky and Azzini, 4, and Gremo and Gay, 1.

The total points after the evening sprints were as follows: Goullet-Belloni, 125; Brocco-Coburn, 44; Egg and Eaton (one lap behind), 159. Of the four teams that are two laps behind, Horan-Fitzsimmons, 69; Grenda-McNamara, 68; Madden-Kaiser, 62; Grimm-Gastman, 21. Of the teams three laps behind, Bello and Gaffney have a total of 130 points; McBeath and Rutt, 123; Hill and Verraes, 120; Taylor and Lands, 65, and Kopsky and Azzini, 48. Four laps behind are Speissens and Eyckman, with 54 points, and five laps behind are Gremo and Gay, with 19 points.

Horan Starts Jam.

The jam which spelled the loss of a lap to five teams was started by Harry Horan of the team of Horan and Fitzsimmons just as the ninth of the evening's sprints was getting under way. Horan was half a lap away in a few seconds, with McNamara heading the pursuit. It seemed certain that Horan and Fitzsimmons would lap the whole field until Goullet took up the chase. Goullet, riding like a demon, saved the day for himself and Belloni, drawing close to Horan and giving Belloni a chance to catch him.

Brocco was right on Belloni's rear wheel. Brocco started another jam but Goullet took to his wheel again, while the crowd went wild, and quickly closed the gap. Every rider of the fourteen teams still in the race was on the track during the jam, all riding with utter abandon and recklessness.

After the riders had eased up for a few minutes, Eyckmann and Speissens kept up the excitement with another jam. Egg brought this to an end in short order. Belloni was falling back for a time but Goullet again came to his rescue.

The crowd had a laugh when a Newark coal dealer offered a ton of nut coal for one of the special sprints that followed the regular sprints. The riders took it seriously, however, with a hard Winter ahead, and Tom Bello had his troubles winning it in a stirring finish. Giuseppe Azzini was the winner of a special sprint worth $65.

Belloni Gets Ovation.

Since the lapping of the field by three teams, the sprints lost something of their interest, with the leaders making little effort to count unless jockeyed into the leading positions. Tom Bello won the first of the evening sprints, with Madden, Eaton and Taylor following in that order. Goullet was jockeyed into making the pace in the second sprint, and, though it meant nothing to him to win it, he finished in the lead, all the same, followed by Coburn, Lands and Gastman. Bello took the honors again in the third, coming from the rear in the last lap to nip Kopsky and Fitzsimmons at the finish. Gay was fourth. The fourth sprint had a tame finish, with Gaffney, Hill, Lands and McBeath heading the procession in that order.

Reggie McNamara finished a wheel's length in front of Eddie Madden in the fifth, with Taylor and Grimm trailing them. It was a peaceable sprint and the gallery looked on through the blanket of smoke without the slightest rumble of excitement. There was more life to the sixth sprint, which McBeath won from Gaffney, with Hill and Horan in third and fourth places. McBeath set the pace in the last two laps, and Gaffney, in second position, made a stirring effort to nose him out in the final lap. A blanket finish resulted and stirred the fans out of their slumber.

The seventh sprint was the liveliest thus far with Belloni furnishing the thrills. Goullet's Italian partner came along strongly in the last lap and in a hot finish led McNamara home by inches. Madden and Taylor were third and fourth, respectively. The fans gave the Italian an ovation. McBeath and Lands had another torrid struggle in the eighth, finishing inches apart with the former in advance. Gaffney and Hill were third and fourth.

During the ninth sprint, which Brocco won, with Grimm, Gay and Horan finishing in that order, the last named started the biggest jam of the day, already referred to. For half an hour the crowd was in a continuous uproar before the riders again settled down to the steady grind. During the jam, the tenth and last sprint was won by Speissens, with Gay, Fitzsimmons and Lands nearest him in the mad scramble.

Goullet Friend of Mate.

The point score at the end of the afternoon sprints showed 113 for Goullet and Belloni and 34 for Brocco and Coburn, who are leading the field as a result of their two stolen laps. Egg and Eaton, one lap behind them, have 151 points. Back in the field the point scores were: Hill and Verraes, 113; Bello and Gaffney, 112; Horan and Fitzsimmons, 82; Grenda and McNamara, 80; Madden and Kaiser, 68; Taylor and Lands, 62; Grimm and Gastman, 15. Three laps behind are McBeath and Rutt with 110 points; Kopsky and Azzini with 48 and Speissens and Eyckman with 48.

Goullet and Belloni, now that they are out in front, intend to save all their strength to keep where they are. Goullet said: "I was tickled silly at the way Belloni rode in the jam and he has stamped himself as one of the greatest six-day riders in the world."

Eaton and Egg are the team the leaders fear. Once they get the break they are sure to go after a lap and when they do there will be one of the busiest merry-go-rounds of the week at the Garden. Eaton's sprinting ability has inspired a wholesome fear among the leaders. It has also been hinted that Brocco and Coburn may break away at any time in an attempt to lap Goullet and Belloni.

Goullet is afraid to leave the track side for a minute for fear Brocco may start something. He is even eating all his meals at the track side.

It was the calm after the storm during the afternoon. There were no jams and no spills. The riders seemed satisfied to move along quietly after the big doings of the early morning.

Leaders Spare Themselves.

In the afternoon sprints yesterday, the three leading teams, Goullet and Belloni, Brocco and Coburn, Egg and Eaton, were content to "sit pretty" and save themselves. The $50 prize for the team scoring the most points went to Walter Rutt and Alex McBeath, with 34, while Bello and Gaffney were second with 20. A triple tie for third place resulted among Hill and Verraes, Horan and Fitzsimmons and Grenda and McNamara, each team with 14 points.

The afternoon sprints resulted as follows:

First—McBeath, Fitzsimmons, Egg, Goullet.
Second—Azzini, Belloni, Rutt, Gaffney.
Third—McBeath, Fitzsimmons, Bello, Kopsky.
Fourth—Hill, Azzini, Rutt, Madden.
Fifth—McBeath, Verraes, Bello, Kopsky.
Sixth—Rutt, Gaffney, McNamara, Madden.
Seventh—Grenda, Kaiser, Taylor, Fitzsimmons.
Eighth—Rutt, Gaffney, Hill, Horan.
Ninth—Bello, Egg, Verraes, Taylor.
Tenth—McNamara, Horan, Madden, Gaffney.

TIGER PLAYERS HAD FEW SERIOUS HURTS

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 6.—When Princeton took top honors in "Big Three" football this year, critics divided the glory about evenly between Head Coach Bill Roper and the members on the team themselves. However, there was another who figured heavily in the development of the 1922 eleven. This was Keene Fitzpatrick, for thirteen years trainer of Tiger gridiron squads and track teams. He produced a championship team that was able to go through the Harvard and Yale games without sustaining an injury.

Indeed, during the entire season just ended, only one man was injured so that he could not finish the season. This was Frank Pagenkoff, a promising young quarterback candidate, who was injured early in the season. He has, however, two more years of football at Princeton. Barr Snively, a guard, and Johnny Gorman, regular quarterback, received temporary hurts in the Chicago game, which kept them out of the Harvard fracas, but both were on hand for the grand finale with Yale. Princeton was favored this year with one of the smallest lists of injured which has ever graced a football season, and Tiger gridiron enthusiasts are not slow to place the credit.

Trainer Keene Fitzpatrick, to whom they credit this achievement, came to Princeton in 1910 after sixteen years of service as a coach at Michigan University. During his thirteen seasons as trainer of football and coach of track teams, he has made a personal friend of every man with whom he has worked.

A mentor of track he is noted for his patience and foresight. Every candidate who works hard is given a chance. There is a story about one student in particular, who during his first year on the cinder path came in last in every race. Coach Fitzpatrick never lost patience with the lad, and under his system of coaching the student finally became the best miler in college.

Coach "Hurry Up" Yost of the Michigan eleven has said that the great success of his team was due mainly to Keene Fitzpatrick's remarkable ability as a trainer, which combined great skill as a doctor with the power to make every one of his subjects his best friend. He has turned out many championship track teams at Princeton, and has attended to the physical welfare of Tiger football teams ever since he came to Princeton. He is probably the oldest college coach now active.

CITY A. C. TRIUMPHS.

The City A. C.'s crack handball team overwhelmed the Columbia University court squad last night in a dual clash in the City A. C. gymnasium. The club players, excelling their collegian rivals in every department of the game, made a clean sweep of the doubles and singles, scoring four victories in individual clashes and three in as many team matches. The most exciting match was furnished by Harry Goldberg, City A. C., and A. Menchern, Columbia, in the singles. This pair struggled through three hotly contested games before Menchern, despite a surprisingly strong game, went down in defeat at score of 21-20, 20-21 and 21-13.

The summaries:

Singles—H. Goldberg, City A. C., defeated A. Menchern, Columbia University, 21—20, 20—21, 21—13; S. T. Stern, City A. C., defeated E. G. Endor, Columbia University, 21—11, 21—13; Sam Frankel, City A. C., defeated F. V. Price, Columbia University, 21—5, 21—19; P. Dworsky, City A. C., defeated M. Scandiffio, Columbia University, 21—4, 21—4.

Doubles—S. T. Stern and H. Harris, City A. C., defeated M. Scandiffio and J. Shuman, Columbia University, 21—14, 21—8; J. Waldman and D. Frankel, City A. C., defeated S. Endor and A. Menchern, Columbia University, 21—10, 21—11; P. Dworsky and M. Dworsky, City A. C., defeated H. Rumsfeld and F. V. Price, Columbia University, 21—1, 21—18.

Bates Lists Hockey Games.

LEWISTON, Me., Dec. 6.—The Bates College hockey schedule, announced tonight, includes games with the Army at West Point, Jan. 24; University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, Jan. 26, and Princeton at Princeton, Jan. 27.

Petcoff to Lead Ohio State.

New Brunswick Townsmen Fete Rutgers Athletes

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 6.—Citizens and business men of New Brunswick tonight gave the Rutgers football team the annual testimonial dinner in Winant's Hall and acclaimed londly over the prospects for next autumn. This dinner has come to be an occasion in New Brunswick and puts the townsmen squarely behind Rutgers athletics whether the season has been a winning one or not. Headed by Coach Foster Sanford, thirty-six members of the squad of Varsity regulars and substitutes were guests of honor and "Sandy" made one of his usual speeches when he awarded the letter and sweater to the twenty-two first string men. Short speeches were made by Dean J. V. Lewis, Mayor Morrison of New Brunswick, Graduate Manager W. P. Garrison and Representatives from the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions' Clubs.

MALLORY IS NAMED CAPTAIN AT YALE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 6.—Twenty-two football players who wore the Blue in the ill-starred games against Harvard and Princeton, met tonight at the Hotel Taft and elected William Neely Mallory of Memphis, Tenn., captain for next season. The choice was understood to have been unanimous.

Following the captaincy vote the players discussed next year's plans informally but extensively. Captain-elect Mallory prepared for Yale at the Pomfret School of Pomfret, Conn., where he roomed near Charley Buell, Harvard's captain during the past season. Mallory is a member of the Academic Class of '24. He played halfback for his freshman team two seasons ago and for the varsity in 1921 and during the past season. Injuries kept him from two of Yale's four big games this Fall. He played against Iowa, but was hurt just previous to the West Point contest and saw the Army and the Princeton game from the side lines. He faced Harvard, however, in the final encounter of the Yale List. Memphis Bill is regarded as one of the most effective defensive backs in the country and skillful receiver of the forward pass.

The players who elected him were Jordan, Becket, Bench, Cross, Cruikshank, Beaver, Diller, Eddy, Greene, Herr, Hulman, Joss, Lincoln, Lovejoy, Luman, Miller, Neale, Neidlinger, O'Hearn, Pillsbury and Scott.

Mallory is a star athlete in two branches of major intercollegiate sport, having caught for the Yale nine last season. He is 21 years old, is five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 174 pounds.

WEIDERQUIST IS NAMED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 6.—Chester L. Weiderquist of Moline, Ill., right tackle for two seasons, was today elected captain of the Washington and Jefferson football team for the season of 1923.

Weiderquist's election was made unanimous when Albert Crook, centre, of Detroit, withdrew his name before balloting was started, and Herbert Kopf, left end, of Cincinnati, moved to make it a solid vote after the first ballot.

Weiderquist has been an outstanding figure in W. and J. football for two seasons. His playing this year during a period when the Red and Black line work was nothing to boast of was better than that of any of his comrades, and single-handed he has been able to stave off heavy gains by opposing teams on several occasions. He is a natural leader, aggressive and capable, and is expected to make a high-class captain.

PLACE FOR HOLY CROSS.

Harvard Likely to Play Worcester Eleven Again in 1923.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 6.—Further development of the Harvard football schedule for next year has made it appear likely that Holy Cross will have a place again, it was said today. The late start made necessary by the agreement on the part of Yale, Harvard and Princeton to delay the beginning of football practice had made it appear that the Worcester eleven would be too strong an early season opponent.

11 MEETS FOR WESLEYAN.

Princeton, Brown and Dartmouth Added to Swimming Schedule.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Dec. 6.—The swimming schedule of Wesleyan, announced today, calls for eleven meets including entries in the National and New England intercollegiates. Princeton, Brown and Dartmouth were added to the schedule this year.

Colgate Schedules Cornell Game.

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 6.—Colgate will meet Cornell at football on Oct. 20 next year at Schoelkopf Field, Ithaca, according to announcement today by Graduate Manager W. A. Reid of Colgate University.

Lafayette Turns Down Chance To Play on Coast—Beaks Pitt

EASTON, Pa., Dec. 6.—All doubts as to whether Lafayette College and the University of Pittsburgh would meet on the gridiron again next Fall were removed tonight when Graduate Manager of Athletics D. Leroy Reeves announced that arrangements had been completed for a game Oct. 6 in Pittsburgh. Reeves also stated that Lafayette had declined invitations to play football games on Christmas Day in San Diego, Cal., and Fort Worth, Texas. Lafayette authorities believed that the season, which ended last Saturday, was long enough for the players to remain in training.

PRINCETON ELEVEN NATIONAL IN SCOPE

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 6.—While Princeton's 1922 football team has generally been conceded to be the champion aggregation of the East, its members are made up of men from all sections of the country. In fact, the Tigers are of a truly national eleven. From New England to the sunny South from New Jersey to California comes the Princeton team of this year.

New York and Pennsylvania share the honor of being the home of five members of the eleven, while New Jersey and Massachusetts are next in line with three each.

Herb Treat, Red Howard and Sax Timson proved conclusively throughout the season that New England and particularly Massachusetts does not send all its good football men to native colleges. New Jersey was ably represented by Ken Smith, Buss Stout and Willie Wingate.

It fell to Pink Baker to uphold the honor of Rhode Island, while Dick Malow was the only player from Washington or its vicinity.

The West had two able supporters in Howdy Gray and Tommy Thomson. The former comes from Omaha, Neb., while the latter claims California as his home.

The team, which formed a large, happy family during the football season, has formally organized plans to hold annual reunions and dinners just as the championship teams of former years. "The team that wouldn't be beaten" intends to preserve its fellowship and to work as hard for the glory of Princeton in later life as it did on the football field.

TROJANS ARE GRATIFIED.

Players Pleased at Being Chosen to Meet Penn State.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Both the student body and faculty of the University of Southern California expressed gratification today at the selection yesterday of the Trojans by the Pacific Coast Conference to represent the West against the Penn State eleven in the annual East-West football game at Pasadena, New Year's Day.

"We will do our best to uphold the West," said University officials. The members of the football squad were variously quoted as saying "hot dog," and "let us at 'em." The Trojans will resume training when Coach Elmer Henderson returns from the annual conference meeting Dec. 9 at Seattle.

HEISMAN MAY COME AS COLUMBIA COACH

John W. Heisman, for three years head coach at the University of Pennsylvania, may be the next football mentor at Columbia University, according to an apparently well-defined rumor which came from Philadelphia yesterday. An evening newspaper of that city in commenting on the report, said that a Columbia graduate had been on the Pennsylvania campus a few days ago and had expressed the hope that Heisman could be induced to come to New York.

No comment on the matter could be obtained at Columbia yesterday. Graduate Manager R. W. Watt is ill and confined to his home, and the rumor could not be confirmed.

The failure of Penn's athletic authorities to approach Heisman with an offer for next season has left the situation there up in the air and lends strength to the belief that the former Georgia Tech mentor is a possibility for the Columbia post. His plans are known only to himself. His contract at Penn has expired, but the football committee has held no meeting to date nor made any proposal to the coach.

Columbia men are said by Philadelphians to be casting envious eyes at Heisman's success at Pennsylvania, where in three years he built up an excellent spirit among the players and student body. The following remarks are attributed by a Philadelphia paper to the Columbia alumnus who paid a visit to Pennsylvania a few days ago:

"Heisman has done wonders in arousing not only the student spirit at Penn, but he has worked almost a miracle in causing a rebirth of spirit among the alumni.

"This is just what we need at Columbia more than anything else. With a strong football spirit behind the team and with the alumni awake to the necessity of legitimately inducing good schoolboy players to go to their alma mater, excellent football teams are sure to follow."

Heisman won his chief reputation at Georgia Tech, where he developed the wonderful elevens which gave the Southern school the sobriquet of the Golden Tornado. His famous shift may reached its height under those conditions. Three years ago, when Bob Folwell was dropped as football coach at Penn, Heisman, a Red and Blue alumnus, was called to the post. For two years he failed to produce results, mainly because of poor material and an alleged lack of spirit among the students and alumni, the same condition that has hampered Columbia, in the opinion of most observers. During the past year however, Heisman's team had an excellent record, played through a very hard schedule and had a high ranking among Eastern elevens at the end of the season.

Whether Heisman would like to leave Penn after having established the Quakers on the high road again is a question that he would have to decide if Columbia should extend him an offer.

Under the auspices of the Columbia Varsity Club, a meeting was held last night at the Columbia University Club, 4 West Forty-third Street. Letter win

KLEPPER IS RULED OUT OF BASEBALL

Portland (Ore.) President Is Barred Forever by Minor League Convention.

WILL FIGHT IT IN COURTS

Alleged False Statements Given as Cause—Giants to Play 21 Games With White Sox in Spring.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Announcement that the New York Giants, world's baseball champions, would prepare for the 1923 pennant race by engaging the Chicago White Sox in a Spring training tour, and the action of the Board of Arbitration in forever barring William H. Klepper, President of the Portland (Ore.) club were the important developments of the minor league convention here today.

The training tour of the White Sox and Giants was arranged at a meeting between James Tierney, Secretary of the New York club, and Harry Grabiner, Secretary of the White Sox, tonight. The teams will cover virtually the same route they traveled last Spring, starting the tour in San Antonio, Texas, about the second week in March, and finishing in New York the Saturday and Sunday before the opening of the major league season. The teams will play twenty-one exhibition games, but all of the dates have not been arranged, because the date for starting the major league campaign has not been set.

The White Sox, Secretary Grabiner announced, have arranged to return to Sequin, Texas, for their 1923 Spring training camp, while the Giants have again selected San Antonio.

Statements Alleged False.

Klepper's expulsion is the result of alleged false statements concerning the paid-in capital stock of the Tacoma (Wash.) club, which he organized. Klepper purchased 51 per cent. of the stock and citizens of Tacoma subscribed the balance. Klepper claims some of the subscribers failed to advance their money, but he previously had filed a statement with John H. Farrell, Secretary of the National Association, that all of the money had been paid.

After acting in Klepper's case the board awarded Frank Tealey Raymond, manager of the Tacoma club, $900 in back salary. Raymond filed a claim for this amount, as the Pacific International League, of which Tacoma was a member, disbanded before the close of last season. The financial affairs of the club, which resulted in Klepper's disbarment, were revealed at the board's hearing of Raymond's claim.

Klepper and his attorney, G. C. Moser, tonight issued a statement declaring that William H. McCarthy, President of the Pacific Coast League, was responsible for the action taken against the Portland Club President and that he inspired the resolution which expelled him. Attorney Moser said the case would be carried to the courts.K

"The resolution was inspired by President McCarthy of the Pacific Coast League," Attorney Moser said.

"The matter could only have arisen because of the alleged claims of Frank (Tealey) Raymond against the Portland Club, which claims have been allowed by Mr. McCarthy as President of the league, and under baseball laws he really had no jurisdiction to pass upon them.

"The resolution is wholly beyond the jurisdiction of the National Board, as was the decision of Judge Landis against Klepper, and our club will resort to the courts for relief and for the protection of our constitutional, personal and property rights."

Commissioner Landis suspended Klepper last Spring until 1923 for an alleged attempt to defraud the Seattle (Wash.) Club of the services of Manager William Kenworthy. Kenworthy at the same time was suspended in so far as playing with the Pacific Coast League was concerned, until 1924.

Commissioner Landis charged that Klepper, who was President of the Seattle Club, had made a private agreement with Kenworthy, then manager of Seattle, declaring him a free agent, and two days later purchased the Portland Club, engaging Kenworthy as its manager. Commissioner Landis ruled there could be no private agreement to make players under contract free agents.

Landis Could Not Remove Klepper.

Commissioner Landis was without authority to remove Klepper as President of the club, but Klepper was not permitted to sign contracts or affix his signature to other business of the franchise.

"The board has no jurisdiction over the Portland corporation except so far as it is connected with baseball activities, and as a corporate entity it can continue Mr. Klepper in office," said John Conway Toole, President of the International League and a member of the Board of Arbitration. "He cannot, however, under the resolution personally take any part in baseball matters."

The minor leaguers held their annual banquet tonight, at which Commissioner Landis made a brief address. After the selection of the convention city for 1923 tomorrow, the minor leaguers will adjourn.

Klepper Expresses Surprise.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 6.—Telegrams from W. H. Klepper, President and principal owner of the Portland Baseball Club, received here today from Louisville contained the statement that the latest proceedings to bar him from baseball had come as a surprise. Klepper said that last February he had planned, in connection with citizens of Tacoma, to finance a club in the Pacific International League. The Tacomans, Klepper said, were to raise about $5,000 and he was to contribute a similar amount. Klepper's $5,000 was paid in, he said, and later he filed a statement with the National Association, saying that amount of stock had been paid up. This, he said, he did in the belief that the Tacomans had fulfilled their agreement as he had filled his. Later, according to Klepper, it developed that the Tacoma subscription list was $1,800 short.

"I could not possibly have hoped to benefit by this shortage," declared Klepper, "and I do not know why I have been held accountable."

Meet for City Employes to Be Held in Garden Jan. 15.

Arrangements for the indoor athletic meet of the Mayor's Committee on Municipal Athletic Activities, which will be conducted in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 15, have been completed. The program adopted is devoted principally to competitions for city employes, but a number of special A. A. U. events have been arranged. The feature event will be a medley sprint in which Bob McAllister, local champion who is a member of the Police Department, will engage some of the country's leading dash men. Loren Murchison, indoor national champion, and J. A. Lecouay, intercollegiate sprint titleholder, have been invited to engage McAllister in a medley sprint at forty, fifty and sixty yards. This event will be decided on a point basis.

The events closed to municipal employes are: Sixty-yard handicap dash for women; 60-yard fat man's race in which the minimum weight is 230 pounds; 60-yard handicap sack race; 60-yard handicap dash; 300-yard handicap run; one-mile handicap run, one-mile walk, 1,000-yard handicap interdepartmental relay race.

Special open A. A. U. events are: Two-lap relay race for women, 1,000-yard handicap relay for men. A 1,600-yard high school relay race is another feature.

Bezdek Not to Manage Phils; Prefers to Stay at Penn State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Dec. 6.—Hugo Bezdek will not accept the offer to become manager of the Phillies, but will continue at the helm of athletics at Pennsylvania State College. "With me it is a question of service," said Bezdek, "and I feel that there is a far greater opportunity for service in working with young college men than there would be in professional baseball. Financially, this means the sacrifice of several thousand dollars a year; ideals cost money, and I find that my ideals can best be worked out in college ranks. In making my decision, the many appeals from students and alumni asking me to remain at Penn State also had their effect, and for these reasons I feel that I could not accept the Phillies' offer."

FABER AGAIN LEADS LEAGUE PITCHERS

Urban C. Faber, the Chicago White Sox veteran, is the leading American League pitcher for this year, as he was in 1921, according to the official averages made public yesterday. In the season just ended he led all rivals in hurling complete games, 31; held opponents to the lowest average of earned runs per game, 2.81; worked the most innings, 358; won 21 games, the fourth largest number of victories, and fanned 148 opponents, one less than Urban J. Shocker of St. Louis, who led in strikeouts with 149.

Joe Bush of the New York Yankees garnered 26 victories and lost only 7 games, leading the League in percentage of games won and lost, with an average of .786. Opponents scored 3.32 earned runs a game off his delivery. Rommel of the Philadelphia Athletics won 27 games for his seventh-place team, a truly remarkable record.

Owing to the increasing practice of changing pitchers, the pitchers have been divided into groups.

Records of all pitchers who worked ten or more complete games, rated according to the lowest number of earned runs for a nine-inning game, follow:

KONETCHY GOES TO OMAHA.

Former Major Leaguer Will Manage Buffaloes.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 6.—Ed Konetchy, former major league first baseman, has been signed to manage the Omaha Buffaloes for 1923, according to a telegram received here from Barney Burch, owner, who is in the South. According to the message, the Omaha club has purchased Konetchy from the Toledo club, where he played part of the 1921 season. Konetchy holds several major league records.

TO MANAGE ALBANY CLUB.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 6.—William Rodgers of Sacramento, Cal., has been appointed manager of the Albany team of the Eastern Baseball League, according to word received here tonight from Michael J. Hawkins, owner of the club, who is at Louisville, Ky.

Rodgers managed the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League for four years and was with Calgary and Denver last season.

Baseball Tourists Go to China.

In their last contest the Americans defeated the Kansai Gakuin team 20 to 3. The Americans made 24 hits and 2 errors, the Japanese 2 hits and 8 errors.

SAN ANTONIO AGAIN LURES GIANTS' HEAD

McGraw Decides in Favor of Texas Over California in 1923 Training Duel.

Texas and California fought a drawn battle yesterday in the affections of the New York Giants. Besieged on one side by the eloquence of a group of Native Sons from the Coast, on the other side by lingering memories of that peerless sunshine of San Antonio, John J. McGraw, like a true diplomat, took refuge in a compromise. He decided to train his world's champions at the Texas city in 1923 and at Fresno, Cal., in 1924—provided that the backers of the latter city live up to "certain conditions."

This was the solution of the profound problem facing the Giants' authorities, particularly Manager McGraw, to whom the final decision was left. "Choosing would be easy were t'other dear charmer away," murmured Mr. McGraw poetically. In the end he decided to desert Texas and flee to the soft clime of California, but not next Spring—which is expected to be a compromise that will appease both San Antonio and Fresno.

The Giants' manager had his hand forced by a story emanating from the minor league meeting at Louisville yesterday. He had not intended to make his announcement until after the National League conference here on the 12th of December, but when the secret leaked out of Louisville and the question was put up to him, he admitted the soft impeachment.

The Fresno decision, however, is not beyond recall. It was stated that the management of the Giants is not yet satisfied with certain conditions in the California city, and the acceptance of the offer is conditional on the removal of these objections. If this action is taken before 1924 there is no question but that the Giants will be on the Coast during the Spring after next.

Fresno May Lack Proper Facilities.

For one thing it is believed that the ball park at Fresno is not satisfactory—not big enough or well equipped enough for the needs of a major league team. Fresno is a brand-new town as far as Spring training camps are concerned, and a great deal of preparation by the local authorities would undoubtedly be necessary.

Meanwhile, the Giants will go ahead with their plans for San Antonio. The Chicago White Sox again will be the team that will tour back North with the world's champions, starting with a few games in San Antonio and probably swinging up through Texas, Mississippi will train again at Seguin, a small town near San Antonio.

When the Giants will leave for San Antonio, how long they will stay there and when they will back to New York, are questions that not even John Joseph McGraw himself can answer right now. If the league season starts a week later than usual, as seems probable, the Giants will change their training plans accordingly. Last year they began work in Texas on March 1 and spent about three weeks in the shadow of the Alamo. They were back in New York, as usual, a few days before the start of the championship season.

McGraw's reasons for postponing his switch to California until 1924 are probably based on the Little Napoleon's overweening desire to win his third straight world's title next season—a feat that no other manager in the history of baseball has ever accomplished. To cap his remarkable career with this achievement is McGraw's greatest ambition, and he had probably decided that under the conditions he would be staking too much on the vagaries of a trip to virgin territory in California.

McGraw Reluctant to Change.

As long as he has won two championships on San Antonio training, McGraw feels reluctant to change a winning combination. In two years he had only two days of bad weather, and both seasons the Giants started in the prime of physical condition. McGraw is dissatisfied with many things about the Texas city—mainly the lack of baseball enthusiasm as far as the Giants are concerned—but he has to admit the supreme advantages of the weather conditions.

On the other hand, 1924 will be another year. By that time the Giants will have their third consecutive world's title or they won't have it. In either case, McGraw can begin with a fresh slate and start a new string under the balmy skies of Fresno.

The California city, scene of several important lightweight championship bouts, has a population of about 45,000. It is a manufacturing city with a live Chamber of Commerce which has been boosting the town to the Giants. Other boomers appeared in the persons of Dr. Charles H. Strub, William H. McCarthy and George A. Putnam, all connected with the Pacific Coast League, who have been in New York for a fortnight urging the Giants to go to California.

It is understood that when and if the Giants go to the Coast, they will play several exhibition games with the San Francisco club, of which Dr. Strub is the President. The Boston Red Sox were mentioned as the major league team which would tour with McGraw's club on the trip back to the East.

FRAZEE FLATLY DENIES TRANSFER OF RED SOX

Owner of Boston Club and President Johnson Both Brand the Toronto Report False.

Harry H. Frazee, owner of the Boston Red Sox, yesterday denied emphatically a story printed in a Toronto newspaper that a Toronto syndicate had obtained an option on his American League Club or franchise.

Frazee also denied any basis for reports that Frank Chance, former manager of the Chicago Cubs, and Barney Oldfield, former automobile racing star, were negotiating for the purchase of the club.

"I talked with Chance in October during the world's series with regard to managing the Red Sox," the Boston magnate said, "but we reached no definite understanding."

According to the report, a Toronto syndicate had obtained an option on the Boston franchise and Ban Johnson, President of the American League, had approved the transfer of the club to Toronto.

"Pure Bunk," Says Johnson.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Dec. 6 (Associated Press).—Ban Johnson, President of the American Baseball League, here today, characterized as "pure bunk" a report that a Toronto (Can.) syndicate had obtained an option on the franchise of the Boston American League Club.

Toole Also Denies It.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 6.—In response to a telegram sent him today by a Rochester newspaper, inquiring as to the truth of negotiations by Toronto business men for the purchase of the Boston Red Sox, John Conway Toole, President of the International League, tonight wired as follows:

"Absolutely no possibility of Red Sox moving to Toronto or of even considering such a proposition. Statement unworthy of comment."

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 6.—The annual Pittsburgh-West Virginia football game will be one of the biggest early clashes again next Fall, the date agreed upon today being Oct. 13, at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh. The Mountaineers' schedule is likely to have one strong Eastern team added.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 6.—The United States amateur figure skating championship will be held here under the auspices of the New Haven Skating Club on Feb. 15 and 16, it was announced tonight. Two nights were selected by the committee because of the large number of entries expected.

SETS MILE MARK OF 1:38 FOR HAVANA

HAVANA, Dec. 6.—Chief Sponsor won the Oriental Handicap at a mile here this afternoon, beating Buddie Kean by half a length in a driving finish. Chief Sponsor, making his own pace, hung up a new track record of 1:38 flat for the distance. Sea Prince was third, beaten by a nose for the place.

The Knebelkamp stable furnished the winner of the first race in Margaret Ware, which came from behind in the stretch run and in a driving finish beat Illusionist by three parts of a length.

Dad came back with another good race this afternoon when he won the fourth event. He ran the six furlongs in 1:13 flat. The closing event went to Harlock, which led all the way.

Jockey P. Gross was suspended three days by the starter.

There will be no racing tomorrow, owing to the fact that it is Memorial Day. The summaries:

FINK CAUSES UPSET IN SQUASH TOURNEY

CHAMPION IS WINNER

The semi-finals were reached yesterday afternoon in the scratch tournament of the National Squash Tennis Association on the courts of the Yale Club. There was one upset in the fourth round, when R. Earl Fink, champion of New Jersey and also of the Crescent Athletic Club, defeated Auguste J. Cordier of the Yale Club, former national champion. Cordier ranked No. 6 in the national standing last year and Fink No. 8. The result of their meeting yesterday was a surprise even more in the emphatic nature of Fink's victory than in the victory itself. The Crescent star won easily in straight games, 15—8, 15—6.

The three other matches resulted as anticipated. Thomas R. Coward of the Yale Club, national champion, won from William Rand Jr. of the Harvard Club, former lawn tennis star at Cambridge, in two games in which the Harvard man showed exceptional strength in forcing such close scores as 18—14, 15—10. Coward will meet Harold R. Mixsell, champion of the Princeton Club, tomorrow afternoon in the semi-finals. Mixsell advanced at the expense of his clubmate, John C. Neely, whom he defeated handily by 15—2, 15—5. Fink's opponent in the semi-finals will be his Crescent A. C. clubmate, Charles M. Bull Jr. Fink and Bull always play a close match, but Fink at present outranks Bull on the Crescent lists. Bull, who represents the Squash Club in the current tourney, obtained a straight-game victory yesterday over J. A. Richards of the Harvard Club, 15—10, 15—7.

It had been expected that Cordier, who was the runner-up to Coward in last year's Fall scratch tournament, would be able to repeat this year and advance as far as the final. But it was the Yale man's fortune to meet Fink when the latter was playing the best squash tennis he has shown in several seasons. Fink had everything yesterday. Always gifted with an instinctive knowledge of where to place the ball to best advantage, always agile in covering court and skillful in his racquet work, Fink has often met defeat in the past because of a comparative lack of severity in his finishing shots. Yesterday, however, he had speed to waste.

Fink played beautifully for position and his kills and back corner shots were untouchable. He mixed his shots so sagaciously that Cordier had all kinds of trouble in judging their pace, missing his returns completely in numerous rallies. Both men excelled rather in their angle shots than in straight smashes, but Fink had the greater power when the opportunity came for a shot up and down the court. The Crescent star also had the advantage in service. He fairly slaughtered Cordier's delivery, while his own well-controlled service was not so easily handled by the Yale man.

Fink Piles Up a Lead.

The two required half a dozen hands before they warmed to their task in the opening game. Then Fink proceeded to pile up a lead. It was 3—all after six hands. Then in four succeeding hands Fink scored every time, so that he was leading 13 to 7 at the end of the tenth hand. With that advantage it was a simple matter for him to breeze along to the finish at 15—8, which he reached with a keen around-the-court placement in his thirteenth hand.

The second game consumed nineteen innings, Cordier's good defensive work prolonging it. The former champion took the lead at the start with aces in his first and second hands, but Fink countered in his fourth with a run of 3 and after that the Crescent star was never headed. He had twelve scoreless hands in this game because of Cordier's stubborn defense, but the Yale man never could seem to take advantage of his own service. His six points were sparsely scattered, one to a hand, through the nineteen innings. Cordier tried to keep the ball low, but succeeded only in hitting into the tell-tale. In his fourteenth hand Fink made a collection of six points and that run put the game and the match on ice for him. He needed only one more point, and this he obtained with a fine angle placement in the nineteenth frame. It was a clean-cut, well-earned victory for the Crescent ace, one of the most notable and creditable victories of his career as a top-notcher.

In the two games Fink made seventeen earned points to Cordier's nine. The errors were five for Fink to thirteen for Cordier. The figures pay eloquent tribute to the steadiness and accuracy with which Fink was shooting. Cordier's principal fault was in the matter of tell-tales, of which he made eleven to Fink's two.

The point score and stroke analysis follows:

FIRST GAME.

Next to the Fink-Cordier match, that between Coward and Rand attracted the greatest amount of attention. Rand covered court splendidly and handled Coward's speed well. Coward, as usual, took his own good time in settling down to his task and was content to drift along evenly with the Harvard man in the early stages. But after Rand had tied the count at 11-all and again had set the game for extra points at 13—all, Coward realized that the situation demanded serious attention, and he uncovered all the speed and skill at his command to finish out the game at 18—14. Rand continued to play admirably in the second game, being always within a point or two of the champion until the latter ran away in his last few hands. Coward played always with something in reserve.

No Play Today.

There will be no play in this tournament this afternoon, as the players will be occupied with the Class A team matches of the Metropolitan League. The semi-finals are scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 4:45 and the final for next Monday afternoon. On Saturday there will be exhibition matches at the Westchester-Biltmore Club at Rye, in which Coward will meet Jay Gould of the Columbia Club and Cordier will play Mixsell.

The summaries:

National Fall Scratch Tournament, Fourth Round—Thomas R. Coward, Yale Club, defeated William Rand Jr., Harvard Club, 18—14, 15—10; Harold R. Mixsell, Princeton Club, defeated John C. Neely, Princeton Club, 15—2, 15—5; R. Earl Fink, Crescent A. C., defeated Auguste J. Cordier, Yale Club, 15—8, 15—6; Charles M. Bull Jr., Squash Club, defeated J. A. Richards, Harvard Club, 15—10, 15—7.

Browns to Go to Mobile.

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 6.—Word has been received here from Robert M. Weinacker, president of the Mobile Southern Association baseball club, who is in Louisville attending the baseball meetings, that the St. Louis Club of the American League will train here during the spring season.

Miss Cecil Leitch May Not Again Play for Golf Title

According to word received here yesterday, Miss Cecil Leitch, three-time winner of the British ladies' championship and one of the greatest women golfers of all time, may never play championship golf again. Upon her arrival back in England recently, following an extensive tour in America, Miss Leitch told her friends on the other side that she believed that the injury to her arm, received in a foursome match while here two years ago, would prevent her from playing golf in the future. The injury kept Miss Leitch out of golf events for almost six months until she played in this year's British championship, but was defeated in the final by Miss Joyce Wethered. Coming over to America again last Summer, the English player suffered a relapse, and although she attended both the Canadian women's championship and the women's national championship at White Sulphur Springs, she was unable to take part in either event.

BLIZZARD ELECTED PRESIDENT OF N. T. A.

To Fill Unexpired Term of the Late John C. Welty—Trotting Bodies May Merge.

At yesterday's meeting of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association, continued from Tuesday, at the Murray Hill Hotel, Reese Blizzard of Parkersburg, W. Va., representing the Central District, was elected President of the association to fill the unexpired term of the late John C. Welty of Canton, Ohio, who died in September. E. W. Swisher of Columbus, Ohio, was elected First Vice President to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Morgan G. Bulkeley of Hartford, Conn., who died in November.

It was announced that a joint committee of the National Trotting Association and the Union Trotting Association has recommended that the two bodies combine and become one in the former organization, and also expresses the hope that the American Trotting Association will join in the merger.

"The undersigned joint committee, appointed by the National Trotting Association and the Union Trotting Association, recommends that the said two associations combine and become one in the National Trotting Association, the Union Trotting Association to have three members on the Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association.

"This union is recommended with the hope that the American Trotting Association will ultimately join with the merger and which will result in there being but one association."

Suspends Rockland Society.

The greater part of the morning was devoted to the taking of testimony, following which the board went into executive session. At its conclusion Secretary Gocher said the board has ordered that the Rockland County Agricultural and Horticultural Society of Orangeburg, N. Y., be suspended until it pays the winnings due J. G. Sherman. Mr. Sherman was before the board to press his claim and told them his winnings amount to $450, won four years ago. He also has an assigned claim of $135, he said. A citizen of Orangeburg, who said he was not an official of the Fair Grounds but is interested in racing, told the board that complications have arisen there because of a reorganization of the society which controls the track, but he thought matters could be adjusted.

The board ordered that the unlawful winnings of Lady Cochato, a four-year-old filly, that started as a three-year-old at Sidney, Ohio, in 1921, be returned and distributed to other winners.

The bay gelding Alco, that started at Lafoilette, Tenn., in August and the identification of which was asked for, was identified as the expelled horse, Deputy Sheriff, with a record of 2:09¼.

Adopt Memorial Resolutions.

Resolutions were adopted by the board regarding the deaths of John C. Welty and Morgan G. Bulkeley and the following spread on the record:

"It is with profund regret that the officers of the National Trotting Association record the deaths of their former associates, John C. Welty and Morgan G. Bulkeley. Both of them were identified with the association for many years and at all times occupied an important place in its affairs.

"Morgan G. Bulkeley's connection with the association dates from 1896, when he was elected a member of the Eastern District Board. He served on it until 1904, with the exception of two terms, from 1894 to 1898. In 1904 Mr. Bulkeley was elected First Vice President and filled that office until Sept. 23, 1922, when he became President upon the death of Mr. Welty. He remained at the head of the organization until his death on Nov. 6, 1922.

"John C. Welty was a member of the Western District Board from 1902 to 1914. He was Third Vice President from 1914 to 1916 and President from 1916 until he passed away at his home in Canton, Ohio. In Ohio, his native State, John C. Welty was for forty-five years a leader in the legal profession and active as a banker and manufacturer. During all of that time he was an ardent admirer of the trotter, both for pleasure on the road and for racing. He owned and raced a number of horses that acquired national reputations, one of them being a winner at a Grand Circuit meeting the day he died.

"As a sportsman Morgan G. Bulkeley was a builder. He was in 1876 one of the organizers of the National League of baseball clubs and its first President. A few years later he became identified with Charter Oak Park. In 1883 he guaranteed the payment of the first $10,000 purse and later financed the series of colt stakes which were the forerunners of the futurities of today.

"In 1896, when Charter Oak Park was thrown on the market, he purchased it to maintain this splendid racing plant for the residents of Connecticut. At its next crisis in 1906 he became connected with the Connecticut Fair and served as its first President."

N. Y. U. OUTLOOK POOR.

Basketball Team Is Handicapped by Lack of Veteran Players.

New York University's basketball outlook this year is the poorest since 1918. The lack of experienced court performers, coupled with one of the hardest schedules of years, will give Ed Thorp, head coach, a difficult task to turn out a winning combination. Toorock, varsity guard of last year, and Masline, a second-string guard of the same team, are the only men with varsity experience who have been practicing under Thorp and his assistants, Cann and McCarthy.

Captain-elect Bates of the 1923 five will be unable to lead his team into action until late in the season, and even that is doubtful, for the big football guard, who had his leg broken in the Syracuse game, is still on crutches.

The squad which has been working on the Heights Gym court for the last week numbers forty-three candidates. Jake Cann is in complete charge of the forwards, while the guard positions will be coached by William McCarthy, a former four-letter man at Lehigh.

MISS FORDYCE WINS IN PINEHURST GOLF

Defeats Mrs. Chapman in Opening Round of Play in Carolina Tourney, 7 and 6.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 6.—The two leading favorites in the Carolina tournament for women, Miss Louise Fordyce, the medalist and Ohio State champion, and Mrs. John D. Chapman of Greenwich, who won the tournament last year, clashed in the first match round at Pinehurst today, and Miss Fordyce won by 7 up and 6 to play. In 1921, when this event was first staged, Mrs. Chapman defeated Miss Fordyce in the play-off for the qualifying medal, and also defeated her in the final contest.

Miss Fordyce went out against Mrs. Chapman in 39 in today's round, and was 5 up at the turn. She took the tenth with a 4, halved the eleventh in 3, and brought the match to an end with a winning 5 on the twelfth green. Miss Fordyce was 39, 46—85, including a 9 on one of the bye holes. Mrs. Chapman's card was 46, 42—88.

Mrs. Francis J. Doyle of Frankford, Pa., defeated Mrs. George A. Magoon of Pittsburgh by 6 and 5, and will oppose Miss Fordyce in tomorrow's semi-final round.

The summaries:

Carolina Tournament—First Eight—Miss Louise Fordyce, Youngstown, defeated Mrs. John D. Chapman, Greenwich, 7 and 6; Mrs. Francis J. Doyle, Torresdale, defeated Mrs. George A. Magoon, Oakmont, 6 and 5; Mrs. F. Talfourd Keating, Agawam Hunt, defeated Mrs. Joseph Bydolek, Buffalo, 2 up; Mrs. Donald Parson, Youngstown, defeated Mrs. Horace H. Rackham, Detroit, 5 and 3.

Second Eight—Mrs. Edwin L. Scofield, Stamford, defeated Mrs. Charles S. Waterhouse, Ardsley, 7 and 5; Mrs. Herman Ellis, Oakland, defeated Mrs. Angel A. Engstrom, Grassy Sprain, 5 and 3; Miss Clara Krauter, Youngstown, won from Mrs. W. L. Pierce, Charlotte, by default; Miss Mary Jordan, Pinehurst, defeated Mrs. S. V. Belden, Scioto, 1 up (19 holes).

PAN-AMERICA LEADS IN ARMY CUT MOVE

LEAGUE PROPOSAL AMENDED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The limitation of land and naval armaments will be the outstanding subject of discussion at the fifth Pan-American Congress to be held at Santiago, Chile, next March. The Governing Board of the Pan-American Union, which has been framing the program for the Congress, today reached the unanimous decision that such limitation on some just and practical basis shall be one of the topics to be discussed by the twenty-one American republics whose plenipotentiaries will assemble.

The United States, the five Central American republics, all the South American republics, Mexico and Cuba will be represented at Santiago. There is every probability that the American Government will send an exceedingly strong delegation to Santiago and that Secretary Hughes will head it.

It had been the hope of the Harding Administration that land armaments for the world would be dealt with in the Washington conference which met a year ago. The attitude of France, as stated by M. Briand, blocked any attempt to deal with European land armaments at the Washington conference and confined the work of that gathering to the decisions on naval armaments and Pacific questions.

Want to Set Lesson for World.

The President and the Secretary of State have not shelved their conviction that reduction of armies should be dealt with at every convenient and favorable opportunity, and while Europe may not be prepared to act in that direction at present the nations of the Western Hemisphere can blaze the trail with an object lesson for the rest of the world. Reduction of land forces is on the agenda of the Central American conference now meeting in Washington.

It is not the idea of the nations that have agreed to take up arms limitation at Santiago that there should be complete disarmament. It is recognized by the American Government that some land and sea forces are necessary for national safety. The American Army, in fact, is not quite as large as the Administration would like to have it by some 25,000 men.

The proposal for a discussion of arms limitation on land and sea at Santiago originated with Chile. The original Chilean proposal was for a discussion of the reduction of military expenditures by the American republics with a view to cutting them down in "equal" proportion. It was quickly recognized that this would be too hard and fast a formula, one that would not take into consideration the peculiar needs of various nations and their legitimate plans for protection. The decision today calls for a revised form of the wording as originally proposed. The revised form does not call for reduction "in equal proportion" but reduction and limitation "on some just and practicable basis."

The Governing Board is composed of the Ambassadors and Ministers in Washington, representing the nations of the Western Hemisphere. Secretary Hughes, ex officio, is its Chairman. Consideration of the agenda for the Santiago conference has been in progress for nearly a year. There have been informal diplomatic exchanges between Washington and the Pan-American chanceleries during all that time over the program.

Amended Proposal for a League.

After the views of the Pan-American Governments were obtained the form in which the topic should be framed was submitted to a special subcommittee consisting of Secretary Hughes, Ambassador Mathieu of Chile, Ambassador Alencar of Brazil, Minister Elizalde of Ecuador and Minister Chamorro of Nicaragua, whose report has now been adopted. Uruguay submitted a proposal looking to the establishment of an American League of Nations. In a form amended on the suggestion of Secretary Hughes this was adopted, calling for "consideration of measures tending toward closer association of the republics of the American Continent with a view to promoting common interests."

Another Uruguayan proposal which provided for discussion of obligatory arbitration states in its modified form, as approved today, that the Santiago Congress shall give consideration to the "best means to give wider application to the principle of the judicial or arbitral settlement of disputes between the republics of the American continent." Still another Uruguayan proposal adopted in modified form provides for "consideration of the questions arising out of an encroachment by a non-American power on the rights of an American nation."

Another topic to be included in the Santiago program calls for a discussion of the "best means to promote the arbitration of commercial disputes between nationals of different countries."

Other subjects include the rights of aliens resident within the jurisdiction of any American republic and the status of children of such foreigners; improvement of ocean, land and air communication; co-operation with respect to the supervision of merchandise entering into international commerce; uniform parcel post procedure; simplification of passports; co-operation in the study of agricultural problems; standardization of university curricula, mutual recognition of the validity of professional degrees among the American republics and measures "to secure progressive diminution in the consumption of alcoholic beverages."

MORSE SEEKS TO GO TO ROME

Asks Court's Permission to Consult Professor Machiafava on Illness.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Charles W. Morse, under indictment here with his three sons and eight others on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Shipping Board in wartime contracts, asked the District of Columbia Supreme Court today for permission to go to Rome to consult Professor Machiafava, physician of the late Pope Benedict XV. Morse said Professor Machiafava was familiar with the illness with which he was suffering and could give relief.

Morse was on his way to Rome for a consultation with the Professor in November, 1921, when, at the request of Attorney General Daugherty, France refused to harbor him and he returned to the United States just before he was indicted. In his petition today Morse promised to return to Washington in time for his trial, fixed for February 5. A passport is being withheld pending the consent of the Department of Justice or the Court, which fixed Saturday as a date for a hearing on the petition.

Year More to Sue for Seized Property.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Thomas W. Miller, Alien Property Custodian, announced today that he and Attorney General Daugherty were strongly in favor of extending from next Jan. 9 to Jan. 9, 1924, the time in which suits may be filed for the recovery of property seized by the Government during the war. At the request of Mr. Miller bills providing for the extension have been introduced by Chairman Nelson of the Senate Judiciary Committee and Chairman Winslow of the House Commerce Committee.

HAD PLAN TO END WORLD BOLSHEVISM

Niels Gron, Writing to Wife, Said He Had a Special Mission From God.

CALLED SCHEME 'POTENTIA'

Sculptress Whom He Called "Reincarnated Spirit of Joan of Arc," Seeks Divorce.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 6.—Niels Gron, of New York, clubman and political writer, declared he had "a special mission from God to rid the world of Bolshevism," in letters written to Mrs. Gron, well known as a sculptress, after their separation and produced today at the continuation of the hearing of her divorce suit in the Superior Court. Mrs. Gron, a sister of Edgar Lee Masters, the poet, brought her action on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment.

The special mission referred to, the letters showed, took the form of an enterprise to obtain world-wide adoption of a seal guaranteeing the integrity of products. Mrs. Gron testified that her husband persuaded her friends to invest in a company promoting this plan, and that he asserted he was receiving from the company an income which, however, the petitioner never saw. The scheme was named "Potentia."

In his letter Gron besought his wife to "forget their little differences, rejoin him and work to make Potentia the world power it should be." Properly used, he said, the plan would "guarantee peace and order throughout the world, subdue Bolshevism and bring about a reign of good will."

"If you will be big and do a big thing," one letter went on, "you will be in a position to do more to prevent the spread of Bolshevism than any other woman in the world. You will go down in history as a benefactress of the race."

In a letter written July 1, 1920, to their son, Niels Gron Jr., 9 years old, and said to be a musical prodigy, for whose custody both parents are contending, Gron said:

"You were given to God at your birth by your mother and myself. We promised that if you might live you should serve God among men. Therefore, you belong to humanity. Money is the root of all evil. Therefore, when you told me not long ago that you were going to make money and become the richest man in the world, I felt terribly sad. Before you did wrong had said you wanted to serve God, and so quickly had your beautiful spirit been soiled by worldly lust."

Other letters written by Gron to his wife after their separation described her as the "reincarnated spirit of Joan of Arc." One letter said that the writer almost worshipped the spirit of Joan of Arc, and that the spirit had pointed out Madeline Masters to him as his bride. He wrote that he had thought she was the woman "through whom he should mount to celestial heights."

"When I passed you in the street yesterday," said a passage from another letter, "my heart shot out a terrible flame of love toward you."

Another letter divided into seventeen sections was advanced by counsel as proof of Gron's alleged brutality.

Mrs. Gron sued her husband for divorce in Chicago in 1916, stating then that they had separated twice and that he was a money worshipper, an inebriate and a visionary. She alleged that he used her funds to pay his debts. They were married in London in 1912, she then being Mrs. Stone, a Yale graduate and acquired some prominence in 1900 by attacking the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States on the ground that the Standard Oil Company was behind the project. He was known as a politician in Denmark and in 1913 was defeated when he ran for parliament.

WOOL MEN PLANNING TO POOL LAW SUITS

HOLDS CONVENTION HERE

Committee Will Be Named to Study Method of Instituting Action on Assigned Claims.

A legal pool to enable the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers to sue in its own name on a claim assigned to it by one of its members against a customer, will be developed forthwith by a committee whose appointment was authorized yesterday by more than 500 members in attendance at the sixteenth annual meeting of the association at the Waldorf-Astoria. The pool would enable the association to deal with customers guilty of cancellation and other unfair practices. The resolution providing for the committee to work out this solution reads:

"Whereas, it appears to be the sense of this meeting that means should be provided whereby the association can institute suit in its own name on a claim properly assigned to it against a customer who steadfastly resists all amicable settlement,

"It is Resolved, That the President be and hereby is requested to appoint a committee of not less than five nor more than seven to study and investigate the possibility of developing such a plan, and,

"It is further Resolved, That such committee will report back to the Executive Committee or the Board in the discretion of the chair within thirty days of its appointment."

The proposal received the indorsement of the members of the association after presentation of the report of the Secretary by J. J. Nevins, which pointed out that the work of the Committee on Trade Disputes was among the most progressive steps taken during the year, and which further pointed out that the work of that committee could not be effective unless and until members of the association understood that they did not have the power, because of the laws governing combinations in restraint of trade, to enter into an agreement to do no business with concerns listed by the committee.

"It is not debatable that such a combination would be conclusively effective, but it is no good wasting time with it if it cannot be done," said Mr. Nevins. "It is much more practicable and profitable to consider what can be done, and in this connection the suggested legal pool is worthy of serious consideration.

"Such a pool, so far as your Secretary has been able to study the problem, is both legal and practical, and could be made to be almost if not quite as effective as the combination that cannot be."

The idea of a legal pool was indorsed by the Trade Disputes Committee in its report, presented by Herbert H. Peabody, who said in part:

"As previously stated, the committee is without actual power. While its efforts have been in the main successful, there are types of customers who, because of their willful obstinacy, their selfish determination to ignore the plain terms of a valid contract, or their actual lack of business morality, are impossible to deal with.

"In these instances, the committee is reluctantly compelled to abandon its efforts, leaving the aggrieved party a choice of either charging the matter to profit and loss or embarking upon a lawsuit.

"This condition has brought about a steadily increasing feeling that the association should take one more step and empower the Committee on Trade Disputes to act as assignee of such unsettled claims as in its judgment are proper, just and well-founded, and then take those cases into court.

"The future of the cloak and suit industry" was discussed by Max Lachman, Managing Director of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association.

The association elected Albert L. Gifford of the Worumbo Company President; Alfred A. Whitman, William Whitman & Co., and Francis T. Maxwell, Hockanum Mills Company, Vice Presidents, and J. J. Nevins, Secretary-Treasurer.

TO SEE WEB-FOOTED TANK.

Armored Truck Which Swam Hudson to Be Shown in Washington.

The amphibious tank which traveled 25 miles an hour on Riverside Drive on Tuesday, then climbed 100 feet up the slope of the Palisades and swam across the Hudson River under its own power, will be demonstrated in Washington within the next few weeks, according to Walter Christie, the inventor. Army and Navy officers as well as members of the Senate and House Committees on Military affairs will be spectators. The tank carries a field gun, crew, with supplies and shelter and ammunition enough for a day's firing.

Mr. Christie said yesterday that he is now devoting himself to the perfection of a device for the conversion of a motor truck into a caterpillar tractor in a few minutes. He said that a truck manufacturing company was interested in his invention and that he would soon give a public demonstration.

The device, he said, is a caterpillar attachment compact enough to be carried by a motor truck for use on very bad roads and to get trucks out of ditches and ruts.

BOSCH INQUIRY OPENS HERE

Herman J. Galloway, a special assistant to Attorney General Daugherty, is here from Washington to work with John E. Joyce, head of the Criminal Department of the Federal Court, in another inquiry to be made into the sale of the Bosch Magneto property by the Alien Property Custodian in the Spring of 1918. The Property, said to have been worth $18,000,000, was sold to Martin E. Kern for $4,150,000.

An inquiry before a Federal Grand Jury in the District of Columbia ended when it was discovered that the only alleged overt acts charged in connection with the seizure and sale of the property were committed here and in Boston. An inquiry in Boston came to nothing. Neither Mr. Galloway nor Mr. Joyce would discuss the matter, but it is understood that the inquiry before a Grand Jury in this jurisdiction has been started.

Ontario Looking for a $5,000,000 Loan.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—The Province of Ontario is calling for tenders for a new 5½ per cent. loan amounting to $5,000,000. They will be received by the Provincial Treasurer up to noon of Dec. 16. This additional financing by the Province of Ontario, delayed for some time, is regarded here as indicating a return of confidence in the bond market.

As to Printed Linings.

As an accompaniment of the indicated vogue for printed silks for Spring, there is some talk of a revival of printed linings. Garment manufacturers are more interested in linings of this kind than they have been for some time, according to opinions expressed in the silk trade. Some representative garment wholesalers said yesterday, however, that they have noticed no marked trend away from the solid color, high-lustre linings as yet. They added that, in the cheaper coats, printed linings may be more generally used, but for the higher grade ones the plain satins and crêpes are in favor for the coming season.

For Increasing Brassiere Sales.

A special effort that is expected to be successful this season has been made by manufacturers of brassieres to establish these articles more firmly in the gift category. They have prepared holiday models in dainty materials, attractively trimmed, with which to achieve this result. Retailers have been urged to give more attention to pushing them with purchasers. Results thus far are described as promising, and the prediction is made that holiday sales of these articles will show a marked increase in comparison with former years.

Look for Better Business.

Better business during the next six months is predicted by 90 per cent. of the leading sales executives of the country, according to a canvass of sales managers in practically all lines of industry conducted by William Maxwell, President of the William Maxwell Institute, Orange, N. J., and former First Vice President of Thomas A. Edison, Inc. About 150 sales executives, representing all sections of the United States, answered the questionnaire. Of these, 54 per cent. said that they look for a big holiday trade, while 23 per cent. anticipate only a fair holiday business. In the opinions of the sales managers canvassed, the principal obstacles to business improvement, in the order of their importance, are low purchasing power of farmers, inadequate sales effort on the part of retail merchants, and taxation and unstable conditions in Europe.

Gray Goods Still Dragging.

Gray goods continued to drag in this market yesterday, with second hands doing the little business that was put through at prices substantially under those which first hands were willing to accept. Never spot goods appeared to be in second hands, however, than was the case earlier in the week. Among the sales put through yesterday were 39-inch 65-72s at 10¾ cents and 38½-inch 64-60s at 9¾ cents. Buyers appeared willing to pay more than 9¾ cents for the latter goods, however, and a few scattered spot lots of them are believed to have sold at that figure. Second hand offerings of sheetings included five-yard goods at 9¾ cents and 5.50s at a cent a yard less. There was little, if any, change in the fine yarn cloths and specialties.

Children's Hats Sell Freely.

Large sales of felt hats for children are reported here by one of the leading factors in this branch of the millinery trade. Those trimmed with visca braid are especially sought for. Parisian zibeline and camel's hair felts are also "good," particularly in such shades as pheasant, sand, beaver, green, red, the darker browns, oakwood, canna, and dark blue. Very little call for navy blue hats is reported. In the shapes roll brims are far and away in the lead, but the crowns are about evenly divided between square and sectional. The visca braid trimming is used in the form of rosettes, cocardes, borders, bands, &c.

Although nothing approaching a general opening of Fall, 1922, lines of fleeced underwear has taken place in the local market, it was learned yesterday that some of the trade leaders are quietly booking business at prices showing advances of 5 to 15 per cent. over the figures quoted at the last previous opening. Large buying of these goods can hardly be expected at this time, due to the fact that there are practically no knit goods jobbing buyers of importance now in this market. The chances seem to be very strongly against formal opening of fleeced goods at present for that reason, and with the sort general influx of buyers not due here until about the middle of January, it is probable that the goods will be let out gradually in a quiet way.

There is apparently no lack of confidence that Spring business in fancy wares, including notions, leather goods, toilet articles, novelty jewelry and like merchandise will be anything but good. Sales of these articles during the current year have been noteworthy, and a continuation of the strong demand is thought more than likely. One of the leading local firms selling this class of goods directly to the retailer is now making extensive preparations for a big business. One of its executives said yesterday that the Spring lines will comprise the largest and most comprehensive offering of this merchandise that the concern has made in its history.

Supplies of Raw Silk.

Deliveries of raw silk to American mills during November showed a drop as compared with the previous month, according to figures issued yesterday by the Statistical Bureau of the Silk Association. For last month the deliveries totaled 35,467 tons, compared with 37,471 tons in October. They were made up of 27,962 bales of Japanese, 525 of Italian and 6,980 of "all others." Imports during the month were 36,733 bales, comprising 29,760 of Japanese, 849 of Italian and 6,407 of "all others." Stocks on hand in local warehouses on Dec. 1 increased, being 47,159 bales, compared with 45,983 bales on the first of the preceding month. The former figures, however, include 5,150 bales at Kobe and Yokohama. They comprise 36,565 bales of Japanese, 149 of Italian and 8,445 of the "all other" category.

Make High-Priced Hose Here.

Fine silk hosiery of the high-priced variety previously imported from Europe is being produced in this country this season by one of the well-known manufacturers. Some of the "numbers" in the line wholesale for as high as $600 a dozen. Several other "numbers" wholesaling at more than $300 a dozen are also offered by this concern. The movement of the goods, though not active, was said yesterday to be better than it had been expected domestic goods could sell at those prices. The real value of the hose, of course, lies in their expensive inserts of Belgian hand-made point lace, which is beautifully executed in attractive patterns.

Insuring of Shipments.

Through arrangements which have been completed with one of the large underwriters of transit insurance, policies have been secured by the Traffic Department of the Silk Association of America that will result in reducing freight and express charges. Instead of shippers declaring the full value of a shipment of raw silk and paying carrying charges accordingly, a nominal value will be stated and a policy taken out for the difference. The saving lies in the difference between the premium and the tragsit rates when the full value had to be declared. The policies will embody permission to forward shipments by express or freight at the carriers' general release. That is, on express consignments a value of $50 per hundred pounds or 50 cents per pound may be declared, while on freight shipments a declaration of $1 per pound may be made.

Bonus Dividend by Cotton Mill.

FALL RIVER, Dec. 6.—An extra dividend of 25 per cent. was announced today by the Directors of the King Philip Cotton Mills, who also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. In 1920 the corporation paid a cash dividend of 23 per cent. and a dividend in Liberty Bonds of 52 per cent.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

As has happened on several recent days, the movements of real significance on yesterday's financial markets were in foreign exchange and Liberty bonds. The stock market recovered rapidly after reaching still lower prices, and it closed at respectable net advances for the day; but the stock market's fluctuations are just now pretty negligible as a measure of real conditions. The day's further advance in European exchange rates, however, was at least a commentary on the international position, and the steady rise of United States bonds, new issue and old alike, indicates the character of our own investment situation.

Sterling touched $4.56¾ yesterday, making its advance 5¾ cents in a week and 10¾ since Nov. 15. Dutch exchange nearly reached parity; Swedish exchange temporarily went to the highest premium yet quoted. The franc and the lira both advanced appreciably. Last Spring, the general advance in exchange was ascribed to three causes: large European loans floated in our market, increase in our imports of merchandise from Europe, and Europe's own economic improvement. Since the first of these causes is at present non-existent and the second at least improbable, the verdict of the exchange market on the third (if it is a verdict) is interesting.

The German mark did not advance; it held around the price of 1¼ one-hundredths of a cent from which it has hardly varied in two weeks. This apathetic behavior yesterday occurred in face of a Reichsbank statement showing Germany's paper currency to have increased during the final week of November in the tidy sum of 119,336,000,000 marks. The previous best record was the 61,045,000,000 of the preceding week and, in fact, the paper circulation has now been actually doubled in the six weeks since the middle of October. Of course this preposterous performance cannot continue without forcing the new Ministry to declare some different program than "adopting the Wirth Cabinet's policies." German opinion still insists that, since the mark stood unchanged during the 30 per cent. increase of currency in the last half of November, it must be that inflation has no influence on the currency's market value. Wall Street would probably suggest that the fall of 75 per cent. which occurred last October in the exchange value of the mark had "discounted" even the end-of-November situation.

The late recovery in stocks, which left the market with some substantial net advances, was ascribed on the Stock Exchange to Secretary Mellon's report, its failure to recommend new taxes and its suggestion of reduced surtaxes on income. More probably the recovery was automatic; the Secretary's ideas were known beforehand.

For well-known reasons the condition of the iron market, in regard both to movement of production and movement of prices, is accepted as reflecting or foreshadowing the course of general business. If output alone is taken as the criterion, yesterday's statement of November's production is altogether reassuring. It is the largest of any month since November, 1920. Compared with November of 1921, average daily output was doubled last month, and the daily capacity on Dec. 1 was larger by 2,145 tons or 2¼ per cent than November's average.

Against this showing many people would place the reaction in price of iron, which has declined 19 per cent. from the year's high point of September and nearly 5 per cent. in the past week. It will be remembered in the first place, however, that the high September prices were reached just after fully one-fourth of the foundries had blown out because of insufficient fuel and when consumers therefore were bidding against each other. But the more recent continuance of the downward tendency may mean something more; namely, the indisposition of consumers which prevails in every wholesale industry to stock up at advancing prices, even with trade revival.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6, 1922.

Call money on Stock Exchange opened and renewed at 5 per cent. but advanced to 5½ per cent. after midday where it held until closing. Money at London unchanged at 1¾ per cent.; short bills unchanged at 2⅞@2¾ per cent.; three months' bills unchanged at 2⅞@2½ per cent.

Gold bullion down 3d at 90s 7d. Taking the British Mint standard price of 84s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation for gold would represent a price of 106¾ at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the week to date was 110¾ on Dec. 3. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London, in September, 1919, was 140¾, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 106¾, on Dec. 5, 1922; previous low, 106¾, on Dec. 5, 1922.

Clearing House Exchanges.

Exchange of checks at the New York Clearing House, $473,000,000; balances, $58,000,000; Federal Reserve credit balance, $349,000,000; exchanges a year ago, $416,000,000.

SILVER BULLION.

STOCK INQUIRY RUMORED.

Governors of Exchange Reported to Have Questioned Saunders.

According to reports in Wall Street yesterday, Clarence Saunders, President of the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., of Memphis was called before the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange to explain why his company had abandoned its plan to increase the capital stock of the company. Officials of the Exchange would not admit that this was true, but neither did they deny it. A representative of Mr. Saunders told reporters yesterday that no statement would be made in connection with the rumor.

The stock of the company has been very erratic on the Stock Exchange of late because of the selling by professional traders based upon the fact that several companies with similar names, but having no connection with the company above referred to, recently went into bankruptcy. This selling is believed to have resulted in the building up of a large short interest in the stock, which is listed on the New York and Chicago Stock Exchanges. Mr. Saunders was recently in Chicago and, according to advices received from that city, was buying up all of the stock offered on short sales by speculators.

BANK DIVIDENDS DECLARED.

National Bank of Commerce to Pay an Extra 4 Per Cent.

Directors of the National Bank of Commerce yesterday declared an extra dividend of 4 per cent. on the capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. Both dividends are payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 15.

Directors of the Guaranty Trust Company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. on the capital stock, payable Dec. 30, to stock of record Dec. 15.

The Chase National Bank yesterday announced that the Board of Directors has declared a dividend of 4 per cent. on the capital stock and the Chase Securities Corporation declared a dividend of $1 a share. Both dividends are payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 18.

Continental Can Meeting Today.

Following the Directors' meeting of the Continental Can Company yesterday, it was announced that the meeting had been adjourned until 10:30 this morning.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Sudden Upturn in Stock Prices.

Following irregular movement of prices during the early dealings yesterday, the stock market shortly after noon suddenly started upward; numerous very substantial gains were reported at the close compared with the final levels of Tuesday. Advances of one to two points were frequent, while some of the higher-priced speculative issues gained from four to seven points. At the opening of the market prices were reactionary, and professionals continued to force liquidation by centring their attacks against certain specialties. These operations were only partially successful; a steady undertone was evident around noon. Then came news from Washington of the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury which stated that Mr. Mellon was of the opinion that there would be no need of new taxation at this time and that the Treasury hoped to meet any and all deficiencies without recourse to additional taxes; it was followed by a sharp upswing in prices. This advance continued up to the end of trading and most issues closed at the high prices for the day. Virtually every group of stocks took part in the recovery.

The Treasury's New Financing.

Details of the Treasury's new financing to take care of Dec. 15 and Jan. 1 requirements were made public at the offices of the local Reserve Bank yesterday afternoon. This financing calls for the issuance of $700,000,000 new certificates and Treasury notes to be sold for cash. The certificates are divided into two issues, one bearing 3½ per cent. interest and maturing in three months while the other runs for one year and bears 4 per cent. The Treasury notes, which will amount to $300,000,000, will run for 2½ years and bear 4½ per cent. It is pointed out, however, that the Treasury will offer an additional block of Treasury notes to cover whatever amount of Victory notes may be offered in exchange for such Treasury notes on Dec. 15. It was further said that both called and uncalled Victory notes may be exchanged for the new Treasury notes which run for 2½ years beginning Dec. 15. The financing announced yesterday, together with the amount of money which will be received on Dec. 15 from tax returns, will, according to local bank officials, take care of all of the Treasury needs up to and including Jan. 1. Such obligations which mature from now to the end of the year aggregate $900,000,000, of which $200,000,000 is in the form of certificates and the balance in called Victory notes. The war savings and other certificates maturing Jan. 1 will either be paid off or exchanged into other obligations, according to the option of the owner.

"Run-Up" in the Motor Stocks.

Although the entire motor group moved with the general market certain issues in this class forged far ahead of others. Studebaker closed with a net gain of 5¾ points on heavy buying orders in the afternoon. Chandler gained 1¾ while the other motors were higher in proportion. In the case of Studebaker, the leader of the entire group, the Street was puzzled as to its action during the early dealings, when it lost about a point. The selling in the stock was apparently traceable to so-called "inside sources," but it was later believed that the stock which was being sold was merely stock accumulated last week to support the market. The weakness was accompanied by rumors that the corporation could not maintain the regular 10 per cent. dividend on the common stock on the increased capital, despite the fact that the Directors intimated that this could be done. Against this it was stated that to pay the 10 per cent. dividend on the increased capital of $75,000,000 and the regular 7 per cent. dividend on the preferred stock, would call for something like $8,200,000 annually; whereas, earnings described as available for the common stock in the first nine months of the year were $15,000,000.

Manhattan Railway Dividend.

With the announcement yesterday of the plan of the Interborough Directors to handle the Manhattan Railway accumulated dividend rental through the payment of scrip the financial community has seen the first move of operation under the readjustment plan. Under this plan it is also planned to pay in cash 1¼ per cent. rental due for the six months ending Dec. 31, 1922. Banking interests connected with the reorganization of the Interborough and Manhattan affairs expressed confidence that the new plan would contribute much in the way of more efficient and profitable operation.

Wall Street and the Exchange Market.

When sterling rose yesterday to $4.56¾, compared with $4.52⅝ at last week's closing and $4.48¼ two weeks ago yesterday, and when Dutch exchange also went to a new high record (within one-half of 1 per cent of parity) Wall Street frankly confessed itself mystified. What puzzles even the exchange market is that the continued advance in sterling is not only contradictory to all recent predictions, even on the London market, but that it seems to have occurred in the face of conditions rendering it impossible. The recent heavy transfer of funds from London to pay interest to our Treasury ordinarily would have obstructed such a rise, and the almost unanimous feeling of Wall Street a month or two ago was that imports would be so small after the enactment of the new tariff as to cut off a very large amount of the credits which have lately accrued to Europe in the ordinary way of business. For the failure of Paris exchange to advance when practically all the others are going up, various theories were expressed. One was that foreign balances have been withdrawn in considerable amounts from Paris and transferred to either London or New York. The other, which has had no confirmation from the European markets, was that the London exchange market had drawn on its Paris credits and remitted to New York for the express purpose of facilitating the British Government's payments without breaking sterling.

According to semi-official computations yesterday the October railway results will show a net for the Class 1 roads in the neighborhood of $82,000,000. This compares with net of $68,500,000 for September, of 3.96 per cent. earned on property valuation, and net of $105,500,000 for October, 1921, or 5.40 per cent. earned on property valuation.

Great Northern Meeting Dec. 18.

According to dispatches from St. Paul late yesterday the Great Northern Directors will take up the dividend question at the regular meeting on Dec. 18. St. Paul officials were quoted as expecting the regular 7 per cent. annual rate to be continued, but in Wall Street the report persisted that a change would be effected. At the local offices of the company it was reported that no announcement had been received regarding the dividend meeting. Wall Street was under the impression yesterday that the presence of many of the Great Northern Directors in Chicago indicated the holding of the meeting at that place, but it was explained that the officials were in the city to attend the sessions of the Association of Railway Executives.

BEDFORD DEFENDS STOCK DIVIDENDS

NOT TO DODGE SUPER-TAXES

Nor Do They Hurt the Consumer, He Says, Advising State to Keep Hands Off Proper Expansion.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 6.—Stock dividends were defined and defended here today by A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Speaking to the convention of the American Petroleum Institute, Mr. Bedford decried the "rising tide" of socialism and State regulation which, he said, threatened to submerge the initiative and resourcefulness of American business men.

Admitting that the impulse toward State regulation was directed particularly at his industry and his company and had taken the form of suggestions to tax stock dividends, the speaker vigorously denied that such dividends represented recent accumulations of swollen profits, that they injured the consumer, or that they constituted a method of super-income tax evasion. It was after he had dwelt on the disposition of Europe to recede from too much regulation and had described the danger of that nature he perceived here, that Mr. Bedford said:

"There is no better service we can do for the people of our country than to make sure that the old frontier American qualities of resourcefulness, initiative, self-reliance, neighborliness, shall not perish from among us. We are all perhaps the more inclined to consider these matters because governmental participation in our own industry has been so often represented as the remedy for many economic ills. There is at the moment, indeed, a proposal for Government intervention in a certain phase of the industry, which proposal differs from many others only in that it is rather more illogical than anything that has gone before.

"It is based upon an allegation that the earnings over dividends of a number of corporations of varied character, including one to which I belong, have been for a number of years sequestered for the sole purpose of evading the super-income taxes of the shareholders of these corporations.

Earnings Plowed Back, He Says.

"As the merest novice in business will understand, the earnings over dividends of these corporations could not remain in fluid form, but, as created, the growth of the enterprise requires that they be translated into tangible property representing the plant, equipment and business facilities of these corporations. In the process they were taxed as earnings and the remainder thus invested in tangible property becomes a fertile field of taxation for the State. In the form of new wealth they represent progress in industry, wider and more efficient services for the people, more regular and more profitable employment for the worker. These assets, which thus came into existence with an earning power distinct from the earnings of the original capital investment, are the property of the shareholders of any company. They represent new capital actually provided by the shareholders who over a period of years have relinquished the receipt by themselves of the full earnings of the business and by plowing back into it annually a proportion of these earnings have permitted them to fructify into greater service to the community, and to all those engaged in industry. Only if these earnings have been retained by the corporation in excess of the reasonable requirements of the business can there be any suggestion that the accumulated surplus has been diverted from the channel of taxable income.

"With an individual or a partnership, the transfer of surplus to capital is obtained by a mere bookkeeping entry. The only legal process open to a corporation is a stock distribution and this is probably the most misunderstood of all processes of commerce.

"It has been urged that such stock dividends should be subject to income tax in the same manner, and this assumption rests on a confusion as to the real character of the transaction, due to the use of the ambiguous term 'dividend.' A stock dividend, declared to cover a surplus absorbed and utilized in the business, is, as the Supreme Court made clear in the Macomber case, 'in essence not a dividend but rather the opposite.' It is a capitalization of surplus, not a distribution to stockholders. It, in fact, postpones the possibility of realization of profits by individual stockholders, by definitely assigning the surplus to capital purposes. The so-called dividend remains a part of the company's capital. It is not at the disposal of the individual shareholder, but represents a part of the company's assets, subject to all the risks and fluctuations to which business enterprise is subject. The individual shareholder may have three or five paper certificates of ownership where he previously had one, and may thereby find it easier to divide and market his holdings, but he owns no larger share of the business than before. The total assets of the corporation have not been increased, nor his share of the total assets increased by this bookkeeping operation. If the stock gains in value, if the holder realizes a gain when he disposes of his shares, this gain will be subject to tax as income.

Net Creation of New Wealth.

"There is, however, an impression, diligently fostered, that a stock distribution is a medium for a distribution of profits, that the creation of new share certificates is the creation of new wealth and that after the multiplication of the shares of a given property every one concerned is proportionately richer. That would be true if wealth could be made by changing a dollar bill into four quarters. The stock dividend is not the coinage of new values. It leaves the recipient just where he was, with more share certificates but no greater proportionate interest, and it leaves the property represented by the certificates as it was, with its service to the State unimpaired and with its possibilities for potential taxation intact. It is no more the evidence of undue profits past or future than was the conversion of this vast Western country from a wilderness into a great and productive national asset.

"It has been urged, moreover, that a policy of declaring stock distributions injures the consumer. How so? How is the consumer affected adversely by a decision to retain earnings in a business for the purpose of extending and improving it? The issue of new capital stock certificates will not permit a corporation to charge a cent more for its products. It does not lessen the activity of its rivals, home and foreign. It does not decrease the supply of the product. It does not change the demand for its product. What possible bearing can it have on price, other than the probability that prices will eventually be lowered by the improvements in production due to the larger capital investment?

"You will pardon this elementary explanation, I know, because you realize that the demand which has been made is a menace to our own and to all industry, to all labor and to all society. The proposal to tax a proper surplus is a proposal of sabotage by legislation. It is an incitement to the confiscation of property which has already borne its full share of taxation, the exaction of tribute which, if it had to be met by industry generally, would jam the machinery of commerce, would abruptly terminate the creation of new wealth for the community and would produce enforced idleness of labor upon an unprecedented scale.

Defends Gasoline Prices.

"I have trespassed on your patience in speaking of this matter of stock dividends because it is a somewhat vital matter to you as well as to me. It has been charged in the press and especially here in the Middle West that the profits represented by the stock dividends to which I have referred were accumulated in the past year or two instead of over a period of ten or twelve years, and had been made through the excessive prices charged for gasoline. No one knows the falsity of such representation better than you gentlemen of the industry, or the fact that if the prices of gasoline and other refined products had been less there would not only have been no profits, but a severe loss to every one engaged in the industry. The fact is that competition has been extremely severe, prices have been lower than very many companies would have liked to see them, and changes in prices have been due to natural business causes so inexorable in their operation that no company or group of companies could control them.

"If the United States is to secure and maintain its proper share of the world's trade, if the merchant is to have a market for his product, if the worker is to have sure and profitable employment, if the consumer is to have the benefit of new processes, it is essential that the free flow of capital into industry should be encouraged and not discouraged. It would be extremely unfortunate to seek to prevent or discourage the accumulation of surplus for this essential purpose. It is, of course, not possible or desirable to provide for all the expansion required from this source; new issues of stock to bring in new investors must be made from time to time, but so far as this course is possible, it insures stability and healthy growth from within. This is the typical American method of business expansion. Any attempt to standardize profit at a fixed level, and any assumption that earnings in excess of that level should be penalized by special taxes or regulations, means erecting a barrier against American initiative and establishing a dead level of inefficiency and stagnation.

"It is just such agitation as I have been referring to that has caused the growth of the industry to become associated with something sinister in the minds of many people. It has been misunderstood because it was not a growth in the ordinary sense. It has been a recreation rather than an evolution.

"The petroleum industry of the gasoline age is no more the petroleum industry of the kerosene age than the great automobile industry of this country is the multiplication of the old village wheelwright, laboriously fashioning a democrat wagon. In 1922 the petroleum industry, with combined assets ten times those of 1905, existed primarily to supply the world with approximately 150,000,000 barrels of gasoline per annum, largely for use in motor vehicles, representing an investment of between ten and twelve billion dollars. In reality a new business has been born in the period referred to, the capital and facilities required for which have been such as to furnish no adequate comparison with the capital and facilities required for the old industry."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

New High Made by Sterling—Other Important European Rates Show Strength.

The foreign exchange market was again dominated yesterday by the rate on London, the rise in sterling advancing the quotation to the high point of $4.50¾, a new record for the year and a gain of exactly 2 cents as compared with the close of the preceding day. In the later trading sterling eased off somewhat, closing at $4.50⅝, but even at this price there was an overnight net gain of 1⅛ cents. On Nov. 6 the high point for sterling was $4.44⅝, so that in just exactly a month exchange on London has risen nearly 12 cents. The major influences behind the rise were still clouded to a certain degree yesterday. The surface reason for the upturn was the heavy selling of dollars in London with its resultant forward impetus to sterling.

The entire foreign exchange market seemed to take its cue from the position of exchange on London. The rate on Paris once again crossed 7 cents to 7.02½, and there was a further recovery in lira that left exchange on Rome just short of the 5-cent level. The Amsterdam rate moved up to 39.92 cents and closed at 39.89, in comparison with 39.87 as the final price on Tuesday.

The premium on Stockholm rate was further increased, exchange on this point rising to 27.06 cents, with the close at 26.93. This latter figure was slightly under the close of the preceding day. Stockholm for the moment is occupying a position similar to that which Switzerland held some months ago, when Swiss exchange was the only one selling at a premium over the dollar.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

Dated December 1, 1922. Maturing $650,000 annually on May 1st of each year from 1923 to 1929, both inclusive. Dividends payable annually May 1st. Principal and dividends payable at the office of the trustee. Certificates in bearer form in denomination of $1,000 with privilege of registration as to principal.

ISSUED UNDER THE PHILADELPHIA PLAN

These certificates represent the interest formerly held by Armour & Company in certain equipment and the lease thereof to Fruit Growers Express Company under an agreement dated April 24, 1920. This agreement together with title to the equipment covered thereby has been assigned by Armour & Company to the Trustee for the benefit of the holders of these certificates. The payment of rentals by Fruit Growers Express Company under its lease of this equipment (which equal in amount the principal and dividends of these certificates), by agreement of guaranty dated April 24, 1920, and assigned to the Trustee, is unconditionally, severally guaranteed by the following proprietary railroads in the proportions indicated:

CITIES SERVICE MAY DIVIDE $300,000,000

Directors Ask Stockholders to Vote on an Increase of Common Stock.

TO EQUAL PROPERTY VALUE

An increase in the authorized common capitalization of the Cities Service Company from $100,000,000 to $400,000,000 has been proposed by the Board of Directors, and a meeting of the stockholders has been called for Dec. 28 to ratify this action. This is the second largest capital increase that has been proposed by any company this year, the largest having been that of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, when some time ago the capital was increased by $525,000,000.

The announcement was contained in a letter sent to stockholders yesterday by Henry L. Doherty, President of the company. This letter does not state specifically the reason for the capital increase, but simply says that the board is asking that the stockholders create a situation which will enable it to act as seems best, and attention is called to the fact that recommendations had been made that a stock dividend be declared of sufficient size to make outstanding stock approximately equal property value. The letter states that if any action is taken for the payment of a stock dividend it will be paid on Dec. 30, to holders of record Dec. 28.

President Doherty's Letter.

"Many corporations having large surpluses have deemed it advisable to declare out such surpluses in the form of stock dividends, while others have definitely decided not to do so," says the letter. "However, the preponderance of opinion is that capital obligations should be made to equal property values as nearly as possible. It is understood that some of the corporations that have not as yet taken action intend to do so before Dec. 31, 1922, but deem it wise to defer action to the latest possible date, in order that they may be guided by anything that may be developed by the heated discussion of the question which is now on, and have the benefit of any court decisions bearing on the subject that may be handed down in the interim. It is also their wish to take into consideration public opinion, which is now rapidly crystallizing, as it will have a decided influence on future legislative action.

"The Board of Directors of the Cities Service Company has in no way committed itself to any specific action, and by calling this meeting of the stockholders does not pledge itself to any specific action or any action whatever. In fact, this board believes that, where possible, a fixed dividend policy should be maintained, and it has repeatedly committed itself to this plan.

"The board is simply asking that the stockholders create a situation which will enable it to act as seems best, and this letter is to advise the stockholders that the board is considering the recommendations it has received that book surplus be declared out as a stock dividend, and the further recommendation that a stock dividend, sufficient to make the outstanding stock approximately equal the property values, be declared."

The authorized common capital of the Cities Service Company is $100,000,000, increased from $50,000,000 on April 28, 1921. Of the total amount authorized $46,611,016 is outstanding. In addition to common capital the company has an authorized $150,000,000 6 per cent. cumulative preferred, of which $76,239,932 is outstanding; $40,000,000 second preferred, Series B, 6 per cent. cumulative, $10 par value, of which $3,446,970 is outstanding, and the second preferred, Series BB, 8 per cent. cumulative, $100 par value, of which $50,000,000 is authorized and $60,000 outstanding.

The total funded debt of the company is $29,593,740. The company stated on Jan. 1 of this year that holders of all classes of securities, including bonds and debentures, aggregated more than 100,000 persons.

The general balance sheet of Dec. 31, 1921, shows a surplus of $47,013,011 and total assets of $401,185,806, of which plant and investment represent $342,899,355. The properties of the company consist of public utilities in a number of cities, but in recent years the company has become one of the largest producers of oil in the United States, operating mainly in the Mid-continent fields.

GREATER ACTIVITY NOTED IN PIG IRON

Production Now at a Yearly Rate of 35,500,000 Tons, More Than Double Last Year's Total.

The past week was marked by wide activity in pig iron, particularly at Detroit, according to The Iron Age review of the industry. Prices gave way considerably, it was pointed out, a development which was said to indicate both buyers and sellers were feeling for the bottom of the market.

Production of iron in the United States during November, as reported yesterday by The Iron Age, increased 211,859 tons over October and 1,434,222 over November, 1921. The increase over October was 11 per cent.; as compared with the previous November the increase was 101.9 per cent.

November's pig iron output was the largest since November, 1920. Present production is at the yearly rate of 35,500,000 tons. The Iron Age points out that in all last year 19,683,000 tons, or less than half as much, was made. The high record was 39,434,000 tons in 1916. Merchant furnaces last month made the surprising gain of 3,800 tons a day over their October rate and are now producing 10,000 tons a day more than in August, an increase of about 75 per cent. in three months.

October	2,637,844	1,246,676	2,252,997
September	2,033,720	985,539	2,139,324
August	1,816,170	954,193	2,147,402
July	2,400,045	864,553	2,067,045

The net gain in active furnaces last month was 24. The total of such furnaces on Dec. 1 was 241, with a daily capacity of 97,135 tons, against 218 furnaces with 87,935 tons capacity per day on Nov. 1, and 144 furnaces with 54,645 tons daily capacity on Sept. 1.

An activity of future buying was reported as the outstanding feature in the iron and steel industry by The Iron Trade Review. Some unevenness in prices was developing, it was said, as mill bookings have run down in certain lines, but there was an absence of weakness anywhere.

"The General Motors Corporation," it was said, "seeking a heavy tonnage of miscellaneous material, has placed a portion of this business, but a larger amount is still under negotiation. The sheet rolling requirements of this consumer are estimated at 100,000 tons annually. The Ford Motor Company, taking up for consideration its steel requirements for first quarter, plans to roll its own sheets at its contemplated steel plant at Detroit.

"Additional car awards this week total 9,200, a total in two weeks of approximately 20,000. Chicago reports 35,000 cars still under active negotiations. Structural awards of the past week aggregate 18,000 tons."

Argentina to Fund its Debts.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 5. (Associated Press).—Plans for funding the Argentine short term and floating debts have been nearly completed by Minister of Finance Herrere Vegas, according to the newspaper La Razon, which says it has learned authoritatively that the Government has decided to request the present extraordinary session of Congress to authorize a general loan of about 1,000,000,000 pesos. Of the total, 700,000,000 paper pesos would be floated internally while an external loan of 150,000,000 gold pesos would be accorded to the bidders offering the most favorable terms.

$1,450,000 in Gold on Way Here.

Gold valued at $1,450,000 is being brought by the Cunard liner Berengaria for Kuhn, Loeb & Co., it was learned yesterday. The ship sailed from England last Saturday. This makes a total of $52,050,000 of gold imported from England by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. this year.

A meeting of the stockholders of De Beers Consolidated Mines has been called for Dec. 29 for the purpose of increasing the capital stock of the company by issuing 100,000 shares of a nominal value of £2 10s. it was learned yesterday by the Foreign Department of Moody's Investor's Service. The new shares are identical with the old shares as to dividends and other privileges. The present capitalization consists of 2,500,000 ordinary shares of £2 10s each, and £2,000,000 4 per cent cumulative preference shares of the same par value.

CUBA CANE SUGAR OVERCOMES DEFICIT

They Drop From $35,265,966 in 1921 to $10,214,169—Outlook is Declared Bright.

The Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation for the year ended Sept. 30, 1922, reports gross receipts of $24,737,321, against $50,262,035 in the previous year. After payment of all expenses, including reserves for taxes, interest and other charges, there remained a profit of $28,219, against a deficit of $9,712,334 the year before.

*Loss.

The general balance sheet on Sept. 30 showed a profit and loss surplus of $3,157,209, against $3,750,470 at the close of the previous year. Net current assets amounted to $20,065,908, against $38,615,354, and net current liabilities $10,214,169, against $35,265,966. The reduction in net current liabilities was brought about mainly by the liquidation of sugar supplies, but about $10,000,000 was due to an increase in the funded debt.

W. E. Ogilvie, President, in his remarks to stockholders concerning the situation in the sugar markets said in part:

"In the last annual report it was stated that the statistical situation of sugar was unfavorable if the Western Hemisphere alone is taken into account, but not unfavorable if the world at large is considered, and the prediction was hazarded that if the surplus of over 1,000,000 tons of sugar now held in Cuba were spread, as it normally would have been over the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany, it would not have attracted attention, being but a normal supply, and hence would not have had the same depressing effect on prices. This is what actually did occur as soon as a free market was restored and the accumulation of sugars in Cuba was spread over the world. The normal demand of the world proved rather more than sufficient to absorb Cuban production."

Figures, he added, showed practically no sugar in Cuba at the beginning of this month and less than a normal reserve in the United States.

MORE FIRMS RAISE DIVIDEND PAYMENTS

REGULAR IS ADVANCED

G. W. Helme Company, United Light and Railways and Yale & Towne Take Action.

Another long list of stock dividends, increased cash dividends and extra cash dividends was announced in Wall Street yesterday. Directors of the Electric Storage Battery Company declared an extra dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital common stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1 a share. These dividends are payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 14. The regular dividend also was declared on the preferred stock payable the same dates. In the two previous quarters the company had paid dividends at the rate of 75 cents quarterly on the common stock, so that the regular payment is increased in addition to making an extra disbursement.

Directors of the G. W. Helme Company, tobacco manufacturer, yesterday declared an extra dividend of 4 per cent. on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 3 per cent. The regular dividend of 1¾ per cent. was also declared on the preferred shares. All three dividends are payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 18.

The United Light and Railways Company Directors yesterday declared an initial quarterly payment of 1 per cent. and an extra dividend of one-fourth of 1 per cent. on the common stock, according to advices received in Wall Street from Chicago. The regular quarterly dividends on the 6 and 7 per cent. preferred shares also were declared, all being payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 15.

First Yale & Towne Payment.

Directors of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company yesterday declared an initial dividend of $1 a share on the new stock of $25 a share par value. This is the first dividend declared by the company since the stock distribution and places the new stock on a $4 annual dividend basis. The dividend is payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 14. The King Philip Mills of Fall River yesterday declared an extra dividend of $25 a share on the capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1.50 a share, both of which are payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 20.

The Board of Directors of the Kelsey Wheel Company, at their meeting held in Detroit yesterday, declared only the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the common stock, payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 20. The stock of this company had a sharp rise on Tuesday in connection with rumors that the Directors might declare some sort of an extra dividend either in the form of stock or cash.

The stock dividend declarations yesterday included an announcement from the Cumberland Pipe Line Company that a 100 per cent. distribution would be made if the stockholders of the company approved an increase in the capital stock from $1,500,000 to $3,000,000 at a special meeting called for Dec. 27. Only stockholders of record Dec. 26 will be permitted to vote at the special meeting. If the capital increase is approved the 100 per cent. dividend will be paid payable to stock of record Dec. 30. In a letter to the stockholders, F. M Towl, President, said that in the judgment of the Directors the capital increase was justified by the increase in assets, now in excess of the capital stock because of the reinvestment of earnings.

Approve Capital Rise.

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Singer Manufacturing Company, held in Elizabeth, the proposal of the Directors to increase the capital stock from $90,000,000 to $120,000,000 to permit the payment of a 33 1-3 per cent. stock dividend, was approved, more than two-thirds of the outstanding stock voting in favor of the increase.

Stockholders of the May Department Stores Company yesterday approved an increase in the capital stock from $20,000,000 to $26,000,000 and at the same time authorized an increase in the number of shares by reducing the par value of each share to $50. This action was taken at a special meeting of stockholders. After the special meeting the Board of Directors met and declared a 20 per cent. stock dividend, payable Dec. 20 to stock of record Dec. 13. The regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. was also declared on the common stock, payable March 1 to stock of record Feb. 15.

Stockholders of the Nash Motors Company have been called to a special meeting to be held Dec. 16 for the purpose of authorizing an increase in the capital to make possible a stock distribution, according to advices received in Wall Street from Detroit. According to the information, the Directors will declare that three shares of new 7 per cent. preferred stock and five shares of no par value common stock be distributed for each share of common stock now held. It was also stated that on Feb. 1, 1923, the Directors would declare an initial semi-annual dividend of $1.25 a share on the new no par value stock, thus placing the stock on a $2.50 annual dividend basis. At the same time a regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share will be declared on the new preferred stock.

$12,000,000 PLANT TO LIGHT 70 TOWNS

The financing of the construction of an electric generating station in the coal fields of the Middle West for the purpose of absorbing fuel wastage has taken definite form, according to an announcement made yesterday, which stated that a group of local banking interests will undertake to finance the work. Approximately $12,000,000 will be expended in the development and this amount has been underwritten by a syndicate consisting of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Stone & Webster, Inc., Spencer, Trask & Co., A. B. Leach & Co. and Paine, Webber & Co.

The new power station has been designed and will be built by Stone & Webster construction forces under the supervision of Kelsey, Brewer & Co. of Grand Rapids, managers of the new system. The financing and the consolidation of the new system, with the station and necessary links, will be undertaken by the banking group.

According to the statement issued by the engineers yesterday, "the electric power and lighting utilities of some seventy cities and towns in Central Indiana, with Indianapolis as a centre, have been consolidated by the Central Indiana Power Company. All will be interconnected and operated more or less as a unit. A new power station, with initial capacity of 40,000 kilowatts, will be constructed on the bank of the Wabash River and in the centre of some 3,400 acres of proved coal lands which the company has acquired. The electrical requirements of something in excess of half a million people will be met by the system. Savings in fuel, in administration and general over-all expenses are set up as results which may be expected to flow from interconnection operations."

UPTURN IN COTTON AS PRESSURE LIFTS

An early break in cotton yesterday carried December to 24.05, just 2¾ cents from high levels of the season. This appeared to complete more urgent liquidation and prices rebounded half a cent during the afternoon. For a time the market broke sharply as further stop-loss orders were reached and holders who failed to take advantage of higher levels terminated their interest. But absence of pressure from spot quarters facilitated a recovery, once the tone steadied. The recent decline has shifted a great many contracts from speculative to trade channels, with resulting improvement in technical conditions. With a Census report tomorrow and the annual estimate on Dec. 12, active fluctuations are anticipated. Prices gained 15 to 38 points, next October contracts showing the greatest recovery.

Morning trading brought a resumption of the previous day's liquidating movement, prices in all three markets breaking sharply to lowest figures in several weeks. For a few moments immediately following the call, presence of a 10,000-bale buying order in May at 24.16, together with execution of several large orders in March around 24¼ cents, tended to steady the situation. But once more pressure on New Orleans started weakness, catching stop-loss orders and throwing more contracts into the ring than demand could absorb. January showed effects of heavy liquidation, with May breaking through 24¼ cents before the movement ran its course. Liverpool declined about 30 American points on near positions, while March in New Orleans broke half a cent to 23.83.

While scale-buying orders were disclosed on each recession, as proved the case throughout Tuesday's decline, so much cotton came out as various selling limits were reached on commission house accounts that prices broke despite absorption of contracts on scale orders. With December, January and May all under 24¼ cents, selling pressure diminished and the market steadied. Reports held by Armour & Co. in certain equipment and the lease of this to Fruit Growers Express Company under an agreement dated April 24, 1920. This agreement, together fith title of the equipment covered, has been assigned by Armour & Co. to the trustees for the benefit of the holders of these certificates. The payment of rentals by Fruit Growers Express under its lease of this equipment, which equal in amount the principal and dividends of these certificates by agreement of guaranty dated April 24, 1920 and assigned to the trustees, is unconditionally guaranteed in varying proportions by eighteen railroads, including Atlantic Coast Line, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Louisville & Nashville and Baltimore & Ohio.

The security for the certificates consists of 4,211 forty-foot steel refrigerator cars, the present value of which is estimated at $7,000,000, or more than 150 per cent. of the face amount of the issue. The Fruit Growers Express was incorporated in Delaware in March, 1920, and furnishes refrigerator car service under exclusive contracts to eighteen railroads, these contracts running to 1925. The company carries 28 per cent. of the entire fruit and vegetable traffic of the company.

R. M. Grant & Co. are offering a new issue of $300,000 City of Reidsville, N. C., 5½ per cent. gold bonds due serially March 1, 1923 to 1943, inclusive. The bonds were issued for sewer improvement purposes and are a direct general obligation of the city. The bonds are offered at prices to yield 4.90 per cent.

The Guaranty Company announced yesterday that the offering of $3,000,000 State of South Dakota twenty-year 4¾ per cent. bonds had all been sold.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Halgarten & Co. and the First National Company of St. Louis have received an award of $5,000,000 State of Missouri one, two and three year 4½ per cent. road bonds for which bids were received Tuesday. The $2,000,000 bonds maturing on Dec. 1, 1923, have all been sold, and the $2,000,000 due Dec 1, 1924, and the $1,000,000 due in 1925 are being offered on a 4.30 per cent. basis.

OHIO & NORTHERN OFFERS $6,000,000

One of the first pieces of short-term financing to make its appearance in the New York market came to light yesterday when Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., announced an issue of $6,000,000 Ohio and Northern Gas Company guaranteed three-year 7 per cent. gold notes due Nov. 1, 1925, which are being offered today at 100 and interest, to yield 7 per cent.

Through subsidiary and associated companies the Ohio and Northern Gas Company distributes gas to about 125 communities in Central Ohio, Northwestern New York and Southern Ontario, Canada. The new notes will be secured by, a pledge of at least $9,475,000 of bonds and notes of subsidiary and associated companies and all common capital stock except Directors' qualifying shares of subsidiaries. In addition the notes will be guaranteed by the Cities Service Company.

The combined gross earnings of the subsidiary companies of the company for the twelve months ended Sept. 30, 1922, amounted to $2,848,039, and net earnings were $1,024,448. Interest on the notes to be issued and divisional bonds, together with other interest charges of subsidiaries, amounts to $507,020.

The sale of a new issue of $4,550,000 6 per cent. equipment trust certificates in Fruit Growers' Express equipment trust issued by the Metropolitan Trust Company of New York, as trustee under agreement with Armour & Co., dated Dec. 1, 1922, without any public offering of the securities, was announced yesterday by Clark, Dodge & Co., Harrison Smith & Co. and Freeman & Co.

The certificates are issued under the Philadelphia plan, mature $650,000 annually on May 1 of each year 1923 to 1929 and represent the interest formerly held by Armour & Co. in certain equipment and the lease of this to Fruit Growers Express Company under an agreement dated April 24, 1920. This agreement, together fith title of the equipment covered, has been assigned by Armour & Co. to the trustees for the benefit of the holders of these certificates. The payment of rentals by Fruit Growers Express under its lease of this equipment, which equal in amount the principal and dividends of these certificates by agreement of guaranty dated April 24, 1920 and assigned to the trustees, is unconditionally guaranteed in varying proportions by eighteen railroads, including Atlantic Coast Line, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Louisville & Nashville and Baltimore & Ohio.

The security for the certificates consists of 4,211 forty-foot steel refrigerator cars, the present value of which is estimated at $7,000,000, or more than 150 per cent. of the face amount of the issue. The $2,000,000 bonds maturing on Dec. 1, 1923, have all been sold, and the $2,000,000 due Dec 1, 1924, and the $1,000,000 due in 1925 are being offered on a 4.30 per cent. basis.

UPTURN IN GRAINS IN LIGHT MARKETS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The technical position of the grain markets has been greatly strengthened by recent liquidation and short selling, and while there was nothing in the news that was regarded as radically bullish, there was a decided change in sentiment. All grains showed a firm undertone from the start and closed about the top, with net gains of ¼@1¼ cents on wheat, ¾@7¾ on corn, ½@¾ on oats and 1¾ on rye.

Trade in wheat was very light early and prices held within rather narrow limits, but it was apparent that shorts were gradually covering and, toward the last, a London cable reporting rains in Argentine and the introduction of the Farm Credit Bill into the House, led to general buying and the closing bulge.

The general run of foreign cables indicated that holiday dullness has become a factor in the European demand. The advance in Sterling to a new high had some effect on the market, as Liverpool prices are up relatively 1 cent per bushel in the past few days.

Goodman's report to Clement, Curtis & Co. made Winter wheat acreage of 40,565,000, or 2,997,000 less than last year and condition 83.2, against 78 last year and 4.1 points under the 10-year average. Rye acreage was reported as reduced 11.3 per cent., with condition 85.7 against 92.2 last year.

Goodman's report estimated the corn crop at 2,765,000,000 bushels on the Government basis, compared with 3,061,000,000 bushels harvested last year. Of the former, 2,135,000,000 bushels were harvested as grain, equal to 263,000,000 bushels which went into silos, and 307,000,000 bushels that were hogged down and grazed. There was a total abandoned acreage of 5,628,000.

Primary arrivals of wheat so far this week aggregate 5,062,000 bushels; previous week, 6,432,000; last year, 3,825,000. Shipments were 3,822,000 bushels; previous week, 3,940,000; last year, 4,738,000.

Corn receipts were 4,230,000 bushels; previous week, 3,039,000; last year 4,681,000. Shipments, 2,021,000; previous week, 1,620,000; last year, 1,700,000.

American Locomotive Has Big Orders

The American Locomotive Company has closed contracts calling for the delivery of 107 new locomotives, forty-nine for the Northern Pacific Railway, twenty-five for the Denver & Rio Grande Western, ten for the Central of New Jersey, five for the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Saulte Ste. Marie, five for the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, while the remaining thirteen consist of orders for one or two engines for various roads in this country and abroad.

COMMODITY PRICES.

A new high price for 92 score butter, at 54 cents, an advance of one-half cent, was the only outstanding change reported in yesterday's cash markets. Irregularity in delivery of the high grade staple, coupled with heavy demands from the trade, has placed the market in sellers' hands and accounts for firmness. Tin and cotton also bettered their previous levels, lard meanwhile continuing its recession. Grains, groceries, other provisions and metals firm.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Wednesday, a week before and a year ago:

Business Deal in Westbury.

Andrew R. Kennedy, President of A. R. Kennedy, Inc., importers and seed merchants of 226 West Thirty-fourth Street, New York City, bought the property at Westbury, L. I., adjoining the Long Island Railroad Station. The property is one of the most valuable business sites of Westbury, consisting of about 3½ acres, has a frontage on two streets of about 1,200 feet and about 800 feet adjacent to the railroad tracks. The property has remained unimproved for a number of years, being a part of the extensive Ladenburg Estate, which was purchased by Adolph Ladenburg in 1890.

The purchaser has planned to improve a part of the property by the erection of a warehouse, to be used as a Long Island Distributing Station of the Kennedy firm, and will probably sell a portion of the property for improvement for a business enterprise which can make use of the adjoining railroad facilities. The purchaser was represented by McCarthy & Brown, attorneys, of New York City.

The six-story apartment building, 410 Clinton Avenue, between Greene and Gates Avenue Brooklyn, recently completed, and valued at about $500,000, was sold today by James A. Meers, builder, to George A. Andrews of the firm of Humbert & Andrews, manufacturers of preserves, who recently purchased the Claredon Hotel property at Washington and Greene Avenues.

Mr. Andrews gave in part payment for the Clinton Avenue apartment his magnificent residence, 132 Seventy-sixth Street, one of the show places of the Shore Road section of Bay Ridge and one of the finest homes in the borough, which is valued at $250,000, and the rest in cash. The deal involved about $1,000,000.

Business Properties.

Julius Reich sold to Harris Sussman 2136 Third Avenue, a 4-story business building in a lot 25 by 100. George W. Brettell negotiated the sale.

Wm. Kestenbaum sold 108-108½ Bowery, size 38 by 110, improved with a 5-story business building. The purchaser, Louis Cohen, President of the United Stores Fixture Company, will immediately improve the plot with a modern building for the Company's use. This is the fifth location secured by the buyers for their individual use, having recently purchased 201-203 Bowery, for a branch. The property is assessed at $65,000. Lewis H. May Company were the brokers.

PRIVATE HOUSE SALES.

Samuel Brener, operator, has purchased from William S. Coffin, 50 Church Street, running through to Seventh Avenue, an old three-story dwelling altered into apartments. On the Seventh Avenue front is a one-story building, the entire plot being 24.4 feet by 98 feet. Brown, Wheelock-Harris, Youngs & Co. negotiated the sale.

Bracher & Hubert have sold for Dr. Albert H. Fridenberg the four-story dwelling at 114 West Seventy-Sixth Street on lot 20.1½ by 102.2 to Eva M. Wright, who will occupy the premises in the late Spring when Dr. Fridenberg vacates.

The three-story dwelling at 235 West 132d Street on a lot 16 by 99.11 was sold by Jacob Goodman to Malvina Braghwaite. John Durant was the broker.

Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum & Fisher and Irving Lewine, operators, have purchased from Robert Clyburn, coal operator, his former four-story residence at 18 East Fifty-second Street on a plot 30 by 100.

Augustus E. Crevier bought for occupancy, 310 West 115th Street, a three-story one-family dwelling, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, E. Sharum was the broker.

Edward C. H. Vogler sold for John Dooling the four-story dwelling 633 West 138th Street on lot 14 by 100 to a client for occupancy.

M. Morgenthau Jr. Co., Everett M. Seixes Co., Consolidated, have sold to Conrad Troller, 207 East Fifty-fifth Street, a three-story private dwelling on lot 20 by 100.5. Dwight, Archibald & Perry Inc. represented the sellers, the estate of Jane M. Haslem.

$130,000 Loan Placed.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company has loaned on first mortgage to the 230 East Eighty-sixth Street Corporation $130,000 on the premises at 230 to 240 East Eighty-sixth Street. The dimensions of the property are 161 by 104. The mortgage is at 5½ per cent. The site is improved with six stores and apartment buildings.

Edwards, Dowdney & Richart have placed the following loans: A building and permanent loan of $190,000 at 5½ per cent. on premises southwest corner 176th Street and University Avenue for Louis Padula; parmanent loan of $157,000 at 5½ per cent. on the Century Taxpayer situate southwest corner Fordham Road and Grand Avenue, for Gran-Ford Realty Corporation; $55,000 at 5½ per cent. on premises 331 Lexington Avenue for the French Church Du St. Esprit; $27,000 at 5 per cent. on premises 414 Amsterdam Avenue for Mrs. Josephine Lederer, and $25,000 at 5 per cent. on premises 112 East Sixty-first Street for the Bedford Holding Corporation.

Commercial Leases.

A. V. Amy & Co., in conjunction with the Warranty Brokerage Corporation have leased the entire building at 157 West Seventy-second Street, on plot 20 feet by 100 feet 8 inches for forty-two years at a total aggregating $300,000 to H. G. Guttman and H. Bennett Solomon. A. V. Amy & Co., represented the tenants, and the Warranty Brokerage Corporation represented the Redstone Holding Corporation. Arnold Rothstein, President, purchased this property some three years ago from Elmer E. Smathers. The Redstone Holding Corporation is also the owner of 151 West Seventy-second Street, and 134 West Seventy-second Street, properties for which are now being negotiated.

H. C. Kopp & Co. leased the store known as 1368 Broadway for the Marlborough Studios, to Morris Dunn, haberdasher, for a term of 10 years at an aggregate rental of $80,000.

Arthur L. Shaw of 4,032 Broadway leased the store and basement located at 1,235 St. Nicholas Avenue to B. Parsont for a long term of years.

Brooklyn Trading.

Realty Associates sold lots in Coney Island on the East side of West Fifteenth Street and fronting on Coney Island Creek to the following purchasers: R. Caserio, J. Barbara, C. Visone, C. Palma and N. Orlando.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

WILL DEMOLISH DWELLINGS

Property Was Resold at a Substantial Profit—Several Apartment House Deals Closed.

The various parcels of property at 166 to 174 West Eighty-sixth Street, recently accumulated by L. J. Phillips & Co. for Abraham Ruth, an operator, have been resold by the same firm of brokers to Isaac Polstein, a builder, at a substantial profit.

The property, which has a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 102 feet, is located thirty feet east of Amsterdam Avenue.

At present there are five four-story private dwellings on the plot, and it is the intention of the buyer to demolish these buildings at once and erect a high-class fifteen-story fireproof apartment house. Mr. Polstein has just completed a large apartment house on the northeast corner of Eighty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue.

Apartment House Sales.

Isaac Lowenfeld and William Prager, operators, have purchased from the Amlin Realty Corporation 516 and 518 West 162d Street, near Broadway, a five-story new-law apartment, size 40 by 100, housing fifteen families, with a rental of $10,000. The building was held at $80,000. Charles Goldberg was the broker in the deal.

Slawson & Hobbs have sold for the Zilmar Realty Corporation, Nathan Wilson, President, the northwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street, improved with a six-story building with apartments and stores, size 40 by 100, to an investor.

The Goelet apartment at 105 and 107 East Nineteenth Street has been purchased by Samuel D. Tomback from Nordlinger & Banner. It is a six-story structure with elevator, on a plot 50 by 92, located 125 feet east of Fourth Avenue, and was valued at around $110,000. It contains two eight-room apartments on a floor. Louis R. Berg was the broker.

The Conwalt Realty Corporation (Samuel Williams) sold to Harry Divak the five-story apartment house at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and 120th Street. The property has an annual rental of $30,000 and was recently completed by the seller.

It has a frontage of 65 feet on the street and 100.11 feet on the avenue. Samuel Fine was the broker.

The five-story apartment house at 521 West 159th Street, on a plot 50 by 100, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue, was sold by Charles Berlin for A. Buzak. The buyer is Josephine Miller, an investor. The house was held at $81,000, and returns an annual rental of about $14,000.

THE BRONX MARKET.

The S. and S. Building Corporation, James J. Summers, President, sold to the M. F. Realty Company (Morris Fishbein) the five and one-half-story building recently completed and known as 815 Hunts Point Avenue. The building rents for $30,000 and was held at $160,000. It contains forty-three three-room apartments. The brokers were Block & Flick. The sellers have just started the erection of a five-story 100-foot apartment on the adjoining corner.

The Leo H. Aronds Company sold 1,424 Crotona Park East, a five-story building, on a plot 41 by 128, containing twenty tenants, with a rental of $9,600. The property was held at $53,000.

The same brokers sold to another client 1,283 Morris Avenue, corner of 169th Street, a five-story apartment house, with three stores and twenty tenants, on a plot 55 by 72, with a rental of $12,400. The property was held at $75,000.

They also sold 1,428 Crotona Park East, a five-story building, on a plot 41 by 128, containing twenty tenants, with a rental of $9,500. The property was held at $53,000.

To another client they sold 266 East 169th Street, a five-story building, on a plot 45 by 72, with three stores and thirteen apartments, with a rental of $6,000. The property was held at $52,000.

The same brokers sold 1,432 Crotona Park East, a five-story building, on a plot 41 by 128, containing twenty apartments, with a rental of $9,400. The property was held at $53,000.

They also sold to a client 1,284 Grant Avenue, corner of 169th Street, a five-story building, containing six stores and twenty apartments, on a plot 47 by 100, with a rental of $17,000. The property was held at $100,000.

The Hudson P. Rose Company purchased from Mrs. Metz the three-family house at 650 Timpson Place, through Julius Trattner, broker.

They also purchased from Charles Rieth the two-family frame house at 4,227 Martha Avenue, and from A. Wachter the three-family frame house at 753 East 133d Street.

Lang & Vandenman sold for the Vogbert Realty Company to R. Wunderman the two-story building 807 and 809 Tremont Avenue. It consists of four stores, a large market and a billiard parlor forming an L. It measures 50 by 216 feet on Tremont Avenue and 26.8x8 by 115 on Mapes Avenue, and is leased for $13,000. The building was held at $130,000.

S. J. Taylor sold for William F. and F. C. Krumdieck two lots, 60 by 103.56 by 50 by 105.38, on the westerly side of University Avenue, 100 feet north of West 197th Street, to D. Russo.

The entire block front on Crotona Parkway from 181st Street to Hornaday Place, near Bronx Park entrance, has been acquired through a series of conveyances by Adolph & Henry Bloch, attorneys.

The transaction just consummated, and for which the deed will be shortly recorded, involved the conveyance by the estate of Adam Boecher of a parcel 25 by 140 feet. It is interesting to note that in order to assemble the plot it was necessary to acquire by separate conveyances, a strip twenty-six one-hundredths of a foot (about four inches) on 181st Street, and one and nine one-hundredths of a foot on Crotona Parkway, and another triangular gore one and seven one-hundredths of a foot by thirteen and forty one-hundredths of a foot on 181st Street.

The entire plot now under one ownership comprises a frontage of 150 feet on Crotona Parkway, with an average depth of 77 feet, fronting on both streets.

William H. Mehlich, Inc., were the brokers representing the purchasers and Fred Oppenheimer represented the sellers. The property will be offered for resale and improvement.

Shelmerdine & Thom sold for Frances Augusta DeVinne the plot, 63.8 by 136.4, on the northeast corner of 161st Street and Grant Avenue, and for the estate of Henry Acker the adjoining plot on 161st Street, 46 by 136.4, and for Josephine Frank the two frame dwellings 894 and 896 Grant Avenue, on a plot 41 by 106, the three parcels comprising a plot of 40,000 square feet. The purchaser is the Empire State Ice Corporation, who will immediately improve the entire plot with a three-story and basement steel and concrete modern electrically equipped ice plant, with a capacity of 400 tons per day and storage capacity for 10,000 tons, for which the Niewenhous Company have been given the contract.

BUYING IN THE SUBURBS.

New Yorker Buys 20-Acre Estate at Katonah, Held at $90,000.

Mrs. Harold Thorne sold the property situated at Cantitoe Corners, near Katonah. The property consists of twenty acres of land, with formal gardens and a modern Colonial residence of twelve rooms and five baths, on an elevation, with an unobstructed view of Cross River Lakes for many miles. The estate also includes stable and garage, ice-house for gardener's cottage. It adjoins the homes of Ernest Fahnstock, Henry G. Barbey, Arthur Iselin and Clarence Whitman. The property was held at $90,000. The purchaser is Edmund Vaughan of New York City. George Howe was the broker.

Fish & Marvin sold for the H. S. H. Realty Company, Inc., a tapestry brick house on the Boulevard, Pelham Heights, to C. S. Cornenhoven of Pelham. The property was held at $65,000. They also sold for Walter C. Thomas a new brick and stucco house on Rochelle Terrace to Walter S. Bernhard of New York City. The property was held at $25,000, and sold for Le Roy A. Van Patten a large plot on Eastland Avenue, Pelham Heights, to William H. Ross. The property was held at $18,000.

Sawkill Pines, consisting of 350 acres, upon which stands a modern lodge containing nearly fifty rooms, has been sold to Major Ratzkoff. The buyer intends to convert this property into a boys' and girls' camp at a cost of upward of $100,000.

Sawkill Pines is located in the Pocono Mountains and is within four and one-half miles of Milford and thirteen miles of Port Jervis. Negotiations for this property have been going on for the last six months, and the deal was finally closed yesterday. The Finkelstein Company was the broker in the above transaction.

Samuel C. Sterrett of Garden City has purchased, through Clark, Christ & McKellar, the property belonging to Mrs. Leila M. Jones on Third Street, Garden City. Mr. Sterrett will occupy the premises.

H. Richter & Co. sold for Dr. M. Lombardo two lots on Beach 147th Street, Neponsit, for John A. Lesher, three lots on the corner of Beach 142d Street, and Neponsit Avenue, Neponsit, for Robert J. Bellow, three lots on Beach 138th Street, Belle Harbor, for the estate of Oscar Kahnweiler, ten lots on Cronston Avenue, between 126th and 127th Streets, Belle Harbor, and for Virginia E. Shain six lots on Beach 119th Street and the Ocean Front, Rockaway Park.

Otterbourg, Steindler & Houston have sold for a client eighteen lots on the Boulevard, Beach 126th and Beach 127th Streets, Belle Harbor. The purchaser intends erecting nine stucco dwellings on the plot. Harry J. Sprung was the broker.

Joseph P. Day sold 165 Speedwell Avenue, Morristown, N. J., to Eney Grupelli of Morristown, N. J., for $20,000.

Whetley Hills Real Estate Corporation sold to James Blaine Walker Jr. a track of land comprising three acres at Locust Valley, L. I., situated on the north side of Chicken Valley Road, south of Piping Rock Club, west of and adjoining the property recently sold by the same brokers to William A. Greer, and is near the homes of Sidney Z. Mitchell and C. Oliver Iselin. The purchaser will improve for his own occupancy.

Bailey Brothers, as brokers, in conjunction with O. D. & H. V. Dike, sold the five-story tenement house at 215 East Seventy-third Street for Catherine A. Lawrence to an investor. The property was held at $26,000.

Madison Avenue Corner Sold.

The three-story building at the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, 20 by 102.2 feet, erected in 1914 by the Taliffer Company and leased to Park & Tilford, has been sold by the Taliffer Company to the 1922 Realty Company, understood to represent the Schulte Cigar Store interests. Brown, Wheelock-Harris, Vought & Co. negotiated the transaction.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—The disturbance that was over the North Pacific States Tuesday night has moved southeastward and is now over Southeastern Idaho. Wednesday night, but pressure was falling rapidly far to the eastward and precipitation had already set in by 8 P. M. Wednesday, as far east as the Mississippi River. Another disturbance of marked intensity was central south of Newfoundland and moving northeastward, and it was attended by rain in this city Wednesday night. The North Atlantic Coast.

Pressure was comparatively high Wednesday from Hudson Bay southward over the Atlantic States. The temperature has fallen in the Northwest, the Southwest, the Lake region, the Mississippi Valley and the Southern Plateau States. The weather has remained abnormally cold throughout the Northwest.

The weather disturbance will rapidly eastward during the next two days attended by general precipitation east of the Mississippi River except in Southern Florida. Thursday the weather will remain fair in the North Atlantic States until Thursday night. The temperature will rise in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region Thursday and Thursday night, and in the Atlantic States Thursday night and Friday, while colder weather will overspread the Ohio and lower Mississippi Valleys Friday or Friday night, and the section farther east Friday or Saturday.

VONSIATSKY-STEPHENS MARRIAGE IS UPHELD

The marriage of Anastase Andreivitch Vonsiatsky-Vonsiatsky to Mrs. Marion Buckingham Ream Stephens has been declared legal by the Russian Orthodox Church, according to a statement given out yesterday by Clarence B. Mitchell of 40 Wall Street, attorney for the Ream family.

Shortly after the marriage last February its legality was assailed by Mme. Liouba Mouromsky of Paris. Mr. Mitchell gave out this statement:

"The marriage ceremony performed in Yalta in 1921 between Mr. Vonsiatsky and Liouba Gourevitch (alias Mouromsky) was a nullity and known at the time to be a nullity by both parties thereto. Its celebration was procured through the use of false documents and for temporary purposes—that of assisting the Gourevitch woman during the threatened evacuation of Yalta by the Russian troops.

"On learning of the circumstances the highest authorities of the Orthodox Russian Church instituted a formal investigation. The parties to the Yalta ceremony were given every opportunity to make such statements as they desired, and were required to furnish evidence. They both did this. As a result the Church authorities have recently declared the Yalta ceremony to have been void ab initio and Mr. Vonsiatsky's marriage here to Mrs. Stephens valid. The married certificate issued at Yalta has been ordered canceled."

RATE HEARINGS OPEN HERE.

Eastern Shippers Testify on Charges to Southern Points.

Shippers and carriers in the Atlantic seaboard area began yesterday the presentation of their case for an adjustment of rates on freight to the Southeastern freight area before the Interstate Commerce Commission at the Southern rate case hearings in the assembly room of the Merchants' Association.

W. T. Lamoure, general freight agent of the Boston & Maine Railroad, protested against any change in the adjustment between Eastern and central areas and Southern points, and urged a lower all-rail rate between New England and the South.

W. H. Chandler, representing the Boston Chamber of Commerce and manufacturing interests in New England, New York and New Jersey, submitted an analysis of the present and proposed rates. Other Eastern shippers will testify today.

BROWNING ESTATE TAXED.

State Appraisers Rule on Transfer of Business to Wife and Sons.

State appraisers held yesterday that a trust deed executed by John Scott Browning, who died Aug. 31, 1919, transferring in trust, his interest in the clothing firm of Browning, King & Co. on July 11 and July 29, 1919, to his widow and two sons was made "in contemplation of death" and included it in the State tax appraisal filed in the Surrogate's Court. Browning was head of the concern, which is rated at more than $5,000,000.

The amount of interest transferred is $589,694, making his total estate $903,864. The widow, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Browning receives half of the residuary estate and the two sons, John Scott, Jr., and Hays R. Browning receive one fourth of the residuary, each in trust until they are 25 years old.

Workman Killed by a Cave-In.

Digging a pipe line excavation on the west side of the United Electric Light and Power Company's plant at 201st Street and Sherman Creek last evening, Frank Rafito, 33 years old, of 321 East 116th Street, was buried under ten feet of dirt when the pit in which he was working caved in. Witnesses grabbed shovels, and after ten minutes dug Rafito out. The Consolidated Gas Company's rescue squad and Dr. Sabatini of Columbus Hospital worked over Rafito for an hour and a half, but the workman was dead.

VAN NAMEE MAY BE SMITH'S SECRETARY

BERRY SLATED FOR OLD JOB

Former Adjutant General Strongly Backed by McCooey—E. J. Walsh for Public Works.

Democrats close to Governor-elect Smith predicted yesterday that George R. Van Namee, his secretary in the early part of his first administration and later promoted to a $15,000 position on the up-State Public Service Commission, in all likelihood would take up again after Jan. 1 his old duties as the Governor's chief aid in the Executive Department at Albany.

Mr. Van Namee, who is the Democratic leader of Jefferson County, and for some years was Secretary of the Democratic State Committee, has been practicing law in this city. The general belief was that his tenure as secretary would be merely the stepping stone to something better—possibly a position with the Public Service Commission—should the Governor-elect succeed in getting necessary support in the Assembly to reorganize that body along his own lines. It is believed that Mr. Smith will advocate a single-headed commission. There are five commissioners at present.

Dr. Charles W. Berry, who became a Brigadier General during the war, it was said last night, would be returned to the position of Adjutant General, which he held during the first Smith administration. He is strongly backed by John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Kings. Another Kings County Democrat who it is understood would be warmly welcomed as a member of the incoming administration is former State Superintendent of Public Works Edward J. Walsh.

While no decision is said to have been reached, it is known that Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, State Highway Commissioner under Governor Smith from 1918 to 1920, is being considered for reappointment to succeed Herbert S. Sisson of Erie, a Miller appointee.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, at present on leave from the National Guard and filling a position on Governor Miller's Transit Commission, will be retained, it is said, as head of the National Guard.

It was said at the Biltmore last night that in all probability no appointments would be announced by the Governor-elect before next week, when it is likely the Adjutant General will be named so as to give him time to help pick the personnel of the Governor's military staff. Mr. Smith spent part of the day yesterday in his suite at the Biltmore, working on his message and receiving callers, among them Dwight B. La Du, State Engineer-elect.

ANDERSON PROTESTS ELTING AS COLLECTOR

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, last night sent a night letter to President Harding protesting against the nomination of Phillip Elting for the office of Collector of the Port of New York. The protest read:

"President Warren G. Harding, White House, Washington, D. C.

"Reinforcing protest yesterday against Phillip Elting by Methodist Temperance Board, representing Methodists of entire nation, the Federated Church and law and order forces of all leading denominations in New York State, which is centre of nullification activity, respectfully suggest there will be far better enforcement of the prohibition law, and far more general realization of what we know to be your sincere desire and efforts in that direction, if by refusing to nominate for position of Collector of the Port of New York, with its important relation to illegal importation of liquor, a notorious political wet backed by wets who have sacrificed the Republican Party in this State to help an outlaw liquor traffic, you thereby serve notice on politicians of high and low degree through the entire country that they must tender you candidates for positions touching enforcement whose nomination will not stultify you before the nation.

"(Signed) WILLIAM H. ANDERSON,
"State Superintendent Anti-Saloon League of New York."

Mr. Anderson also sent to President Harding a copy of resolutions adopted by the Methodist Temperance Board at its regular meeting in Washington also protesting against the appointment of Mr. Elting as Collector of the Port of New York.

We invite you to share in our profits—profits accruing through our services as builders, and profits earned through the financing of the homes of our clients.

We offer you an investment that is of personal interest not alone to the young man and woman who can pay for their Units on the basis of $25 down and $10 a month, but to the experienced investor who can invest $50,000.

We want everybody possible to become interested in the Empire Homebuilding Association for the profit that is in it for them and because of the opportunity to broaden the scope of the constructive work we are doing.

Empire Units have behind them the values of all the houses we build. This margin of safety constantly increases as we build more homes.

The purchase of Empire Units makes it possible for us to extend to you and your neighbors the building and financing help to own a home of your own.

The money you invest in Empire Units goes back into the community to pay for the labor and materials to build more homes. Your money builds up community prosperity by creating more highly taxable property. Your money builds up community business for the merchants by bringing in new home owners.

On this basis every business man should be interested in Empire Units of Investment—for himself and for his employees.

Empire Units of Investment have the protection of all the mortgages on all the homes built and financed by us—but they have behind them the greater security of the signed word of the man who is building his home and is paying for it. COAL CRISIS BRINGS STATE ORDER TO USE SUBSTITUTE FUELS

TO INVOKE SEIZURE POWER

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Coal purchasers in the State must buy a certain percentage of steam-size anthracite and bituminous with all domestic anthracite coal delivered, the percentage of substitutes to vary in the different judicial districts, according to a general order issued today by William H. Woodin, State Fuel Administrator.

Profiteering by independent coal operators will be curbed by an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission cutting off transportation from such operators, if a recommendation to be made by Mr. Woodin is carried out.

Judicial district and county fuel administrators will be urged to use their powers of seizure granted to them under the emergency fuel laws.

These decisions were reached at a meeting of fuel administrators of the State, who met at the Capitol. Governor Miller was called in for a brief period.

Following the conference, to which only the administrators, Mr. Woodin's assistants and advisers, and one representative of the New York State Retail Coal Dealers' Association were admitted, General Order 4 was made public as follows:

"It being absolutely necessary immediately to augment the supply of domestic sizes of anthracite by the use of substitutes, it is hereby directed that each district fuel administrator in the State of New York who has not already done so, shall issue such rules and regulations as he deems necessary for his district, compelling the delivery of a certain percentage of substitutes with all deliveries of domestic size anthracite."

An official statement accompanying the order read:

"Detailed review of the coal situation in New York State develops the fact that the shortage in domestic sizes of anthracite, due to the strike of last Summer, has become acute with the advent of cold weather. Yet, there is an ample supply of other fuel, including the smaller sizes of anthracite, bituminous, wood, &c., these varying in availibility in different districts of the State."

After the conference, Mr. Woodin said the new coal mine strike of 5,000 miners in the anthracite fields about Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, had been called to his attention.

"It was mentioned at the conference," he said, "but we had virtually decided to take the action we did several days ago. I hope the new strike does not prove to be serious. If it does, of course, it will make the situation in the State all the more difficult."

Mr. Woodin described the general situation as "serious, but not dangerous."

"The whole thing is very simple," he said; "there is a shortage of 30 to 40 per cent. of anthracite coal in the State. The only way to relieve that shortage is to burn more anthracite substitutes. It is impossible to decide at New York City what you should do at Albany. Each district has its own problems, so we have left it to the district administrators to decide what percentage of substitutes must be purchased with the domestic sizes of anthracite."

Mr. Woodin said it had been suggested at the conference that the State Fuel Administration work against profiteering through the Interstate Commerce Commission. The suggestion, he said, was that the commission stop the railway car supply to mines at which exorbitant prices were charged. The suggestion will be taken up with Washington, he said.

Governor Miller was in the room with the coal administrators only about five minutes. Mr. Woodin said he had been called in to see the order issued and to approve of it.

When Mr. Woodin left the Capitol tonight Albany's first real snow storm was well under way. The Fuel Administrator drew the collar of his coat up and remarked: "This is one of the reasons why we called the conference. This is the season for General Order No. 4."

Mr. Woodin expressed warm praise for those who conferred with him.

"I want to talk about the personnel," he said. "The men who met here today have given of their time and have carried things through in a remarkably efficient manner. Without their help thousands of persons at present would be in dire distress."

Mr. Woodin said he did not know what percentage of substitutes would be required for the City of New York, but he thought possibly about 25 per cent. Rice and barley coal would be used for apartment houses and buckwheat coal for homes, he said.

Jail for Coal Profiteers Is Urged by Boston Mayor

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—Mayor Curley today urged jail terms for profiteering coal dealers. The Mayor asked Charles B. Wooley, Sealer of Weights and Measures, to request Chief Justice Bolster of the Municipal Court to impose jail sentences instead of fines.

This action followed information received by the Mayor that peddlers were selling coal consisting largely of slate in small lots at prices that were at the rate of $25 a ton.

SEES PLEASURE CARS LIMITED IN NEW YORK

NOW FACE TRAFFIC CRISIS

Declares Law to Enforce Curtailment Will Be Necessary if Numbers Increase.

A law may be necessary to limit the number of pleasure cars and taxis that may operate in the streets of New York, declared Magistrate Frederick B. House in a Traffic Court warning yesterday. Facing a "traffic crisis," he said the city might have to ask a legislative act or exercise its police power to cut down the fleets of automobiles now crowding the highways.

Drawing a picture of machines, their number swelling daily, swarming over New York's thoroughfare space, Magistrate House said that if the yearly percentage of cars in the streets increased at the rate of the last two years, traffic will come to a standstill for want of space to move in.

"New York City," he said, is facing a a traffic crisis. Right here in this court since the beginning of the year we have heard about 40,000 cases arising out of vehicular traffic in the streets and have taken in fines of about $500,000. There were too many automobiles in the city's streets in 1921 and it is getting worse daily. There is every likelihood that the percentage of increase in 1922 over 1921 will be greater than the increase of 1921 over 1920.

"That means, and you can't make it too strong, that things will be so bad that we shall not be able to carry on. Take Fifth Avenue these days. There are times when standing at the curb, one could walk across to the other side by going over the tops of cars. They are packed from curb to curb with only inches between.

"There is urgent need for more traffic policemen. Conditions are disgraceful. Three or four persons are killed every day. It must be stopped somehow. When we advocate some measure to remedy street conditions, statements come from some people that the remedies suggested would harm business, or at least hamper it. Saving human lives is business.

"As for methods to avoid the present conditions, we have given careful consideration to the problems and we are almost at a loss for the solution. We have held meetings and we have discussed it from every angle. The great trouble, however, in approaching the problem, is the fact that Manhattan Borough is so narrow, especially in the lower districts. The cross streets can't be widened and as a result the avenues are being overworked. I am certain that some of the avenues will have to be made one-way streets clear through to the Bronx. Again, merchants may protest that such a method would hinder business, but human lives have some value, even in this age, and we should take that into consideration even at the risk of some slight impediment to business.

"If we could only make the motor maniacs realize that human lives are worth considering, there might be fewer street killings. These fellows seem to think that by owning a car they become lords of the highways. If jail sentences will do the trick, I intend to prove to them that they are not lords of the highways. And I intend to make it evident that no one can expect special privileges in my court.

"If automobiles in the future continue to be placed in the streets as fast as they have been in the past, I certainly feel that some sort of curtailment of pleasure cars and taxis will be necessary. I know that there will be protest against that and that it would be difficult to get a bill through the Legislature, but it will be necessary. In the event that the Legislature would not pass such a measure, the police power may be exercised."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—An old-time liquor fight—intermittent, but stormy—flared up in the House today during debate on the $115,000,000 Treasury Supply bill, with its item of $9,000,000 for prohibition enforcement. Adjournment came tonight with the enforcement appropriation next in order in consideration of the bill by items.

Starting earlier in the day when Representative Magee, Republican, of New York, a member of the committee which framed the bill, declared that defiance of the Volstead law was "so prevalent as to threaten our institutions," it ended abruptly just after Representative Hill, Republican, of Maryland, a leader in the movement for light wine and beer legislation, had announced what he proposed to offer in the form of amendments when the prohibition section is reached tomorrow.

Meanwhile friends of prohibition, overwhelmingly in control, took one shot after another at those who sought to attack the law and by parliamentary methods cut short Mr. Hill's attempt to show friendly relations between the prohibition unit and the Ku Klux Klan.

In urging Congress to give to the States the right to say what alcoholic content should be permitted in their respective domains within a limit fixed by Congress, under the Constitution, as "reasonably non-intoxicating," Mr. Magee declared that probably would result in a beverage made from pure ingredients and "the restoration of wholesome respect for the law."

With the assertion that the liquor traffic had thrived on misery until the people, handling it as if it were a serpent, had choked it, Representative Gilbert, Democrat, of Kentucky, shouted to the House that he was getting tired of the constant attacks on men who are trying to see that the law was observed.

"So determined and vindictive is the small minority that it stands out in open defiance of the Constitution," said Mr. Gilbert, adding that it drew backing from influential sources and that members of the House gave aid and comfort. Taking up the charge that crimes against the United States had increased since enactment of the Volstead law, Mr. Gilbert asserted that crimes which flourished in barroom days and were handled in the State courts had decreased to the point where many rural jails were empty.

Half a dozen members were on their feet at once trying to break in with questions, when Mr. Hill, with six minutes to close general debate, proceeded to explain the nature of his amendments.

"In the first place," he shouted above the hubbub, "I shall propose that the House strike out of the bill the item of $150,000 for the prohibition unit's publicity bureau; that the sums of from $135,000 to $150,000 as heretofore, shall not be spent hereafter in open violation of the Volstead law for the purchase of bootleg liquor to be used as evidence; that none of the Government appropriation shall be used to defray the expenses of stump speakers sent over the country by the Prohibition Commissioner."

Sees a Klan Alliance.

All the time Mr. Hill was being bombarded with questions as to whether he was trying to tighten up the Volstead act.

"I shall also propose to strike out of the appropriation all funds for legal advisers, special counsel to the prohibition unit, on the ground that its legal force does not know how to construe the law which exists today," he went on, adding that he would propose other amendments that no part of the fund shall be used

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 7.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was the guest of women Democrats of Maryland, who gathered today to celebrate the recent Democratic victory. Mrs. Wilson motored here from Washington with Mrs. Edna Helm, wife of Rear Admiral James Meredith Helm, who acted as Mrs. Wilson's Secretary on her European tour.

Mrs. Wilson said that former President Wilson, while not so far on the road to health as recent newspaper reports have indicated, is much better than he has been at any time since his recent illness.

"Mr. Wilson," she said, "is the most wonderful patient imaginable. He also has the greatest store of patience which it is possible to have and he does exactly what he is told.

"He depends a great deal on his cane, but this dependence is noticeably less than it was several months ago. During the last Summer he has made greater improvement than at any other time since his illness.

"One of the greatest assets is his willingness to obey orders. He does exactly what the doctor tells him to do and co-operates with him in every way imaginable, so that we all are delighted with the results.

"A tonic which Dr. Grayson has prescribed for him is part of his daily regimen. He is absolutely faithful to it, and he has an excellent appetite. We don't know, of course, how much appetite he would have if it weren't for the tonic, but we are not taking any chances."

DRY UP BROADWAY, IS NEW POLICE ORDER

FLASKS UNDER THE BAN

Customers as Well as Proprietors of Restaurants and Dance Halls to Be Arrested.

Drastic orders for the strict enforcement of the State dry law, otherwise known as the Mullan-Gage law, in cabarets, restaurants and dance halls were given at the West Forty-seventh Street and the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Stations last night to the patrolmen assigned to duty in places that have previously been raided. The patrolmen are to be held to strict accountability for the "hip pocket" observance of the law as well as violations on the part of the places themselves.

The first arrests under the new instructions were made at the Montmartre, at 203 West Fiftieth Street, shortly before midnight. Patrolman Quinn, of the West Forty-seventh Street, who was stationed in the place, said that he saw a patron, who gave his name as Kayk Kort, 34 years old, an architect, of 119 West 71st Street, with a flask of whisky, and immediately placed him under arrest. The patrolman then arrested the assistant manager, Michael Nolan, who said he lived at 308 West Fifty-fourth Street. Both men were taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station, where they were later released in bail furnished by Sam Salvin, owner of the Montmartre, Palais Royal and other places along Broadway. Kort is charged with having whisky in his possession in violation of the Mullan-Gage law and Nolan with permitting him to have it in his restaurant.

The order to the police is taken to indicate preparation for the most arid holiday season that New York City has ever seen, and it was hinted that there would be the closest co-operation between the police and the Federal authorities in seeing that there is no infraction of the prohibition law during the Christmas season. Just what the Federal plans are have not been disclosed, but it is known that E. C. Yellowley, Acting Federal Prohibition Director for this State, has outlined an extensive program for enforcing the Volstead act and also that he is in hearty accord with the proposal to stop any and all violations.

The patrolmen who went out at 8 o'clock last night from the two police stations mentioned to do duty in the Broadway district which have been raided are men who are on the sergeants' list—men who are scheduled for early promotion in the department. This fact was taken as indicating the seriousness with which the task of stopping all manner of dry law violations has been undertaken by the police, especially those under Inspector James Bolan, whose district covers Broadway.

Ban on Flasks Ordered.

The instructions were both oral and typewritten. The patrolmen were told to go straight to the manager in the place to which each had been assigned and say to him that henceforth not one drop of anything stronger than one-half of one per cent. must be permitted on the premises under penalty of arrest of not only the person caught with the liquid but also the manager of the cabaret, dance hall or restaurant. The manager will be required to see that no patron bring his in on his "hip."

The patrolmen stationed in such raided premises will have no alternative. He must arrest each and every person seen with a drop of whiskey on his table or about his person, or lose his chance of promotion and perhaps be dismissed from the force. Not since the Mullan-Gage law was put on the statute books have the police started out such a drastic drive as the one indicated in the orders given to the patrolmen last night.

It was made plain to the patrolmen at their two respective Station Houses that they are to be constantly checked up by Inspector Bolan and men on his staff.

The instructions did not apply to hotels or restaurants in hotels, but very few if any of these have been raided by the police.

HARDING'S MESSAGE READY

President May Read It to Congress in Joint Session Today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The expectation at the White House tonight was that President Harding would deliver his annual address to Congress in joint session tomorrow.

The President was understood to have completed the message, except for possible minor alterations, and the only question appeared to be how soon it could be sent to the public printer.

CHRISTMAS CLUBS DIVIDE $190,000,000

Five Thousand Banking Institutions of Nation Are Distributing to 5,000,000.

Distribution of $190,000,000, saved by Christmas Club depositors under a plan which assures them of sufficient spending money for the holiday season, was begun yesterday and will be continued until Dec. 10 by Christmas Clubs operated in 5,000 banking institutions throughout the United States. This huge Christmas fund is to be turned over to 5,000,000 depositors who joined the clubs with the idea of "saving for spending."

The theory that thrift could be taught by inducing the masses to save for spending purposes was advanced by Herbert F. Rawll in 1910, when he founded the Christmas Club, Inc., and immediately encountered almost solid opposition from bankers. Mr. Rawll, President and Treasurer of the Christmas Club, Inc., says the all-important thing is to get people to save and the ends toward which they are saving will take care of themselves.

The size of this year's Christmas Club distribution greatly exceeds the most extravagant hopes over entertained by those who originated the club plan and by those who have adopted it as an adjunct to banking.

First Distribution Here.

The Staten Island Savings Bank, Stapleton, S. I., is one of the first banks in this district with a Christmas Club to announce the distribution of Christmas savings to depositors in the club. Its announcement yesterday disclosed that the club would play Santa Claus to 3,000 depositors, among whom will be distributed checks averaging $100. The checks are to be mailed to the depositors forthwith in order that they may have the money for Christmas buying.

"This is the time of year that sees the vindication of the old proverb, 'A penny saved is a penny earned,' says a statement of the club corporation, at 31 Chambers Street. Those earned pennies in this particular instance aggregate approximately $190,000,000."

An approximate tabulation by districts throughout the country of the enormous "penny savings" to be distributed shows that Pennsylvania Christmas Club depositors saved the largest amount, $22,856,740, Massachusetts ranking second with $17,845,300, and New York following with $17,672,210.

"The largest distribution to be made by any bank in Manhattan," the corporation's statement says, "is $540,000 by the Maiden Lane Savings Bank of 170 Broadway, and the largest by any single institution in the metropolitan district is approximately $1,000,000 by the Union Trust Company of New Jersey, at Jersey City. Hudson County, N. J., has the largest enrollment, the distribution there being about $4.20 per capita.

Plan Used in War Loans.

"The Christmas Club afforded the first ordered effort to develop thrift among the masses by systematic saving, and the work it accomplished prior to the Liberty Loan campaigns contributed in no small measure to the success of the distribution of the various war loan securities to the wage earner on the partial payment plan. More than $700,000,000 of Liberty bonds were sold on the partial payment plan by methods and forms devised for the Treasury Department by the Christmas Club, Inc.

"Primarily intended as a means of saving money to meet the demands of the holiday season, it has developed into a medium of saving to meet other demands as well, such, for instance, as interest payments on mortgages, insurance, taxes and other fixed charges that have to be taken care of in a lump sum, until today it has reached the dignity and importance of the banking business of the country.

"The rapid growth of the Christmas Club is due entirely to the need it fills and to its adaptability to accounts of all kinds. It adjusts itself to the requirements and capacities of those who can save only a few cents each week as well as those who can save dollars. No one is too poor to come within its scope and the plan of savings is the same regardless of whether a total of $25 or $1,000 is accumulated.

"About the middle of December an account is opened at a bank, trust company or other financial institution and continues by small weekly payments for fifty weeks, until the first of the following December, when the entire amount accumulated by each individual is distributed in the form of a Christmas Club check. There are no fines, no dues, no penalties. It has been proved to be workable and has taught many shiftless people the value of sys-

DUBLIN, Dec. 7.—Deputy Sean Hales was shot and killed and Deputy Speaker Patrick O'Maille was seriously wounded by republican assassins today in Dublin as they left their hotel together to attend the session of the Free State Parliament. The gunmen escaped.

President Cosgrave, who only at yesterday's memorable opening session appealed to the Free State's opponents in arms to open their eyes and realize the fact that freedom is in their hands, though they did not know it—an appeal that had the approval of everybody, even those who suffered most from the anti-Government forces—made the announcement at today's session.

There was a painful sensation in the Dail as it heard the tragic news. The whole house was shocked and stunned, and only recovered after some minutes, when all rose as a mark of sympathy, every member betraying visibly his deep emotion at the loss of a friend and colleague.

General Mulcahy, against whom threats are frequently inscribed upon public walls in the city, alluding to the criticisms respecting the conduct of the recent executions, exclaimed:

"No members of the press were present when Sean Hales was shot. He was not asked whether he would like to see his relatives or receive a priest."

On Jaunting Car When Shot.

Mr. Hales and Mr. O'Maille had mounted a jaunting car and were talking to a friend when the shots rang out. Hales said he was shot and O'Maille ordered the driver to proceed to the Jervis Street Hospital, a few hundred yards away. O'Maille was able to descend and was assisted to the hospital, but Hales was dead. The driver says the attackers must have hid on the porch of the hotel awaiting their victims. British soldiers motoring past the scene opened fire on the attackers, who were in two parties, but they disappeared in different directions and escaped unhurt.

Military patrols are searching vehicles, cyclists and pedestrians in different streets tonight. It is officially reported that a substantial dump has been captured in a raid at Blessington Street, which included bombs, explosives and some dumdum ammunition.

Sean Hales was a brother of Tom Hales, the republican who is supposed to have organized the ambush which killed Michael Collins. Both brothers were active in the warfare on the English in pre-truce days, but they divided on the signing of the treaty, Sean backing the Free State and Tom joining the republicans in arms. Sean was elected for South Cork as the panel candidate at the election some months ago. Tom was recently captured by the national troops and is confined in a Free State jail.

This tragedy breaks the calm prevailing since last week which gave rise to hopes that Eamon de Valera and his followers might accept the people's verdict as returned by yesterday's epochal opening of the Free State Parliament. Even at the present moment there are bearers of peace overtures from the republicans on the way to Dublin from the remote Southwest, but today's happening must be reckoned with.

O'Maille Undergoes Operation.

DUBLIN, Dec. 7 (Associated Press).—Patrick O'Maille, who was sworn in as Deputy Speaker of the House yesterday, and who holds the rank of Brigadier General in the army, was shot in the head and arm. General O'Maille underwent an immediate operation, and tonight was reported as doing as well as could be expected. An official statement from army headquarters at Porto-

French Ministry to Start Art School for Americans

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The Ministry of Fine Arts has completed arrangements to establish in the Palace at Fontainbleau a school of architecture and painting for Americans. It will be opened June 25 next, and is intended for the use of the large number of Americans located at Fontainbleau, where, already there is an American Conservatory of Music under French direction. Lloyd Warren and Ernest C. Peixotto are among the organizers.

The details of the project have not been completed, but it is proposed to have François Gouguet, originator of camouflaged painting during the war, as one of the technical directors for decorative painting.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The Morning Post publishes today a statement it has received from Mathieu Chrussachi, who was the principal private Secretary of Gounaris during his mission to the allied capitals, concerning the secret negotiations conducted between Lloyd George and the Greek statesmen concerning which there has been much mystery. He states that his "knowledge of these transactions is almost wholly derived at first hand in my capacity as M. Gounaris's private secretary," and says that he is prepared to vouch for his facts. M. Chrussachi writes:

"The point to be stressed is that on the restoration of King Constantine Lloyd George swerved not an inch from the path he had traced out. It will be remembered that he almost immediately toned down the effect of his somewhat reluctant participation in the allied demarche of Dec. 4, protesting against the King's reinstatement, by making a vigorous speech in the House urging the necessity of retaining "the friendship of the Greek people—a people whose friendship was vital to us in that part of the world—more vital than any other country."

"The documents, published by the Matin (to their genuineness I can testify) make Lloyd George's Turkish policy clear. Devised in defiance of the advice, alike of France and Italy, of the foreign office, the war office and the allied high commissioners in Constantinople but in intimate collaboration with a Greek Prime Minister, who as the elections were to show did not represent Greece, it aimed at coercion of the Kemalists into the acceptance of the treaty of Sevres through the single-handed action of the Greek army. The application of this policy began with Venizelos as yet in power in Greece.

"Then when Calogero-Poulos and Gounaris came in February, 1921, to the London conference he put to the representatives of King Constantine to whose restoration he tactfully omitted to refer, the question he had put to M. Venizelos in June, 1920: Could the Greek army smash the Kemalists? The Greek delegates replied that they undertook to wipe out Kemal in three months, if only the Greek army were given a free hand. They relied, in giving this answer, on the ruinously optimistic reading of the military situation by Colonel Sarivannis, a Venizelist deputy and chief of staff of the Asia Minor army who accompanied them. Colonel Sarivannis even drafted a memorandum which was communicated to Lloyd George, explaining how in his opinion this could be done.

"Meanwhile the conference had elaborated a revision of the Sevres Treaty, involving in particular autonomy for Smyrna which, M. Gounaris expressed his willingness to accept subject to certain modifications of detail.

"On receiving the Greek answer to this question, however, Lloyd George, through Philip Kerr, intimated that the conference proposals need not be taken too seriously and that an immediate Greek offensive would suit the British admiralty."

Greek Offensive Was Ordered.

M. Chrussachi relates how Gounaris, thereupon ordered General Papoulas to launch the unsuccessful March offensive and decided to send King Constantine to the front by way of raising the morale of troops. Just before the sec-

LAUSANNE, Dec. 7.—The Turkish edict that the 200,000 Greeks in Constantinople must leave, either with or without an exchange of the Turk population in Greece, met the firm stand by the Allies today that the Greeks in the Turk capital must be allowed to remain and must not be massacred.

"The American delegation is not in accord with the proposals for new compulsory movements of populations unless it is clearly shown that good purposes will be served, as might be the case with the exchange of prisoners or of populations where exchange is necessary to serve humanitarian ends.

"Without discrimination between the parties to the negotiation for exchange the American delegation is unable to approve the movement from Constantinople of the Greek population of that city, particularly under conditions which will send an urban people used to artisanship and commerce to a rural district.

"We will not hesitate to express, in pursuance of our legitimate humanitarian interest, our protest against any such dislodgment of human beings."

This declaration creates great interest in the conference lobbies. It was generally remarked that to have had effect the declaration should have been made last week when the Turks read their banishment act against the Greeks.

Greek Element the Wealthiest.

When the Turks declared the Greeks must leave Turkey, ex-Premier Venizelos proposed to exchange the Greeks in Turkey for the Turks in Greece, but he asked that the Greeks in Constantinople be excepted. The Turks so far have refused and after the allied and American statements today it was said they would reserve their reply.

Discussing the situation, Rhys David, the second Turk delegate, said the Allies and America did not understand the situation.

"It has been shown," he said, "that Greeks and Turks cannot live side by side, and the only solution is for the Greeks to go. Practically all Greeks have left Turkey now except those in Constantinople, and we wish them to go. We will even allow the Armenians to remain, but not the Greeks. It is not an affair of the Allies and America that the Greeks in Constantinople may cripple the economic life of the city. We will attend to that. We do not care whether the Greeks in Constantinople go to farms in Western Thrace or elsewhere. They should leave Constantinople, and we believe they will."

In the last six months fully a million Greeks have left Turkey, most of them in the last ten weeks. Three hundred thousand in Eastern Thrace have all gone before the danger of Turk vengeance. Those remaining in Constantinople have been under the protection of allied troops. What will happen following the withdrawal of the allied troops, if these Greeks remain, is a matter of conjecture.

An important factor in the Turk demand for the expulsion of the Greeks is that the Greeks in Constantinople hold the reins of the largest part of the business in the capital and many are very rich. As the Turk envoy has said, it would be with their property that the Angora Government could indemnify the Turks who had suffered from the Greeks' destruction in Anatolia.

To Ask Our Stand on Straits.

Will the United States take any part in assuring the freedom of the Turkish Straits, demanded by Washington as by the allied powers? This question the American delegates will be called on to answer in the Straits debate which will be resumed tomorrow morning.

It is not a proposition of keeping land or naval forces in the Straits zone. No foreign forces are to be maintained. The participation that the United States, along with the other interested powers, will be asked to assume falls under two heads.

First, there will be an international commission to watch over the observance of the Straits regulations by Turkey on the one hand and the foreign powers on the other.

Second, there will be some form of guarantee or assurance of the neutrality of Constantinople and the demilitarized zone which the Turks will not be permitted to defend in the usual manner.

The decision of the allied powers to drop the claim of the right to keep military and naval forces in the Straits zone is in accord with the American declaration yesterday. But obviously it cannot be claimed by the Americans or any other Government that complete and unchecked reliance should be placed in the simple paper promises of the Turks. There must then be some observance, and it is for that purpose that an International commission will be created on which a place will be made for the United States. The question, therefore, is asked whether we will help secure the freedom that we

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Senate Committee on Commerce, after another all-day session, failed today to reach an agreement on the Ship Subsidy bill, which was passed by the House a week ago yesterday and was sent to the Senate Friday afternoon. As a result of the deadlock in the committee the Senate has transacted practically no business of importance this week. Indications tonight are that the Subsidy bill will not become the unfinished business of the Chamber until some time next week.

None of the matters in controversy was disposed of today. The principal trouble is over the Madden amendment, which stipulates that appropriations from the shipping aid fund shall be made annually by Congress, instead of leaving the matter entirely in the hands of the Shipping Board, as the Administration demands. President Harding has informed the committee that under no consideration will he accept this amendment, and the committee is tied, standing sight for the bill without the amendment and sight against the bill or for it with a modified form of the amendment.

The Lenroot-McNary substitute for the Madden amendment, which provides that, once an allotment of compensation has been made to a shipping concern, the compensation shall not be increased without the consent of Congress, was not discussed at today's meeting. This amendment is about as distasteful to the advocates of the bill as the one it would displace.

Opponents of the bill in the House who are watching the Senate situation say that if the Senate passes the bill without the Madden amendment it will mean the death of the measure.

Senator Fletcher, ranking Democratic member of the Committee on Commerce, offered two amendments to the bill today. One stipulates that a shipping company handling its own products shall not be a beneficiary of the legislation. This would bar oil companies which operate fleets of tankers to transport their products, as well as certain fruit concerns whose ships are engaged exclusively in the transportation of fruit owned in the first instance by those companies. The other amendment provides that the funds involved may be used to purchase ships now owned by the Government as well as to finance new construction.

Report Wood Will Remain in Philippines, Giving Up Pennsylvania University Post

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood, Governor General of the Philippine Islands, has decided to remain at his present post and not to accept the offer made by the University of Pennsylvania to be the provost of that institution, according to information received here today. War Department officials declined to make any formal announcement to that effect, but it was said in Secretary Weeks's office that an announcement probably would be made tomorrow.

General Wood previously had asked the university for an extension of time before assuming the office of provost, in order to see the completion of the legislative program he had sponsored in the Philippines. It was expected that the Philippine Legislature would enact certain reorganization proposals soon after Jan. 1, but it is now understood that the Legislature and other Governmental machinery have failed to function as rapidly as was expected.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Officials of the University of Pennsylvania said today that they had had no previous knowledge of the report that General Wood has decided to remain in the Philippines and would not come here to head the university.

Many of those who have been most active in seeking to shorten the leaves of absence, granted to General Wood since he was first elected provost, scouted the report from Washington and expressed their belief that there is no real foundation for it.

John W. Ziegler, who saw General Wood in the Philippines last Summer as a representative of the alumni, refused to credit the report until some confirmation was received.

Dr. J. Norman Henry, President of the General Alumni Society, expressed the opinion that the report is unfounded.

"I heard not five minutes ago and in very direct fashion that General Wood planned to come to this country some time in March."

demand or whether we will demand as other nations, including our commercial rivals, to assure that freedom, trusting to luck that we get a fair deal.

Mr. Child's Attitude.

It is possible that Secretary Hughes has not given definite instructions on this point to Ambassador Child, but it is understood that generally Mr. Child is not favorable to accepting a commercial monopoly.

In answer to the other demands for the demilitarization of the Straits zone, the Turkish delegation have said that during the Angora National Pact there must have some protection for Constantinople. Lord Curzon thinks among the Turks that after the acceptance of the allied plan the Allies would promote the development of the commercial treaties of Constantinople, which might take the form of a definite guarantee of all the nations forming the commission of control that the Turk capital would be free.

It was told by members of the British delegation that they think the best way would be for the League of Nations to guarantee Constantinople. The trouble with this plan is the fact that the United States is not a member of the League. Therefore, if the United States is willing to help, it is the wish of the Turks ask for the freedom of the Straits, an arrangement outside of the League may be made. If America declines to pay any part of the bill of the freedom of her traveling in the Dardanelles, then the League plan may be adhered to.

The diplomats here, who naturally wish America's help, point out that a difficult situation would exist if America found reason to complain against the Turks with respect to the freedom of the Straits. If we protested to the Turks they might refer us to the International Commission, and in any ruling by this commission we would have no voice.

Washington's decision on these points is awaited with interest. In speaking it might be said the Turks would be glad to have American participation because they suspect us of no aggressive or unfair purposes.

Turks' Counter-Proposals.

Tomorrow the Turks will present their observations on the allied plan for the freedom of the Straits both for trade and warships. It is expected the Turks will make certain counter-proposals which, while nearer the allied plan than the Russian plan for closing the Straits to warships, will not be a complete acceptance. As Rechad Bey of the Turkish delegation explained to me tonight, "On the Straits question we are caught between Russian and British rivalries. We are in a difficult position and ask nothing better than to find a middle ground which would please both these powers."

Turks seem willing to accept demilitarization and neutralization of the mission and their demands for stiffer rules for the passage of warships will be due to a desire to please Russia and a desire to protect Constantinople. The latter demands, which are generally believed, they make it perfectly clear that their final acceptance must be compensated by allied concessions in other fields. They say they must have assurances to enable them to secure Angora Government reassurance as to Turkish sovereignty over the Straits. And so it is possible that a real settlement of the Straits problem cannot be recorded until very near the end of the conference.

The general atmosphere of the conference has been much improved in the last week with respect to relations between the Allies and the Turks. The Turks refused to tie up tightly with the Russians, but have secured the Russians, but have greatly pleased the Allies, especially England.

MUSSOLINI SEES WAR IF CONFERENCE FAILS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 7.—Premier Benito Mussolini, receiving the journalists tonight, said:

"We are in full agreement with our Allies to propose to the Turks what we think the Straits are quite reasonable. I sincerely hope the Turks will accept, otherwise it will mean war."

LAUSANNE, Dec. 7 (Associated Press).—Benito Mussolini stopped off at Lausanne tonight on his way to the London meeting. He dined with Lord Curzon and discussed with him the difficult points of the Near Eastern negotiations. It is understood that the Russian objection to the allied project for control of the Straits was one of the subjects considered.

The Russian delegation, it is reported tonight, continues strongly to oppose the Straits plan, and it is even said that the Russians will refuse to sign any agreement relative to the opening of the Straits to the warships of all nations.

The counter-proposals which the Turks are expected to make tomorrow regarding the Straits will deal, among other things, with Constantinople, and anything calculated to infringe Turkish sovereignty over Constantinople proper will lead to strong objections. The Angora spokesmen said tonight that there was a probability Turkey would oppose international control there but would offer and remonstrate against the allied plan for a fixed garrison of 10,000 in Constantinople. Everything, the Turks say, comes back to the question of their sovereignty and their determination to have it respected.

"After all," said one of the Turkish leaders tonight, "it is only the Russians who understand the new Turkish mentality and who realize that real independence has become an obsession with us, anything which clashes with our right to run our country will be bitterly opposed."

The American stand for the opening of the Straits has closely interested the Turks, and America's world will double its weight if and when the time to settle the Straits problem arrives.

PLEA FOR ARMENIAN HOME.

American Delegation Has Not Agreed to Present the Project.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 7.—The American delegation has not yet agreed to present to the Lausanne Conference the project for a National Home for Armenians in the Caucasus Region of Asia, according to Dr. George E. Montgomery, Director of the America-Armenia Society, is pushing the project with the other delegates. He has handed them a long statement of the case on behalf of the American people, citing various instances of the Allies to establish an Armenian home and asking that something be done here.

While Ambassador Child is the subject of some criticism in certain quarters for not open, expressing the American attitude, it must be remembered that by doing he might place himself in a difficult position because Washington has assumed all responsibility for territorial and political settlements in Turkey. When President Wilson worked in Paris for the Armenian nation the American delegation occupied an entirely different position.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 7 (Associated Press).—Dr. George E. Montgomery, Director of the America-Armenia society, has presented a petition on behalf of those Americans who have given millions of dollars to help the Armenian suffering as a result of the war.

Dr. Montgomery said the Americans were anxious that the Lausanne conference should assist Turkey to settle the question of the land where these refugees might be settled into some quarters and provisions made for establishing permanent orphanages, hospitals, schools and other institutions for the miserable people which repeatedly have been taken by operations, now there no place to go.

The petition suggests that portion of Cilicia tributary to the port of Alexandretta as the most suitable location. The territory is triangular in shape and is about the same area as the State of Connecticut.

The memorandum recalls promises made by France and England to provide a homeland for the Armenians, who were those allies in the Great War and mentions the decision taken at the peace meeting of the League of Nations assembly that provision for such a homeland must be an essential feature of any treaty made with Turkey.

The petition, which is co-operating with Dr. Montgomery's organization, expresses confidence that an Armenian national home established under the administrative control either of the League of Nations or some European Power would soon become self-supporting.

PUSH MOSUL OIL CLAIMS.

Ex-British Officers Say They Are Representing Americans.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 7.—Colonel George Ashmead Hewitt, formerly of the British Army, and Commander John Cockburn Russell, formerly of the British Navy, are very busy in Lausanne especially among the journalists, pushing American claims to the Mosul oil fields through a contract with the Mosul Petroleum Company. Colonel Hewitt says William Boyce Thompson is the biggest financial backer of Mosul and Russell and Hewitt say they also are depending on the aid of Senator Lodge, Senator John W. DeKay, another American, also is said to be interested in the project.

So far the American delegation has not seen the way clear to back these claims as asked by the promoters.

I asked Dr. Rechad Bey tonight about the claims and he replied:

"It is true that Abdul Hamid acquired the titles to concessions in the Mesopotamian oil fields. But I am unable to say what will be the attitude of our Government on the validity of those titles now. These concessions are all the objects of various claims and acts. We cannot say what final settlement will be reached."

TURKS WANT OUR SCHOOLS.

Ismet Pasha Says Angora Desires Their Continuance.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 1 (Associated Press).—Ismet Pasha summoned Dr. William W. Peet, head of the American Board of Missions in Turkey, and the Rev. James L. Barton, a prominent missionary, to his hotel today and gave them positive assurance that the Angora Government did not want the American schools and institutions to leave Turkey, but desired them to continue there under Turkish law, with full guarantees from the Government that the work will not be hindered. Under institutions he included medical centres and hospitals, which Turkey was anxious to have remain.

Some of the American mission institutions in Turkey, especially in the interior of Anatolia, have been closed. Even the medical centres have experienced difficulty in operating under Turkish law in some places.

BERLIN SEES AMERICA ABANDONING RESERVE

Press Regards Activity of Child, Harvey, Houghton and Fletcher as Omen of New Policy.

BERLIN, Dec. 7 (Associated Press).—American interest in European affairs, evidenced by Ambassador Child's declarations at Lausanne, Ambassador Harvey's interviews at London and the presence of Ambassadors Houghton and Fletcher in London on the eve of the Premiers' meeting, serves a section of the German press as a pretext for the assumption that the United States has determined definitely to abandon its "attitude of proud reserve."

While such deductions move the German editors to take a somewhat more hopeful view of the immediate international situation, there is an absence of optimism in official and Parliament quarters, where the coming weeks are still viewed with unconcealed apprehension, prompted by the feeling that the still uncertain outcome of the Lausanne conference may decisively influence the London discussions, and the further impression that Berlin is not yet in possession of tangible evidence that French aspirations will be effectively neutralized through American and English intervention or sufficiently frustrated to enable the Cuno Government to develop its reparations program.

GERMAN PROSPERITY CALLED FICTITIOUS

BERLIN, Dec. 7. (Associated Press).—Dr. Andreas Hermes, Minister of Finance, today in expounding Germany's finances to the Budget Committee of the Reichstag cited figures showing that Germany in reality is undergoing early chaos prospects.

He pointed out that foreign countries were profiting themselves to be misled by apparently high dividends paid by German stock companies, but that these paper dividends, when translated into the gold equivalent, were quite insignificant. Meanwhile the cost of operating factories had increased enormously and industrial concerns were forced to undertakings on their actual physical strength.

Dr. Hermes pointed out that the people of the middle classes were disposing of family treasures in order to meet the cost of living, while he had been struck by the mushroom growth of shop keeping with gold, silver and jewels, while foreigners were purchasing houses, property and stock companies wholesale.

During the discussion a member of the Prussian Diet Dr. Hermes said the deficit in the trade balance amounted to 1,750,000,000 gold marks.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—Germany's coal imports during October amounted to 2,200,371 tons, according to official statistics, while 1,500,000 tons were delivered to the Reparation Commission. Besides the latter, 209,321 tons of German coal were exported.

The reparation demands include 1,600,000 tons monthly, in addition to 120,000 tons of Upper Silesian coal and 20 per cent of any surplus production over 8,000,000 tons.

The German press declares fulfillment of the demands is impossible, especially those involving the Upper Silesian coal, as many mines have been lost to Germany through the partition of the district.

ESSEN, Dec. 7 (Associated Press).—France has made 1,200,000,000 francs' profit on the coal delivered by Germany on the reparations account since the armistice, according to a statement to the press by Dr. Klaus Scholl of Essen, president of the French publication La Progrès Civique, to the effect that a total of 24,250,000 tons was delivered, which was resold at an average price of 91.20 francs. Dr. Scholl declares that the deliveries were credited on the reparations account at the rate of 61.70 per cent, but that the special committee of the French coal-handling organization sold them at 40 to 50 francs higher.

SENATORS ENDORSE POLICY ON STRAITS

WILSON'S TWELFTH POINT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The general political situation in Washington is the Harding Administration's stand in favor of the freedom of the Dardanelles as set forth in the speech delivered at Lausanne yesterday by Ambassador Child is favorably.

A canvass tonight of members of the Senate, including leaders of both parties on the Foreign Relations Committee and some of the former so-called "irreconcilables," failed to disclose objection or opposition to the position as stated by Mr. Child.

Senators were not disposed to grant interviews for publication, but in conversation indicated general satisfaction with the position taken by the Administration so far as it has been disclosed.

In Democratic circles there is much satisfaction over the fact, as pointed out by them, that the basic feature of the Harding Administration's position on the subject of the Straits is in accord with that of former President Wilson as set forth in his war aims speech of Jan. 8, 1918, in which he stated upon what terms Germany could obtain peace, so far as the attitude of the American Government was concerned. That was the so-called "fourteen points" speech, and it was in the twelfth of these points, after stating the view that the Turkish portions of the Ottoman Empire should be assured a secure sovereignty, and other nationalities under Turkish rule assured an undoubted security of life and unmolested opportunity of autonomous development, that Mr. Wilson expressed his position on the question of the Straits in the following words:

"The Dardanelles should be permanently opened as a free passage to the ships and commerce of all nations under international guarantee."

Stand Pleases Hitchcock.

Senator Hitchcock, of the Foreign Relations Committee, who led the Wilson Administration's fight for ratification of the Versailles Treaty with its League of Nations covenant, expressed himself as pleased with the stand taken by the Harding Administration in favor of the freedom of the Straits, and said he knew of no Senators who were opposed to that idea. He thought it would be difficult for the so-called irreconcilables to take objection to that position when public opinion in this country was practically all one way on the subject.

So far as had been disclosed, the statement made by Ambassador Child, Mr. Hitchcock pointed out, was an expression of views without any statement that this Government would be willing to take part in the suggested international trusteeship over the freedom of the Straits and Black Sea. However, he thought it was quite possible that the position as announced by Mr. Child might lead to further action.

Democratic leaders who supported the program of the Wilson Administration indicated their gratification over the participation by the Harding Administration in the Lausanne conference, and some of them said the hope that it would develop into broader efforts by the Washington Government to take a hand in the stabilization of the general European situation. The interpretation placed by these leaders on the Child speech was that this Government could not very well take no positive a stand respecting the opening of the Straits without giving American aid, when necessary, to guarantee that freedom.

Some of the Republican Senators approached tonight seemed worried over the fact that their Democratic colleagues were heralding the stand of the Harding Administration for freedom of the Straits as a reaffirmation of ex-President Wilson's twelfth point.

"It is quite true," said Senator Moses of the Foreign Relations Committee, "that Mr. Wilson, in his twelfth point, went on record in favor of the proposal for the opening of the Dardanelles as a free passage to the ships and commerce of all nations. But that was not strange when we recall that the trade policy of this Government has been in favor of the freedom of international straits and especially in favor of the freedom of the Dardanelles to the trade and commerce of the world.

"It was pointed out that this Government had taken a similar stand in favor of the freedom of the Danish straits, likewise the Strait of Magellan, and that we have made the Panama Canal open to the trade of the world. As long ago as 1856 President Pierce had stood for the freedom of the Danish straits. James Buchanan and other Secretaries of State did likewise.

A resolution offered recently by Representative Fish of New York, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, requests the President of the United States to present to the Turkish Government a protest against the treatment of unoffending Christians in Turkey.

"Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring) that it is the sense of the Congress that the Government of the United States that the Government of Turkey take such decisive measures as shall stay the hand of sanctions and terrorism, violence and assassination, and that the outstanding Christian subjects of Turkey all the rights belonging to them both as men and Christians.

"Resolved further that the President be requested to communicate these resolutions to the Government of Turkey.

"Resolved further that the House of Representatives of the United States (the Senate concurring) will support the President in the most vigorous action he may take for the protection and security of American citizens in Turkey and to obtain redress for injuries committed upon the persons or property of such citizens."

Representative Fish has requested the Committee on Foreign Affairs to consider his bill next week. He is hopeful that it will be favorably reported and passed without opposition in the House.

"Observers" Assailed in Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Declaring the question of observers should be settled "once upon eyes and closed mouths," Representative Connally, Democrat, of Texas, said in the House today that contrary to the wishes of the American "observers" at the Lausanne conference had asserted themselves emphatically whenever the "holy question of oil" was brought up.

Mr. Connally then read into the record statements that John D. Rockefeller had contributed $15,000 to the Republican National Committee, and John D. Rockefeller Jr. had contributed $10,000. He added that the elder Rockefeller also was credited with giving $100 to the Republican Congressional Committee.

Discussing the State Department's policy, Mr. Connally said Americans had interested himself in the Near Eastern situation since the days of Lafayette and Kosciusko and that the observers at Lausanne had stood silent through every phase of the discussions.

"They want the open door—for all," he declared.

Mr. Connally also charged that the State Department's negotiations with the Netherlands over Dutch Indies oil concessions was on behalf of a Standard Oil Company subsidiary.

SAYS LLOYD GEORGE MISLED THE GREEKS

cud offensive began an allied note was sent to Greece, on June 21, offering mediation, in the conclusion of which The Greek Government declined the offer.

"Baltazzis told me at Cannes," M. Chrussachi goes on, "that they were under the impression at the time that Lloyd George did not wish them to accept. M. Chrussachi says that the second Greek offensive appeared for a time to be a brilliant success. Then he adds:

"Lloyd George, whose secretaries rang up the Greek Legation twice daily for news, was jubilant. Both at the Supreme Council meetings in Paris and in the House he seized the opportunity to proclaim that the Treaty of Sèvres was now a thing of the past and that Greece was entitled to the full fruits of her victory. Constantinian French, having as pretexts fully carried out the task originally entrusted by him to the Venizelist régime, he was ready to give her even more than had been vouchsafed to M. Venizelos.

"The failure of the Greek army before Angora, however, very soon constituted the situation. It became clear that Greece had shot her bolt and that a smashing victory over the Kemalists was unattainable.

"MM. Gounaris and Baltazzis, therefore, left for London via Paris on Oct. 16, military action having failed to force a decision, a reversion to diplomacy for the establishment of peace became inevitable. They argued that the presence of the Greek army in the heart of Anatolia, covering the British positions at Constantinople and the Straits the surest foundation for negotiation of peace with Turkey in the common interest of the Allies, who jointly conducted war against that power and will jointly consolidate peace." [I quote from a memorandum of Gounaris.]

Thought Premier Would Back Greece.

"If the action of this military lever of Turkey were strengthened by the financial and moral support of Great Britain, whose Prime Minister had shown so lively and personal an interest in the matter a satisfactory peace might be enforced.

"To put the matter in a nutshell they concluded from Lloyd George's obvious desire that the Greek army should remain in Anatolia that he would effectively help it to remain there until the conclusion of peace qui veut la fin veut les moyens.

"The Greek Ministers soon found that there was a cruel disillusionment in store for them. While intensely anxious that the Greek army should remain in Asia Minor and emphatic on the necessity of its remaining, Lloyd George stands aloof from giving it the aid indispensable if it was to remain and from confessing his inability to furnish such aid.

"Though for the better part of the last two years he had made the effective cornerstone of Western policy his preserve, he now became invisible for Gounaris, whom with unexpected correctitude he referred to Marquis Curzon. The latter accorded to MM. Gounaris and Baltazzis a number of very cordial interviews. He expressed his regret that Greece should have rejected the March and June peace proposals.

"His interlocutors naturally refrained from explaining the real reasons of their rejection, pointed out that the Asiatic campaign had ended in a stalemate, as he had anticipated, and adjured the Greek delegates to place themselves for the purpose of a speedy establishment of peace, which was in the interest of all parties, in the hands of the Allied powers. Upon joint mediation the British Government would endeavor to bring about.' After a telegraphic consultation with their colleagues in Athens, MM. Gounaris and Baltazzis declared to Lord Curzon that they accepted the proposal.

"Thanks largely to the personal intervention of a distinguished Peer, M. Gounaris was eventually received by Lloyd George, but the meeting produced nothing more substantial than a new gracefully turned Philhellenic phrase.

"M. Chrussachi relates how months passed by without the allied mediation materializing. Finally, by what he calls 'desperate efforts,' MM. Gounaris and Baltazzis succeeded in seeing Lloyd George at Chanak. Lord Curzon was present at the interview and M. Chrussachi acted as interpreter. Lloyd George, he says, began by explaining the plan Curzon had elaborated for the pacification of the Near East which was to be laid before the Paris conference. He admitted it did not constitute full satisfaction of the Greek aspirations, but his desire to have done more for Greece was thwarted by the effects of King Constantine's restoration.

"Lloyd George's indignation at the return of King Constantine, which, he said, he attributed alone, has peacefully slumbered through 1921, while the Greek armies were successful, now displayed itself as rampant in the Greek failure," M. Chrussachi continues.

"When M. Gounaris protested that the King's attitude had been misunderstood Lloyd George retorted, 'It is very regrettable but there it is.'

"He concluded by saying that he had no desire nevertheless to interfere in the internal affairs of Greece. Lord Curzon, I noticed, took no part in the dialogue at this point.

"When we left, M. Gounaris, in visible consternation, remarked to M. Baltazzis and myself in the car: 'He has found a pretext for jettisoning us.' We agreed."

Disagreement Against Constantine.

Describing the Greek loan negotiations in London which immediately followed, M. Chrussachi says that he and M. Gounaris were joined in London by the patriarch Metaxakis, who came from America. Metaxakis obtained an interview with Lloyd George on Jan. 18, and the report of his conversation, drafted by Metaxakis's secretary, Father Kallimachos, was immediately sent to the Greek papers.

This naturally created a great sensation," says M. Chrussachi. "The statement in particular that so long as Constantine remained in Greece it was out of the question, entirely out of the question, for Greece to remain in Asia Minor, was irreconcilable with Lloyd George's attitude toward Constantinian Greece in March and August of the previous year. The whole tone of the declarations was so different from that of the Cannes interview, in which Lloyd George was made explicitly to regret and the suggestion that M. Gounaris on his return to Greece would not truly tell the Greek people that France and England, not Constantine, were driving Greece from Asia Minor, was so flagrantly offensive that M. Gounaris immediately at once approached Lloyd George with the query as to the authenticity of the Kallimachos report.

"Emphatic assurance was given by both Sir Edward Grigg and Mr. Wardwright that the report was exactly as reported. Lloyd George's actual declarations. When, however, M. Gounaris asked for a formal statement from Lloyd George to this effect, Mr. Edward's answer was that the Prime Minister cannot go about contradicting everything that is published, and that he did not think it 'worth while' to contradict this particular report.

"Yet, in the absence of a formal disavowal, the Kallimachos report, Lloyd George's declarations were to prove a deadly weapon in the Venizelist Armory. Circulated in the army by assiduous propaganda, it did much to spread the childish idea that Great Britain was prepared to come to Greece's assistance and was only kept back by the presence of Constantine on the Greek throne, which was behind the September revolution.

"Graver still, the Kallimachos report, as the Greek papers in hand show, was the principal document on which the prosecution relied at the trial which ended in the judicial murder of M. Gounaris and his colleagues by the Venizelist intransigeants."

The Appeal from Gounaris.

M. Chrussachi then deals with Gounaris's note to Lord Curzon of Feb. 15, 1922, which described the desperate condition of the Greek army in Asia Minor and appealed for immediate assistance in the form of credits and war material. M. Chrussachi says that he cannot deal so fully, or with equal confidence as to his facts, with the reasons why Gounaris did not carry out his intention of ordering the evacuation of Asia Minor.

"I feel tolerably certain, however," he continues, "that the chief reason is indicated below. Gounaris's note was taken in British official circles to be unduly pessimistic. Even Lord Curzon, replying to it on March 8, expressed the hope that "the military position in Anatolia is less immediately critical than your note would lead me to think, and that the remarkable patriotism and discipline of the Hellenic armies of which so many illustrations have been furnished in the campaign of the last few years will not fail them in any emergency that may conceivably arise."

"On the other side of Downing Street the note appears to have been taken for a try-on. The Cabinet Secretariat was equally emphatic on the necessity of the Greek army still remaining in Asia Minor and the complete inability of the Kemalists to make an offensive. The danger of being thrown into the sea was a hypochondriacal figment of General Pangalos's imagination. The Greek army hold out, and something would yet be done for Greece."

Hopes Languished and Failed.

"Through devious semi-official channels Greece, during six enervating months, received encouragements to wait Mr. Cawber-like for something to turn up. On the stroke of the twelfth hour Lloyd George would appear as the Deus ex Machina. Meanwhile the treasury was again running empty and the soldiers in Anatolia continued to mount guard in ragged uniforms, without boots, with pay, or food beyond such spiritual food as they derived from declamation in Lloyd George's periodical outbursts of Phil-Hellenic eloquence. The Greeks were not even allowed the salutary despair which would have led them to abandon the fatal struggle.

"At last in August the inevitable collapse from sheer exhaustion came. It was only preceded by a few days by a query from the Cabinet Secretariat as to whether the Greek Army could possibly hold out through the Winter."

In conclusion M. Chussachi wishes "strongly to emphasize that in publishing these facts quorum pars parva fui I am not animated by the slightest personal animosity against Mr. Lloyd George."

He then adds:

"I have only written because I feel it is an infinitely lesser evil that the truth should be known, though it were to the country concerned, than that a man like Gounaris, of the highest moral integrity and the purest patriotism, should, after suffering a foul judicial murder remain with the awful and unmerited stigma of treason on his memory."

GREEK PLEA UP IN COMMONS.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A Cabinet mystery of the late Government was revealed in Parliament today when Premier Bonar Law was asked in the Commons if a letter addressed to Lord Curzon by the late Premier Gounaris, of Greece, on Feb. 19, and Lord Curzon's reply had been communicated to and considered by the Cabinet.

Mr. Bonar Law replied that they had, to the evident astonishment of at least two important members of the late Cabinet, Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Chamberlain said: "Some of us are very much surprised to hear any such document was circulated, though our memories may be at fault."

The Gounaris letter referred to the condition of the Greek army in Asia Minor and was an appeal to the British Government.

Lord Birkenhead took the matter up in the Lords. He declared that neither he nor Lord Lee had seen Gounaris's letter. If he had he should have said to the Greeks: "If you cannot maintain your position we cannot give you financial assistance or military equipment, so clear out at once." The Cabinet had not that opportunity, because, so far as he knew, none of his colleagues saw that epistle.

Lord Birkenhead then proposed that Curzon's reply be read. When the leader of the House, Lord Salisbury, challenged him to disclose where he had procured a copy of it Lord Birkenhead declared he took full responsibility for reading the document.

He spoke in terms of admiration of the Greek army, explained that the failure to raise a Greek loan in London was due to the belief that Greece had grounded the hope that the Greeks would be prepared to listen to the counsel given by the Paris conference.

"If Lord Curzon's advice does not amount to a Star for the moment I do not understand the meaning of words," was Lord Birkenhead's comment. He deeply deplored that the Cabinet was not allowed an opportunity of discussing this correspondence. Such discussion might prevent the making of a shady transaction and save the lives of the Greek ex-Ministers.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Sir Edward Grigg, who was Lloyd George's chief Private Secretary, asked Premier Bonar Law in Commons today whether there was any record of a letter, alleged to have been addressed to Lord Curzon by M. Gounaris on the condition of the Greek Army in Asia Minor, and of Lord Curzon's reply, and whether the records showed that this correspondence had been considered by the Cabinet.

The Premier replied that Sir Edward Grigg doubtless referred to the letter to M. Gounaris of Feb. 16, which had been communicated to the Cabinet, as well as the reply.

Mr. Lloyd George asked if the Premier said that he had definitely made inquiries whether the Gounaris note had been circulated to the Cabinet and a record kept.

Mr. Bonar Law replied that he could say definitely that he sent to the proper source and got the reply that both the letter and the reply had been circulated to the Cabinet.

AMERICAN ENVOYS SET LONDON TALKING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—London will be the scene of the Allied Premiers' Conference on German Reparations during the week-end, as preliminary to the proposed conference at Brussels.

Premiers Poincaré of France, Mussolini of Italy and Theunis of Belgium will arrive tomorrow, and on Saturday morning will meet Premier Bonar Law at 10 Downing Street. At this meeting the four Prime Ministers will endeavor to lay the foundation for an agreed policy regarding the long postponed measures that are to be applied to Germany. Germany is asking for definite fixing of her debt as well as for a moratorium, and she expects the Allies to agree to a substantial reduction of the French reparation demands.

"In this," says The Star's diplomatic correspondent, "Germany is fortified by a rather broad hint given by Ambassador Harvey in London this week that though the United States might be unable to influence certain decisions in London and at Brussels, there might be decisions to which she would be bound to object. That is obviously a suggestion that America does not intend the continuance of the application of coercive measures to Berlin.

"The new attitude of the United States, it is felt in diplomatic circles here, may be very useful in persuading France to be less aggressive in her attitude both at this week-end and at Brussels."

There is a great deal of speculation here as to the meaning of the presence in London of the American Ambassadors at Berlin and Brussels. It is regarded as a curious coincidence that there should be three American Ambassadors in this country at the same time as the allied Premiers, and it is suggested the American diplomats may be preparing something to lay before these Statesmen.

As a matter of fact, Ambassador Harvey has not yet seen the other two Ambassadors, being out of town on account of the illness of his wife, but there is no doubt the three diplomats will meet in the next few days.

At the same time in official circles here it is not contemplated that the United States will have any representation in the conference of the Premiers. This conference is a preliminary talk among the four Premiers to see if a common agreement can be reached which would justify the calling of the Brussels conference, and it is thought likely that any conversations among the three Ambassadors would be of much the same nature and that their carefully formulated suggestions as to the attitude the United States should adopt at the Brussels conference.

There has been a revival of the old report that Great Britain would be prepared to give France a free hand in respect of the Rhineland and Ruhr in return for French support in the Near East, but inquiries in authoritative quarters give it no foundation.

DAIL DEPUTY KILLED BY REBELS IN DUBLIN

bello barracks said that his condition was not critical.

The shooting of the Deputies is in fulfilment of a constant threat. Not only the Ministers who ordered the recent executions, but all the members of the Dail Eireann who voted in favor of repressive measures had their names published in a black list and were warned that they would be held responsible. Hence some of the Ministers and several of the members of the Dail have for some time past taken up their residence in the Government offices. But some were willing to risk their lives by residing outside.

Hales was a prominent supporter of the Government and had been a strenuous fighter against the English. He was one of Michael Collins's closest personal friends. In 1920 he was arrested by the British at Cork and kept in prison for nine months. He was the chief agent in holding the Irish volunteers together in southwest and west Cork and took part in many ambushes against the British.

He was in charge of the Bonner Barracks, 1919 to 1921, and in April last took office as Brigadier General in the same area and since then had been Major General in the army defense forces of the Government. He voted for the Anglo-Irish treaty in the Dail Eireann in January.

President Cosgrave made the announcement in the Parliament of the assassination, and Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defense, paid tribute to the two men. He was deeply affected, and his voice was heard in tones broken by sobs. The assassins of Hales brought he declared that these victims had no private or benefit of politics, company and so reporters were present.

This was stated at the Labor and other independent members who have frequently forced the presence of representatives of the press at court-martials and have criticized the withholding of the announcement of executions from relatives until all was over.

The fight to other members of the Parliament is serious, and even the students formed Irish Volunteers have received threatening letters. They have not, however, sought the shelter of the Government building. Two of them, Hales in the cabinet and two in their own homes. The members can gain access to the Parliament chamber without appearing on the street. The Museum of Natural History joins up the College of Science, which is near the Government building, with Leinster House, in the theatre of which Parliament sits.

Three civilians were wounded when a bomb was thrown at a lorry full of national troops in Lumpter Street this evening. The troops escaped without injury.

ULSTER CONTRACTS OUT OF IRISH FREE STATE

Craig Bears Address to the King After Unanimous Vote in the Northern Parliament.

BELFAST, Dec. 7 (Associated Press).—Premier Sir James Craig, accompanied by the Marquis of Londonderry, leader of the Senate, and Colonel Spender, Secretary to the Ulster Cabinet, started for London tonight, bearing an address to the King contracting Ulster out of the Irish Free State.

The address was voted unanimously by both houses of the Ulster Parliament today, and so rapid were the proceedings that the entire business occupied less than half an hour.

In the course of his explanatory speech in the House of Commons, Premier Craig declared it was useless to hold out any present hopes that Ulster would go under the Dublin Parliament, and added that the moment such a question arose he would refuse to remain Premier. The only possible course to secure happiness in Ireland was for the North and South each to go its own way.

The Premier's whole attitude was against any reconciliation with the South. He said the Northern Parliament would have nothing whatever to do with the Boundary Commission, provided for under an agreement which he described as a bargain entered into by Arthur Griffith behind the back of the Northern Government.

He admitted that if the representatives in the Northern Parliament of the border counties could arrive at an agreement that something could be done here and there in the matter of the border arrangements he would not stand in the way of approving such an agreement.

He insisted, however, that nothing could be done in the way of bringing an amending act through the British House of Commons, because "thanks largely to the Ulster delegation which went through the British constituencies prior to the elections they had secured a majority for Ulster in the British House of Commons which would refuse to carry such an act."

CAPTURE 90 FREE STATERS.

CORK, Dec. 7 (Associated Press).—Two hundred rebels captured the barracks at Ballymakers, near Macroom, yesterday, killing one man and wounding fifteen. The attack took place at almost the same time that the Deputies of the new Irish Free State were being sworn in at Dublin.

The rebels took ninety prisoners, including Commandant Mooney, after a fight lasting several hours, but released them after taking all their equipment.

The fight was the fiercest yet reported in County Cork. Before advancing on the barracks the irregulars captured an armored car at Brandon, which they used, together with twenty machine guns and bombs, in their attack on the troops defending the village.

The Free State military was eventually outnumbered and was forced to surrender. The irregulars appropriated all the arms and ammunition in sight and then marched their prisoners into the mountains. Incendiary fires were captured have since reported for duty. It is believed that the rebels found difficulty in assembling such a large number in the sparsely populated mountain districts.

A powerful bomb was thrown at a military car this afternoon. The missile did not reach its mark, but exploded near by, wounding two men and two women. The bomb thrower escaped.
